Pomona School Board OKs contract with teachers

By DAN NIEBRUGGE
PB Staff Writer

The Pomona School Board voted 3-2 to approve the 1976-77 contract with the Associated Pomona Teachers at a special board meeting held Wednesday night in the Pomona Education Center Board room.

All Pomona teachers in grades kindergarten through twelfth will receive an immediate eight per cent pay increase. Teachers also won their fight for maximum class size limits and binding arbitration for grievances. However, the APT lost in its struggle to set case work load limits for support personnel such as nurses and speech therapists and was also turned down in its bid to give teachers some right in determining their evaluators.

Terms of the contract, which takes effect immediately, run through Jan. 31, 1979. Earlier in the day, APT members voted for their decision to accept the agreement with 699 yes votes cast to 110 no votes for an 86.4 per cent approval.

Ratification of the agreement by both sides brings to an end negotiations which began when APT made its first contract proposal in March and which concluded with a teacher protest walkout on Oct. 28 after which the Board of Education declared an impasse in negotiations.

Following the impasse declaration, APT and administration representatives spent 12 working days hammering out the final contract with mediator Rick Odgers of the State Conciliation Service. With negotiations primarily handled by Judson Ellson of APT and Assoc. Supt. Sidney Moses of the administration, the final agreement was reached late last week after many sessions running from 8 a.m. into the early morning hours of the following day.

Trustees Ken Pine and Eugene Whitlock cast the two dissenting votes in Wednesday night's ratification. Noting his stance on binding arbitration, Pine said, "I cannot vote for any contract which incorporates binding arbitration. I believe that binding arbitration reduces the board's flexibility."

Pine said that, because this is his last year on the board he had wished to be able to leave the board having cast a yes vote on the contract but that his conscience wouldn't allow it.

Whitlock expressed his dissatisfaction with the contract by citing a need for "more productivity". In a prepared statement he said , "More pay, greater benefits and less education. Is that the way for Pomona? Is that the way we attract new residents and new business, and keep the people who are here?"

Whitlock cited recent test scores and said, "Our twelfth grade scores reflect our students being in the fifth percentile five points from being the worst district in Los Angeles County, but one of the best paid in salary and benefits."

Whitlock said, "I personally do not believe all the bargaining was done in good faith. Our children are not doing better. I believe the teachers got everything they wanted. We did not get many of the things I think we should have as regards performance. I cannot and will not support this contract knowing we are getting no guarantees of improvement."

Trustee C. Allen Braswell, who voted for ratification, said, "I feel good about this contract. I feel good about the implications of this contract. I am hoping for a new relationship of trust and confidence between us."

The APT won its fight for maximum class size and binding arbitration for grievances. Additionally, the contract contains provisions for group grievances.

Maximum class size for all elementary grades kindergarten through sixth will be placed at 32 students while secondary classes will vary with 32 in English, 34 in social studies, 32 in mathematics, 34 in science, 32 in language, 38 in senior high art and vocational classes not to exceed the number of work stations.

As for teacher evaluations, teachers will still have no say so in the selection of their evaluator. The power remains with the administration. Also, support personnel such as nurses, psychologists and speech therapists will continue to have work assigned as it is done now.

Pay increases for teachers in kindergarten through twelfth grade will include an eight per cent raise immediately, a six per cent raise effective July 1, 1977 and a two and a half per cent raise effective July 1, 1978.

Childrens' center personnel will receive a six and a half per cent raise immediately with five and two and a half per cent raises coming over the next two years.

Salaries, then, for 1976-77 will begin for a class one teacher on the first step (class one indicating a bachelor's degree) at $10,299. Top pay for a class one teacher on the 11th step is $15,037.

A class five teacher with a bachelor's and master's degree as well as an additional 60 units of college work will begin at $12,565 on step one and be making $20,598 at step 14.

Burns recommends 'no tax cut at this time'

FRB chairman sees no advantage, but keeps mind open on subject

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Arthur Burns of the Federal Reserve Board today recommended against a tax cut at the present time, but did not rule one out if the economy fails to recover from its current slowdown.

"I see no advantage in a tax cut at the present time," Burns said. "My mind on the subject, however, is by no means closed."

President-elect Jimmy Carter has said he will consider a tax reduction next year if the economic slowdown continues. Some of Carter's advisers have expressed concern that the Federal Reerve Board could offset the benefits by tightening the nation's money supply.

Burns has been trying to head off a possibe conflict with Carter on the matter.

The chairman made his statements in a speech prepared for the United States League of Savings Associations in New York. His remarks came as the government reduced its estimate of growth in the nation's economic output to 3.8 per cent during the fall quarter.

That rate is just below the level generally considered necessary to whittle down inflation.

The Commerce Department had estimated last month that the Gross National Product — or total output of goods and services — grew at an annual rate of 4 pert cent during the third quarter. The revised figures show an unexpectedly poor performance in foreign trade.

Referring to a tax cut, Burns said he "will weigh the issue carefully" if the economy apears to need such a stimulus and if there are "economies" in federal spending.

In any case, Burns said there is no need for a tax cut at the present time, partly because it could add to inflationary pressures and partly because he expects the economy to resume solid growth without one.

Carter has said he will meet with Burns next week to discuss the economy.

Buried alive!

Wood chips entomb worker 90 minutes before being freed

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Daniel Durham says he looks at life differently now that he has the chips off his shoulders — some 30,000 pounds of them that entombed him alive for 90 minutes.

Durham was dumped into a truck, buried under six feet of wood chips and carried 40 miles while his screams went unheard. Someone even walked over the chips, unaware that Durham was buried beneath.

"All of a sudden I was falling, and then I was buried," Durham said Wednesday. "I may have blacked out a couple times from suffocation. I knew I couldn't last more than five minutes more."

Durham was leveling chips in an elevated bin when he was dumped accidentally into the truck, which then headed for a fiber company 40 miles away.

Jerry Thorp, supervisor at Lumber Specialty Industries Inc., said Durham had neglected to block the driveway with a board that keeps trucks from backing under the bin while somebody is working in it. Better safety precautions since have been instituted, Thorp said.

Durham said he cleared about 1½ inches of breathing space and when the truck moved, he got air from a draft blowing through the chips.

Unknown to Durham, back at the lumber company Thorp had noticed him gone about 15 minutes after the truck pulled away. Realizing he might be in the truck, Thorp phoned fiber company officials, who contacted the driver by radio.

An ambulance awaited the truck at Longview, and workers dug and clawed Durham free. He escaped with only three cracked ribs and internal bleeding which has cleared up.

"He's a lucky fellow," added Thorp. "He wouldn't have lasted five minutes in sawdust."

Suspect in kidnaping, shooting case booked

Pomona police early today arrested a suspect in the kidnaping, robbery and wounding of a 17-year-old Claremont youth early Tuesday

The suspect, Robert Taylor, 21, of 1060 Royal Coach Ave., Pomona, was arrested at Garey and Lincoln avenues shortly after 1 a.m. He was booked on suspicion of kidnaping, robbery and assault with intent to commit murder.

The victim, Kenneth C. Morandi, was shot in the lower right jaw by one of two young men he picked up in Pomona as they were hitchhiking. They forced him to drive into an alley where they robbed and shot him.

Morandi's condition today at Pomona Valley Community Hospital was termed "fair."

Ford still mulling proposal

Expo '81 in Carter's hands?

By MAE TATE
PB Staff Writer

A decision from President Ford on Expo 81 is not immediately forthcoming and may be carried over into the Carter administration, according to White House officials today.

A White House spokesman said that although the Bureau of International Expositions approved the proposal for a class one world's fair at Ontario Motor Speedway Wednesday subject to presidential sanction, Ford and his staff are still studying the financial aspects of the proposal.

Expo 81 Corp. officials had expected prompt action by President Ford following the BIE action, but the White House spokesman said he was unable to indicate how long world fair officials would have to wait for a decision.

He added that it could be made within a week or might go in on into the Carter Administration.

California Congressmen are soliciting the president for action, but Bill Welsh, vice president of the Expo 81 Corp. board said the promoters are making no calls.

"On the financing thing, the action of the Ontario City Council (on a contractual agreement extending the time limit for Presidential approval and finalizing the financing question to March 11, 1977) changed the wording to some extent. But I don't think it will seriously affect resolution of the financing," Welsh said.

Welsh was confident that "we can come up with a final agreement that will satisfy the bonding company, the City of Ontario and us.

"The city voiced concern about a first trust deed in exchange for the $7 million from Allen and Co. But they were facing foreclosure on the speedway by the current bondholders which in effect meant the existing bondholders have the right to a first trust deed," said Welsh.

In order to resolve the problem, he said that it is most likely that a meeting will be arranged between Expo attorneys, Ontario City Atty. Sam Crowe and a representative of Allen and Co.

"We're relying upon Mayor (Paul) Treadway's statement at the end of the session Tuesday that the City of Ontario is as strongly behind the world fair as ever," Welsh added.

In regard to the delay in President Ford issuing a decision, Welsh stated "Obviously we're not going to pressure the White House."

"The BIE wants very much to see a world fair in Southern California. They're bending over backwards to help us. If we get that kind of help from people in the United States, then our problems are eliminated."

Home ownership: fading dream for most Americans

CHICAGO (AP) — New American homes are obsolete energy hogs and financially beyond the reach of 70 per cent of the nation's families, according to a panel of research and building specialists.

"Our track record in energy conservation is lousy," William Graves of Brookhaven National Laboratories in New York, said Wednesday. "Thirty per cent of the energy we use is used in buildings and half the heat now produced in a furnace goes up the stack.

"We're hooked into an obsolete building technology based on 20-cent-a-gallon oil."

Graves and three others appeared on an energy conservation panel to start a three-day building and construction exposition that is expected to attract more than 20,000 members of the building industry.

Another panel member said that while the construction of single family dwellings may be in a moderate boom period in some sections of the country, they are being priced out of the market.

The median price for a new home is between $40,000 and $50,000, said Richard Schoen, an architect with the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, Calif.

"Based on HUD statistics which allot about 25 per cent of a family's income for housing, that eliminates about 70 per cent of families from the new home-buying market," Schoen said.

The panelists said the result is that the days of the traditional American dream home with its landscaped lawn and patio may be numbered.

"I think we're seeing it already," said David Dorn of the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory in Livermore, Calif. "We're seeing the construction of more four-and eight-family home units and that is not necessarily a disadvantage. For one thing, there's a lot more open space and efficient use of open land."

All the panel members believe that no single energy source holds the solution for buildings of the future and that approaches will be based on regional resources, climate and other factors.

They also were slow to lay blame on the building industry itself.

"You can't say it's necessarily backward," said Schoen in an interview.

"There are 90,000 small home builders in the country and 90 per cent of them build less than 50 homes a year. The largest single producer has less than a 1 per cent share of the market."

"Savings and loans should set down payment requirements accomodating energy improvements and take into consideration that money saved on utility costs could allow families to handle larger monthly payments."

MSAC faculty requests class release time next spring for negotiations

The Mt. San Antonio College Faculty Association wants class release time next spring so it can negotiate its work agreement with the Board of Trustees on college time.

Mrs. Pat Perez, president of the group, asked the trustees Wednesday to allow 20 per cent of classroom time for 10 teachers — the equivalent of two full time teachers — so the faculty could bargain for a new contract, and handle whatever grievances come up during work hours.

The trustees took the request under advisement.

The request was a response to an earlier proposal by the board which had suggested that the teachers could take even 50 per cent of their work time for negotiations provided no time was taken from the classroom.

Teachers at MSAC work a 30-hour week — 15 hours in the classroom, and 15 more in support activities which include student conferences, preparation of lessons, correcting papers and attending meetings.

Mrs. Perez said the faculty association rejected the board's earlier proposal because it would not have left the teachers any time to prepare for classes and take care of the bookwork.

She told the board that a similar request for release time already was granted to the faculty by trustees at Saddleback College in Orange County.

Besides the request for release time, the president of the faculty also submitted to the board a 96-page master contract proposal for the fiscal year that starts next July. A large portion of the proposal deals with provisions already in effect at the college.

The proposed contract calls for a pay raise that would tack a three per cent increase to a cost-of-living formula. Thus, if next year's cost of living rose six per cent, the teachers, under that proposal, would be granted a nine per cent pay raise.

Mrs. Perez asked the board to study the proposal and to set up a meeting with teacher representatives by not later than Dec. 16.

The current negotiations are the result of Senate Bill 160, a new law which for the first time permits the state's teachers to bargain as an officially organized unit. Still to be heard from at MSAC is the California School Employees Association of classified workers which is expected to present a proposal of its own, probably next month.

Mrs. Perez said the faculty association represents 700 teachers in day and evening classes.

Upland District trustees hire help

Upland School District trustees have hired a Los Angeles law firm to assist them in negotiations with the Upland Teachers Association.

The firm of Whitmore and Kay has been employed to represent the trustees in employment contract negotiations for a fee which has a $6,500 minimum and a $12,000 maximum, according to Acting Supt. Glenn W. Hardy.

There have been numerous meetings since negotiations were opened in July, Hardy said, but very little has been resolved at this point.

Hardy said the minimum fee for the law firm is based on 100 hours of service, with a fee of $65 per hour for each hour over that until the maximum fee is reached.

He added that the trustees had budgeted $10,000 for legal fees this year and all expenses above that will have to come from contingency funds.

The teachers have asked for a 10 per cent pay raise and the trustees have countered with a four per cent figure.

Is Brown playing Scrooge again?

SACRAMENTO (AP) — For the second year in a row, a state employe group says Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. is playing Scrooge at Christmas time.

Last Christmas, the California State Employes Association showed a caricature of Brown on its Christmas cards telling Santa Claus it was fine to wish everyone a merry Christmas and a happy New Year, "but is it reasonable? And who's going to pay for it?"

On Wednesday, the Clerical and Allied Service Employes (CASE) issued a press release urging Brown to declare Dec. 24 and Dec. 31 state holidays so 110,000 state workers could spend the days with their families.

Christmas and New Year's fall on Saturdays, and state law doesn't provide time off when a holiday falls on Saturday. If it falls on Sunday, state employes get Monday off.

Brown told reporters he'd give state workers an answer a month before Christmas.

CASE is distributing Christmas cards and suggesting that they be sent to Brown. They picture Brown as Scrooge telling a clerk, "Lower your expectations, Cratchit! Why should you expect a holiday, just because it's Christmas?"

The card includes this verse:

" 'Twas the day before Christmas, And all through the state, All the clericals were working, 'Cause Brown's a cheapskate."

Ontario City Council approves amended agreement on Expo pact

By MAE TATE
PB Staff Writer

The amended agreement of a contract with Expo '81 Corp. was finally approved by the Ontario City Council after considerable haggling over an attempt by the mayor to acquire any liquid assets or cash generated by the Expo '81 Corp.

The council action followed a lengthy meeting which ended Wednesday morning, hours before the Bureau of International Expositions gave its sanction to the Expo '81. President Ford's signature is still needed for final approval.

Tempers nearly flared between Mayor Paul Treadway and Expo '81 attorney, John Skoog, when the mayor tried to force an addition to the agreement that would arbitrarily cause the non-profit corporation to distribute its assets to the city by Dec. 31, 1986.

Although the council has only donated $10,000 on paper to the exposition, the mayor continued to push the asset point first raised during an Ontario Motor Speedway Corp. executive board meeting Monday. The OMS board refused to include the addition calling for the distribution of the assets to the city upon dissolution of Expo '81 Corp., saying such a decision was a function of the City Council. They agreed there would be objections to such an action by the council.

But during the council session, OMS board president George Mim Mack did not comment on the mayor's point.

Attorney Skoog said that Expo '81 had only asked for a mere 120 day extension of the agreement with the city and OMS board and agreed to clarification of the city's reversionary rights to the speedway. However, the corporation was faced now with two major revisions that would change the original agreement, the asset distribution question and the request to allocate funds now for the tearing down temporary structures at the speedway and funding the transition plan from exposition back to speedway.

Skoog said he could live with the language of most of the changes, particularly the inclusion of specific dates for performance of certain requirements. He suggested clearing the site be included in the master plan and a special committee to plan, coordinate and implement the transition be appointed on or before June 1, 1978 with the submission of the master plan.

He refused to agree to the funding question now, however, saying that "There is no way that a lien can be placed on the gate receipts before the revenue bonds. You're asking us to guarantee success. We can't do that . . . The success of the venture is that everything will be done, but problems can arise. It doesn't make sense to me to set up a promise at the end that impends you from doing what needs to be done at the beginning."

City Atty. Samuel Crowe agreed to the suggestion that the transition plan be included in the master plan. With a few other minor changes acceptable to both parties, Councilman Robert Abel moved for approval of the amended agreement.

Treadway insisted that there "will be some impositions, costs and burdens to house and accommodate an exposition of this size. Any assets that have accumulated during the exposition should be left with the city and not taken out.

"I don't feel that $10 or $20 million should be generated in Ontario and taken and spent in the City of Los Angeles when they won't even give a financial contribution. Any access funds should first come back to the City of Ontario rather than going to some foundation or some source outside of the city," Treadway said.

Skoog said that the assets would probably go the City of Ontario anyway, but "this is not the time or the place to bring it up." Treadway bit back, saying "When is the time and the place?

"We're gone quite a far afield. This is quite a difficult question at this time. It might be a prior lien on bondholders and bonds that haven't been issued yet. If you put us in a position of committing funds to other things before the bonds we won't be able to sell the bonds. And there won't be a fair."

Councilwoman Faye Dastrup, who voted against the original extension resolution Friday, said that she had disagreed with the longer extension but now felt that the agreement protected the city.

Treadway finally relented when Abel continued to refuse to amend his motion to include the asset distribution issue. The vote was unanimous.

PETITIONS FOR PARDON

Clutching a bunch of roses, 60-year-old Iva Toguri D'Aquino, convicted in 1949 for her World War II activities as Tokyo Rose, stands on the steps of the old San Francisco Federal building Wednesday with her attorney Wayne Collins. She is seeking a presidential pardon.

Tokyo Rose asks Ford for pardon

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Iva Toguri D'Aquino held a bouquet of red roses and stood on the steps of the old federal courthouse where she was convicted 27 years ago of treason as "Tokyo Rose."

"Age is creeping up on me and I'd like to finally get it all over with," the 60-year-old Japanese-American woman said Wednesday.

Then she mailed a petition asking the U.S. Justice Department and President Ford for a pardon that would restore her United States citizenship.

"I'd like my citizenship restored so the possibility of deportation can never be brought up again," said Mrs. Toguri, who prefers her given name.

She was convicted in 1949 of broadcasting anti-American propaganda from Japan to American GIs overseas during World War II.

She served 6½ years of a 10-year sentence and successfully resisted government efforts to deport her when she was released from prison. Two previous efforts to regain citizenship failed: a clemency request in 1954 during the Eisenhower administration and a pardon petition in 1968 during the Johnson administration.

The new three-page petition said her conviction was a miscarriage of justice and claimed government prosecutors, now deceased, knew some grand jury testimony against her was perjured.

The petition was written by attorney Wayne Collins, whose late father defended Mrs. Toguri in her trial. The pardon drive is also supported by the California Legislature and a number of leading political figures.

Mrs. Toguri said Wednesday she is hopeful of success. "I think the general climate in the country has changed, and I hope it has," she said.

Mrs. Toguri was a Los Angeles-born American citizen who was visiting a sick aunt in Japan when war broke out, and she was barred from leaving, according to a statement from the Japanese-American Citizens League, which is supporting her bid for a pardon.

Although 14 English-speaking women were hired by Japanese radio to broadcast to American soldiers, Mrs. Toguri was the only one to be prosecuted, the league said.

"American soldiers coined the name 'Tokyo Rose' and applied it to any and all women broadcasters heard on Japanese radio," the statement said.

The league said Mrs. Toguri used the name "Orphan Ann" in her broadcasts, written by three American POWs who told her she could help the American war effort by watering down and burlesquing Japanese propaganda.

"President Ford is now a lame duck President and politicially it wouldn't hurt him," said Edison Uno, one of the Japanese community leaders who presented the roses to Mrs. Toguri at a news conference Wednesday. "We are very optimistic and have paved the way behind the scenes."

In Washington, White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said the Justice Department had been notified that a request for a pardon had been mailed to the department's pardon attorney. He declined further comment.

Childless and separated from her husband, Mrs. Toguri now manages a family import store in Chicago.

Abuses at Camarillo

Nurse names names in Grand Jury testimony

VENTURA (AP) — Patients are undersupervised, too heavily medicated, sometimes choked, and tended by poorly trained employes at Camarillo State Hospital, says a nurse, blaming the hospital's management for concealing poor conditions.

In a startling departure from the testimony of most witnesses during an investigation of deaths at Camarillo, Linda Holder offered Wednesday to tell all she knew, naming names and specific details.

Admittedly nervous on the witness stand, the 13-year employe of Camarillo suddenly poured out a story that accused higher-ups, including acting medical director Dr. Martin Gish, of participating in a cover-up to deceive state inspectors.

Her testimony came during the second week of a public investigation by the Ventura County Grand Jury. The investigation resulted from a year-long probe of patient deaths at the hospital dating back to 1972. Investigators have called at least 55 deaths "suspicious."

The 32-year-old nurse said that when an inspection is due, "they find out what unit will be will visited. They put new pajamas on the patients, put new sheets on the bed, and call extra help from other units" to make it appear the hospital has adequate staff.

"They cover up the conditions that we have to work under," she said, adding that she had been recently directed to work alone on the admissions unit, which receives many violent patients.

In the past, Mrs. Holder continued, her complaints went unheeded and she was afraid to give her version to inspectors.

"I'm not afraid anymore," she said, though she added that administrators were having her transferred from the admissions unit to another part of the hospital.

Gish, speaking to reporters after Mrs. Holder's testimony, said of the cover-up allegations, "I think that's long past. I think that happened during Gov. Reagan's administration."

About understaffing, he said, "We wish it would be better. The people above us are working toward improving it."

Coincidentally, the American Civil Liberties Union submitted to the 16-member grand jury Wednesday a report calling Camarillo's management an "administrative nightmare."

The report said "(the administration) encourages and rewards staff members who look the other way when patients are abused or mistreated and punishes those who speak out when they see something wrong."

The statement, submitted by Ventura County ACLU chapter officer James Provenza, included several criticisms similar to those mentioned by Mrs. Holder.

The allegations included understaffing, an "absence of strong, decisive leadership," failure of hospital management to investigate suspicious deaths, and widespread over-medication of patients.

"We have found that patients at Camarillo State Hospital are systematically given large doses of drugs as a means of control rather than therapy," the ACLU report said.

It went on to say that prescriptions which can be given by nursing staff "as needed places the decision-making power over the use of these drugs in the hands of psychiatric technicians who are neither trained nor qualified to make such decisions."

Called as a witness in the Feb. 4 death of Thomas Riddle due to strangulation and a drug overdose, Mrs. Holder said she would not have given Riddle the multi-drug tranquilizing shot he received hours before his death.

She said that in the past she has refused to carry out orders she considered harmful to a patient, and that such action has resulted in "counseling" by supervisors and a label as a "trouble maker."

Overhaul 2-3-year process— Carter

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — President-elect Jimmy Carter's promised reorganization of the federal government will be carried out in a "very careful, deliberate process" over the next two to three years, a key Carter staff member says.

Carter discussed that proposed reorganization, the economy, and his dealing with the House and Senate in a three-hour meeting with Democratic congressional leaders Wednesday at Sen. Herman Talmadge's home at Lovejoy, Ga., about 40 miles south of Atlanta. He later received expressions of support from some of the legislators present.

Carter, who was repeatedly referred to as "Mr. President" at the meeting, said later he had asked the legislators to "direct me to make the executive branch more efficient."

Another topic was Carter's expressed desire to forge a bipartisan foreign policy. A Carter aide later said Carter will seek a meeting with Republican leaders to ask advice and "give them a feeling of participation without their feeling that they were being co-opted."

Carter told the Democratic legislators he wants Congress to re-enact the Hoover Reorganization Act which, before it expired last year, gave the president the authority to reorganize the federal government subject only to congressional veto.

A Carter aide said the president-elect told the group "again and again" that he has a commitment to the American people to reorganize the government. "I hope you'll accommodate me," he quoted Carter as saying.

Conditions even worse in nursing homes, says Brown

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. says problems plaguing state mental hospitals may be dwarfed by conditions in community board and care facilities.

"After we get through with the mental hospitals we are going to start looking at the board and care homes and other places in the community and we are going to find things that are even worse. It will be shocking," Brown said Wednesday.

The state mental hospital system has been rocked by a series of revelations in recent weeks that includes investigations into patients' deaths at Metropolitan State Hospital in Norwalk and Camarillo State Hospital in Ventura County.

Also, a medical inspection team withdrew accreditation from Napa State Hospital's psychiatric treatment wing after it found 42 regulation violations during a visit last July.

And disciplinary records show more than 200 employe offenses in the 11-hospital system in the last two years, including 28 cases described as "patient abuse."

In an informal press conference in his office, Brown would not specify what types of problems he expected to find in community care facilities, saying only that they would be the "kind of things you find in mental hospitals."

He referred to both board and care homes and community care facilities, but did not get more specific than that. Both nursing home-type facilities and local facilities for the mentally ill come under that description.

He also would not say if he had any specific information on poor care at at such local facilities. "I am just giving you my expectations," he said.

However, the state Health Department announced Wednesday that its inspectors have been making unannounced visits to nursing and board and care homes throughout the state for the past month.

Brown added, "I can tell you that when you have people who are poor and who are left out of society and have particular problems and then you have others take care of them and no one's watching over that whole process you have problems."

Brown said he didn't agree that his administration had moved too slowly to deal with problems at the mental hospitals or that he did not provide enough funding for hospital staffing.

"I don't know who would say that," he said. "Dr. Lackner (state Health Director Jerome Lackner) established the Office of Patients' Rights, which has begun to stir all this up.

"It was only after the patients' rights groups, the Health Department and the Little Hoover Commission and certain journalists in Southern California started getting into it that all of this started coming out."

He said 1,000 unfilled positions at the hospitals — not a lack of funding — was responsible for any staffing shortages.

Body of missing boy, 4, found

TEN SLEEP, Wyo. (AP) — A month-long vigil by the parents of 4-year-old Ronnie Rea, who was unable to speak and was legally blind without glasses, has ended with the discovery of his decomposed body.

The boy's disappearance on Oct. 11 had baffled searchers.

Ward pleads guilty to lesser charge

The second of seven wards charged with attacking security guards at the Youth Training School in Chino Sept. 21 has pleaded guilty to a lesser charge under the terms of a plea bargain in Chino Municipal Court.

YTS ward Everett Washington, 21, originally charged with assault with a deadly weapon on a peace officer while in prison, pleaded guilty to the lesser charge of assault by means of force likely to cause great bodily injury to YTS guard Gary Cauble.

The greater charge was dismissed under the terms of the plea bargain by Judge Philip Schaefer.

Last week YTS ward Jordan Flagg, the alleged precipitator of the riot that seriously injured Cauble and a second guard and touched off an escape by 12 inmates, pleaded guilty to two counts of assault with a deadly weapon. The five remaining YTS wards charged in the incident began their preliminary hearings Wednesday afternoon.

Judge Schaefer ordered Washington to appear in Superior Court for probation reports and sentencing on or before Dec. 8.

'Package with care' suggests postmaster

Ontario Postmaster Charles F. Linck Jr. is encouraging mailers to "package with care" this year.

"Customers who follow our fundamental packaging procedures will be more assured that their gifts will arrive in time for Christmas and, most of all in good condition" he added.

The ABC's for packaging Christmas gifts for mailing follow.

—Fragile items can damage each other within the same package if they are not individually cushioned and separated by fiberboard strips. Newspaper or similar materials provide good cushioning.

—Textile products need a sturdy container because they offer little support to the box. If the outer corrugated container is too large, it can easily be trimmed to size by slitting the four corners as needed.

—Sturdy hardware items such as electric knives deserve good packaging, too. The light paperboard box in which such goods are sold was never intended to be a shipping container. Always place the display container within a sturdy corrugated box. Cushioning can be crumpled newspaper or similar materials.

All packages intended for mailing should be sealed with reinforced tape, said Linck. Customers also are reminded to only put the address on one side of the outer carton. However, a supplemental address card may be placed inside to assure delivery if the outer address becomes illegible.

The Chino Community Blood Bank will be operated today from 4 to 6:30 p.m. in the multipurpose room of Gird Elementary School on Riverside Drive in Chino.

The community is seeking at least 20 pints of blood to re-establish its blood replacement program for residents of Chino.

The Chino School District is supporting the drive in an effort to replace blood donated to Jasna Lisak, a teacher at Ramona Junior High School and patient at City of Hope, and Steven Perry, a Glenmeade School kindergarten student who has received 16 pints of blood at Orange County Childrens Hospital.

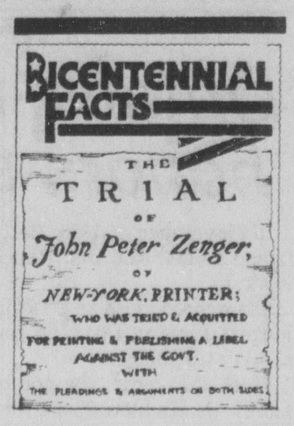
Additional information may be obtained by calling Marilyn Brantley, 628-1201, or 627-2504 after 5 p.m.

Mouse club leader dies

LOS ANGELES (AP)— Private funeral services will be held for Joseph "Roy" Williams, one of the leaders of Walt Disney's "The Mickey Mouse Club."

Williams died Sunday at his home in Burbank. He was reported to be recovering from a recent heart attack.

Williams worked for Disney for 39 years as an art director and consultant. He designed the "Mousketeers" hat, the now-famous symbol of Disneyland and Disney productions.



The trial of John Peter Zenger, said Gouverneur Morris, was "the morning star of that liberty which subsequently revolutionized America." In 1734 Zenger, publisher of the New York Journal, was charged with seditious libel.

But the appeal of the distinguished Andrew Hamilton for "the Liberty — both of exposing and opposing arbitrary Power . . . by speaking and writing the Truth" brought a swift acquittal.

Pomona boy hurt when hit by car

A 6-year-old Pomona boy was injured late Tuesday afternoon when he was hit by a car while he was enroute to school.

The victim, Tomas Rodriguez, of 2289 Orange Grove Ave., was struck when he suddenly ran into Glen Avenue north of Arroyo Avenue from in front of a parked car, police reported. The child was taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital where he was treated and transferred to County-USC Medical Center. His condition was termed fair there Wednesday. Tomas suffered a broken leg, a broken nose, facial injuries and a cut scalp.

The driver, Ethel Bowen, 55, of Pomona, said she was northbound when the child darted into the path of her car and she could not avoid him.

Mother sues over death of scout

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A $500,000 damage suit has been filed by the mother of a 17-year-old explorer scout who was killed in the accidental discharge of a gun being cleaned by a police officer.

Mrs. Bertha Howard filed the suit against both the police officer, Gregory Graham, and the city, contending that the death of her son, John, was the result of negligence.

Business symposium scheduled

The valley's business and industrial leaders concluded a two-day career symposium Wednesday on the Mt. San Antonio College campus.

High school principals, vocational education directors and counselors were given a first hand picture of business and employment conditions in the Southland by experts in retail sales, banking, manufacturing, technical fields, landscaping, public service and others.

It was the 10th straight year that the college cosponsored the symposium along with Citrus College and the Foothill chapter of the California Industry Education Council.

Complaints against debt collectors are being dealt with

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A new regulatory code aimed at reducing what has become a record volume of complaints against debt collection agencies is nearing completion, a state official says.

Douglas Faigin, chief of the State Bureau of Collection and Investigative Services which licenses and regulates collection agencies, said a public hearing here this week was the fifth and final hearing on the proposed rules.

Faigin said the revised code would include provisions that would:

—Restrict collector contact with a debtor's employer.

—Provide remedies if collector contact with a debtor at work endangers the debtor's job.

—Require all written forms demanding money from a debtor be reviewed by the state bureau.

—Prohibit collectors from making representations that are false and made for the purpose of harassment.

Faigin said the 1,963 complaints made against California collection agencies' practices in the last fiscal year "amounted to a 41 per cent rise in just three years."

He said only 19 per cent of the complaints checked out as unjustified, and an additional 13 per cent were against unlicensed collection agencies.

Alicia Cortez

Chino names future school

A future elementary school in Chino will be named for Alicia Cortez, the first Latin teacher in the district and wife of former mayor Zeke Cortez.

The Chino school board, on a 3-2 vote, has decided to name the proposed school on the Magnolia Avenue site for Mrs. Cortez.

Mrs. Cortez taught in the district from 1936 to 1940 at the old D Street School. She later became a substitute teacher at other schools.

A native of Chino, Mrs. Cortez graduated from Chino High School. She was the recipient of the Rotary Club's Citizen of the Year award several years ago, and she has been active in the Sister City Committee and League of Women Voters. She was a founder of Chino Council of Social Services.

Board member Augustine Tapia moved to name the school for Mrs. Cortez, and he was supported by Lyle Briggs and Paul Peterson. Opposing the motion were Board President Al McCombs and Pete Vander Poel.

Two other names had been offered by other board members, said Tapia. Those included Levi Dickey, former superintendent of schools, and Willora Williams, former district administrator.

Both McCombs and Vander Poel argued it was not good policy to name a school after a person who was still living, such as Mrs. Cortez. "Someone who is alive might go out and shoot a person tomorrow," McCombs noted. "Then where are you?"

Tapia contended the board named the Chino High gym after ex-basketball coach Frank Elder two years ago. Elder is still living.

"How come when I make a recommendation (of Mrs. Cortez), all of a sudden Pete (Vander Poel) wants a ew policy on naming schools?" asked Tapia.

He is a Diplomate, American Board of Anesthesiology, Fellow of the American College of Anesthesiologists and the American College of Legal Medicine, member of the American College of Physicians and numerous professional associations. Lasker Award winners announced

NEW YORK (AP) — The World Health Organization and the first woman to get an Albert Lasker Basic Medical Research Award were among the 1976 Lasker Award winners announced Wednesday.

They were joined by two scientists involved in the development of a "milestone" drug used against severe high blood pressure and heart disease. The Lasker Awards are given to honor medical, biological or clinical work that leads to significant lessening of a major cause of disability or death. Since the Lasker Awards were established in 1944, 25 Lasker winners later became Nobel Prize winners.

The winners, named by Mrs. Albert D. Lasker, president of the Albert and Mary Lasker Foundation, are:

—Dr. Rosalyn S. Yalow, a nuclear physicist and senior medical investigator, Veterans Administration, New York, the $10,000 Basic Medical Research Award for discovering and developing the technique of radioimmunoassay for measuring concentrations of substances such as hormones, viruses and drugs.

—The World Health Organization, awarded the $10,000 Special Albert Lasker Public Health Service Award, for "its historic achievement in the imminent eradication of smallpox — the first and only disease ever to be eradicated from the earth." There are only a few known cases of smallpox in the world today.

The award was accepted by Dr. Halfdan Mahler, director-general of WHO, and Dr. Donald A. Henderson, chief of the Smallpox Eradication Unit, Geneva. They said the U.S. Center for Disease Control, Atlanta, contributed to the effort.

—Dr. Raymond P. Ahlquist, professor and chairman, department of pharmacology, Medical College of Georgia, Augusta, and Dr. J. W. Black, professor and head of the department of pharmacology, University College of London, England, share the $10,000 Clinical Medical Research Award.

Dr. Ahlquist won for his concept of receptors or "receiving stations" for hormonal messages in the cardiovascular system. Dr. Black, using that concept, designed a drug, propranolol or Inderal, which the Lasker awards jury called "one of the most important drugs of the century," for severe high blood pressure and heart disease.

Dr. Yalow, who also is distinguished service professor at the Mount Sinai School of Medicine, conducted her work in collaboration with the late Dr. Solomon A. Berson, her associate from 1950 until his death in 1972. The awards will be presented at a luncheon on Friday at the St. Regis Hotel. The chairman of the awards jury is Dr. Michael E. DeBakey, the heart surgeon, who is president and chief executive officer of the Baylor College of Medicine, Texas Medical Center, Houston.

Casino take 11% higher

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — Nevada casinos won nearly $352 million during summer months this year — an 11 per cent increase over the same period a year ago.

The Nevada Gaming Commission said that the take in taxable gross revenues during July, August and September was about $35 million higher than the sum taken in the same period a year before.

Phil Hannifin, chairman of the state Gaming Control Board said the revenues ran about what the state had anticipated.

The winnings by the casinos during the third quarter of calendar 1976 meant more than $18 million in taxes for the state. That's a $2 million increase over the tax take netted during the same period in 1975.

The quarterly figures show that clubs in the Las Vegas area grossed more than $223 million, for an increase of nearly 12 per cent over the same quarter last year.

The figures also showed clubs in the Reno-North Tahoe area with winnings up 13 per cent.

ALL IN A ROW — A worker at PPG Industries in Creighton, Pa., inspects auto windshields with "pigtails" of built-in radio antennas. The antenna windshield, sporting nearly invisible wires embedded in a plastic layer between two glass plies, is an option to exterior antennas because it offers more safeguards against vandalism.

Brown administration's delay cost state?

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California lost several hundred thousand dollars in interest this year because the Brown administration delayed applying for up to $50 million in available federal highway funds, the Sacramento Union reported.

State Transportation Director Adriana Gianturco has since applied for the funds.

But the Union said Ms. Gianturco decided not to apply for the money in June after being told by a top aide that the funds might raise questions about how much Caltrans needed, in light of its existing surplus.

That $185-million surplus as of June 30 prompted criticism of the Brown administration from advocates of more freeway building.

No proof was offered that the size of the Caltrans surplus influenced Ms. Gianturco's decision not to apply for the federal money in June.

The newspaper said Ms. Gianturco, an appointee of Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., decided in late June not to apply for $40 million to $50 million in federal funds that were due the state from a recomputation of past federal aid projects.

Robert Adams, Ms. Gianturco's assistant for financial management, said the aid application was delayed until a six-year highway plan was adopted.

"We consciously held the decision up until we had the long-range program," Adams said.

The pro-freeway state Transportation Commission and Ms. Gianturco's department have adopted rival long-range plans.

BIGMOUTH — Waikiki Aquarium director Leighton Taylor, right, and assistant Ralph Alexander pry open the jaws of what is thought to be a new species of shark. The 1,500-pound shark was hauled up from the Pacific Ocean near Oahu, in the Hawaiian Islands, earlier this week, entangled in the anchor lines of a Navy research ship.

Government finding

Long-term jobless are not chiselers

WASHINGTON (AP) — New government studies suggest that the long-term unemployed are unable to find jobs and are not chiselers who "ride with the system" at government expense.

The studies — one by the Labor Department and another prepared for the government by a private firm — show that the overwhelming majority of those who had exhausted their jobless benefits were still unemployed a year after the benefits ended.

Roger Rossi, who heads the department's unemployment insurance research division, said the studies provide the first information about who the longterm unemployed are and what happens to them.

The findings tend to rebut arguments by some economists and politicians that unemployment benefits discourage people from looking for work and that those who use up their benefits either quickly get jobs or drop out of the labor market.

The findings also could be important to the incoming Carter administration, which will have to decide early next year whether to recommend continuation of the emergency jobless aid program.

That program, which provides an extra 26 weeks of federal aid — for a total of 65 weeks — to persons who have used up their 39 weeks of regular and extended state-federal benefits, expires in March.

Labor Department figures show that more than 2.7 million Americans exhausted their benefits from January 1975 through last July. The latest figures show there were 7.6 million persons out of work but seeking it in October. This was a joblesss rate of 7.9 per cent.

Because the government does not keep track of individuals who are no longer entitled to benefits, no figures are available on the actual number of these people who found jobs or dropped out of the labor force. However, the two surveys indicate most were still looking for work several weeks after their benefits ran out.

The department found in a four-state sampling that 80 per cent of those surveyed were still in the labor force two months after their benefits ran out, but only 16 per cent found jobs.

The other survey, based on interviews in four major cities by Mathematica Policy Research of Princeton, N.J., showed that about 25 per cent of the "exhaustees" were working within four months after benefits stopped and that only 36 per cent found jobs after one year.

"The low re-employment rate and the low incidence of labor force withdrawal shortly after exhaustion do not support the hypothesis that long-term beneficiaries 'ride with the system' and then immediately take jobs or leave the labor force," the department report says.

The surveys found that despite federal law banning age discrimination in employment, about 70 per cent of the exhaustees "were beyond the prime working years, that is, 45 years of age or older."

Young white males had the highest re-employment rates, the studies showed. For those who found jobs after benefits ran out, the surveys found their wages averaged $19 a week less than on their previous job.

The Labor Department study was based on surveys in California, Missouri, Nevada, New York and Wisconsin. The Mathematica survey involved samples taken in Atlanta, Baltimore, Chicago and Seattle.

REUNITED AFTER 41 YEARS — It was a tearful reunion at the Orlando, Fla., airport for four sisters who were separated after their mother was declared unfit in 1935. Mrs. Dorothy Wiley, left, is welcomed at the airport by her sisters, Mrs. Agnes Wagner, Winter Haven; Mrs. Olier Mowery, Auburndale, and Mrs. Carolyn McIntire, Miami.

Nutrition, dental health ideas: more quackery than truth?

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—A California educator believes certain proposed new concepts about nutrition and dental health are closer to quackery than the truth.

"To me, it's irresponsible for a scientist to make an experimental animal out of somebody by overselling them," said Dr. William T. Jarvis, assistant professor of dentistry at Loma Linda University.

Jarvis told a convention of the American Dental Association that many well-meaning but misguided people, some of them prominent in the dental profession, are promoting ideas which have previously been identifiable only as "nutritional quackery."

Jarvis used sugar as an example.

"They seem to have to convince the patient that just the fact that its bad on their teeth isn't enough, they have to convince them it's going to kill them," Jarvis explained.

When persons using such overkill tactics to achieve their goals are questioned by the scientific community, they usually resort to blasting the government regulators or the medical profession as being corrupt, Jarvis said.

"Because they don't have the scientific evidence, all they can do is impune the opposition. So the effect of this is to undermine the public's confidence . . . whether it be health care, the food supply, government watchdogs, the regulators, and this creates an image in the mind of the patient. 'I can't trust my doctor, I can't trust the government,' and of course in America we have enough paranoia as it is," Jarvis said.

Jarvis said many health food supporters suggest honey as an alternative to sugar as a sweetner. He said honey is just as bad as sugar.

Prevention needs to be sold as a practical method in private practice.

Despite claims by some nutritionists and health food experts that today's food is the source of practically all dental and medical problems because of over-processing, devitalization, soil depletion and other reasons, Jarvis said food today is "probably better" than it has ever been.

The student counted his winners before playing to trick one. There were eight top-card tricks and just one extra club trick would give him game and rubber.

He ducked the first heart on general principles, but had to win the second in dummy. Then he cashed dummy's queen of clubs, led a second club toward his hand and went up with his king. West dropped a low diamond and the student's fourth club trick had gone into limbo. Five minutes later the opponents had chalked up 100 points above the line.

"Wasn't I unlucky?" asked the student.

"Yes, you were," replied the Professor. "But you made your own bad luck. You only needed four club tricks. Once East followed to the second club you could be sure of four club tricks by simply finessing the ten spot.

"Your play of the king would have been correct if you had needed five club tricks, but you only needed four and should have taken the safety play to insure yourself against the actual club break."

Nuclear plant water supply given okay

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The state Public Utilities Commission has approved the environmental impact for a water supply proposed for a new nuclear power plant, another step toward clearing the way for construction of the plant southwest of Blythe.

The plant would be built and run by the San Diego Gas & Electric Co.

The PUC action Tuesday applies only to the proposed plant's water supply and not to the plant as a whole, a PUC spokesman noted. But it does mean the utility can seek approval of water supply agreements.

San Diego Gas proposed to build two units at the site, one to be operative in 1984 and the other in 1986.

Economic growth in valley continues

A 23% rise over 1975; much higher than average SoCal figure

By ED PRATHER
PB Staff Writer

Substantial economic growth continued in the valley cities during the second quarter of the year, according to taxable sales figures released this week by the State Board of Equalization.

Total taxable sales for the quarter in the nine valley cities was $251,627,000, compared to $204,451,000 for the same period in 1975.

That represents a growth of 23.0 per cent, which is well in advance of the Southern California average of 13.7 per cent and the statewide average of 13.9 per cent.

The continued housing boom and the recovery of the auto industry were leading factors in the growth both locally and statewide.

In Pomona, for instance, auto dealers and stores sold more than $14 million in merchandise during the three month period.

Housing starts and sales all over the valley not only increased sales of building materials, but also spilled over into the other retail categories as well, such as furniture, as new residents set up housekeeping.

Statewide there were authorizations for 55,000 new residential units during the quarter, which is 50 per cent higher than a year earlier.

Through the first two quarters of the year the rate of new housing construction, if continued through the year, would result in about 196,000 new homes and apartment units being built.

While housing and car sales enjoyed big gains, they were not alone as mobile home trailer sales also spurted, up 36.9 per cent in California.

Service stations also showed considerable growth, 12.2 per cent, as Californians returned to their old pre-gas shortage ways and purchased an all time record 2.74 billion gallons of gas during the quarter. The previous record was 2.69 billion set in the third quarter of 1973.

Figures for individual cities in the valley were:

—Pomona $92,893,000, up 18.1 per cent from $78,597,000 and a 36.9 per cent share of the valley market.

—Ontario $49,697,000, up 29 per cent from $38,500,000 with a 19.7 per cent share of the valley total.

—Montclair $43,391,000, up 20.5 per cent from $36,000,000 with a 17.2 per cent of the valley market.

—Upland $25,317,000, up 29.1 per cent from $19,605,000 with a 10 per cent portion of the valley total.

—Chino $16,319,000, up 28.5 per cent from $12,698,000 for a 6.4 per cent share of the valley market.

—Claremont $9,978,000, up 24.9 per cent from $7,986,000 for a 3.9 per cent share of the valley market.

—La Verne $7,017,000, up 33.3 per cent from $5,262,000 for 2.7 per cent of the valley market.

—San Dimas $6,224,000, up 21.3 per cent from $5,131,000 for a 2.4 per cent share of the valley total.

—Walnut $791,000, up 3.6 per cent from $762,000 for a .3 per cent share of the valley market.

Cities in the valley receive one penny on the dollar through sales taxes collected by the state.

Claremonters push for peak pricing, surcharge on water

By GEORGE MacLAREN
PB Staff Writer

Claremont residents and city officials ignored terms such as step increases and rates of return and pushed for peak pricing and pumping surcharges Wednesday before a Public Utilities Commission examiner at Claremont city hall.

PUC Examiner John Gillanders flew from San Francisco to hold a public hearing and receive testimony for and against the Southern California Water Co.'s requests for rate increases of 9.34 per cent this year and step increases of 1.3 per cent in 1978 and 1979, and a rate of return of 15 per cent to the common stockholder. No decision was made.

Claremont City Manager Norman King, speaking for the City Council, requested that the water firm establish a surcharge on all or a portion of the water used at peak periods during the year, specifically during the four or five months when the largest volume of imported water is used.

King estimated that 70 per cent of the water used by Claremonters is well water, and that it would be in the interest of Claremont customers to discourage water use at peak periods.

King explained that his request is justified because peak pricing or a peaking surcharge more accurately will relate the cost of service to the revenue received.

King also asked that the utility set a pumping surcharge on water used in a specific pressure zone or combination of zones in Claremont.

Of about eight pressure zones in Claremont, five are north of the Thompson Creek Flood Control Channel, King explained.

King said that the areas north of the channel have no indigenous supply of water, and all water used must be boosted from the flatland.

"Because the cost of pumping is increasingly a greater portion of the delivered price of water, it is reasonable to establish differential rate zones," King testified.

He said that consumers in each rate zone would pay a pumping surcharge equal to the estimated cost of pumping the water into that zone.

King asked that the water company study the concepts, and if they are found reasonable, to implement them at once.

W. V. Caveney, senior vice-president of the water company, agreed that it would be incumbent upon the company to study the concepts, and that the staff could do that within six months.

Early in the hearing, examiner Gillanders chastized the firm for not filing with the PUC reports ordered when the PUC granted the firm's last rate increase in 1974.

Stays in Chaffey High District

O-M Elementary District won't pull out

By CONRAD CASLER
PB Correspondent

Pullout of Ontario-Montclair Elementary School District from Chaffey High School District is a dead issue today.

San Bernardino County's Commission on School Organization killed the proposal Wednesday night at a public meeting in Chaffey High School auditorium.

After two hours of pro and con testimony which produced no verbal fireworks among professional educators and taxpayers on both sides, the 11-man commission headed by rancher-housewife Mrs. Dortha Cooley killed the measure in a unanimous vote.

Supt. Jack Jones of Ontario-Montclair District, said his board of trustees probably will not appeal the decision nor file a new petition "within the near future." An Ontario-Montclair citizens study group recommended the unification action last spring.

G.A. Chalfant, president of the Chaffey board of trustees, said the vote pleased him. Chaffey trustees voted in August to oppose the proposal by Ontario-Montclair to pull out of the Chaffey district and form a kindergarten through 12th grade school system of about 23,000 pupils, taking with them Chaffey, Ontario, Montclair high schools plus the district's only continuation school.

This would have left the balance of the district with almost as many pupils with only two high schools — Upland and Alta Loma. Both of those schools are already overcrowded with almost 800 surplus Alta Loma High School students bused to other district high schools now.

Negative vote by the school reorganization commission means the nine grade school districts now feeding Chaffey High School District will remain intact. They include Alta Loma, Central, Cucamonga, Etiwanda, Guasti, Mt. Baldy, Mountain View, Ontario-Montclair and Upland.

Chaffey District taxpayers have voted down bond proposals to build a new high school in the rapidly growing Upland-Alta Loma-Cucamonga area since 1963.

Handbills hinder negotiations in Bonita

By BOB SWETNAM
PB Staff Writer

Controversial handbills recently distributed door-to-door by teachers in the Bonita Unified School District have apparently led to a slowdown in salary negotiations between teachers and district administrators.

The handbills, which express the concern of teachers for a fair and equitable solution to contract negotiations, have been termed by Bonita School Supt. James Johnson as a "propoganda flyer" and "hitpiece."

Johnson at a board of education meeting Wednesday night called the teachers' handbills "confusing and misleading.

"This flyer was circulated unsigned and undated," said Johnson. "The distribution of it was in direct opposition to the Bonita Unified Teacher Association (BUTA) president's request that all negotiations be held at the bargaining table.

"Since the names, addresses, and telephone numbers of school board members were printed on the handbills, it led a number of persons to believe the flyer had been prepared and distributed by the board."

Johnson, who in the past has been critical of the California Teachers Association (CTA), the umbrella organization for the BUTA, for encouraging teacher groups to use public opinion as a tool in salary negotiations, told BUTA President Robert Shears, "I think we could do better if we tried to enlighten people rather than confuse them."

In a statement to the board, Shears defended the BUTA's use of the handbills. "We make no apology for our use of the flyer. It was never intended as a 'hitpiece' such as the superintendent implied. In fact it was a model of restraint and objectivity," he said.

"We discovered that many voters in the community were not even aware that negotiations were taking place and that little progress was being made. The issues certainly need publicity and explanation," he told the board.

Primarily, disagreement between the teachers and the administration centers on the issue of salary and class sizes.

The administration claims the teachers salary demands would cost taxpayers an additional $3 million in taxes if accepted in their present form.

"We just don't have that kind of money," said Johnson, "and where the BUTA thinks we're going to get it is beyond me."

Shears, however, believes the teachers' request would cost only $1.5 million.

"We are looking for a reasonable and equitable contract and the administration knows that," said Shears. "When we say reasonable we are obviously referring to what is reasonable within the financial constraints that apply."

So far, teachers have been offered a two per cent raise in salaries. Apparently they are seeking a raise in the neighborhood of five to six per cent.

Representatives from both sides today will meet for the 26th time in an attempt to hammer out a settlement.

Benefit marathon race slated Friday at Grand Prix course

The Grand Prix Driving Course in Pomona will be the setting for a 600-lap, 24-hour marathon race starting at 7 p.m. Friday.

The marathon, supported by widely known race drivers and entertainment personalities, will benefit the Help Them Walk Again Foundation.

The foundation is dedicated to the research and rehabilitation of spinal injuries, stroke and central nervous system disorders.

Teams will drive the course 600 times, at a cost per team of $1.50 per lap. Sponsors of the marathon are seeking team supporters from the community and business firms.

In case of rain, the event will be held on Nov. 26 and 27.

The activities at the Grand Prix Course will include entertainment by Les Brown Jr., Ricky Nelson, Bill Dana and the Ontario 500 queen and her court. Live music will be presented during the event and prizes will be awarded.

The Help Them Walk Again Foundation was organized last spring in Las Vegas, Nev. The national chairman is Mrs. JoAnne Toadvine, the mother of a paraplegic child.

Since its founding, the organization has already established chapters in 29 states.

"The public must be made aware of the increasing epidemic of paralysis and spinal injuries that have confined more than 250,000 young people to wheelchairs or beds due to accidents that damaged their spinal cord or central nervous system," Mrs. Toadvine said.

"Researchers now feel thay are close to developing some methods of spinal regeneration, possibly even cure in some cases," the chairman said.

"Research has been neglected because it was thought that no cure was possible and because no funds were available."

The foundation is operated entirely by volunteers and all funds collected at the marathon will be used for research.

Two Pomonans hurt in two-car crash

A couple riding double on a motorcycle was injured Wednesday night when their bike hit a car after running a stop sign at Mountain and Bonita avenues in Claremont, police reported.

The pair was southbound in Mountain when they entered the intersection and collided with the car. The driver of the motorcycle, Thomas E. McFadden, 21, of Pomona, told police that the vehicle's brakes failed. Both he and his passenger, Kathleen Becker, 17, of Claremont, were taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital where Miss Becker was reported in good condition today. McFadden later was transferred to County-USC Medical Center where his condition was said to be "fair."

The driver of the car was Pamela R. Tucker, 16, of Claremont, who was westbound.

Upland man crossing Foothill hit by car

A 20-year-old Upland man crossing Foothill Boulevard west of San Antonio Avenue in Upland was injured Wednesday evening after being struck by a small foreign car.

Brian Douglas Beckerof 759 Birch Ave., was treated for multiple injuries at San Antonio Community Hospital and later released.

Also injured in the accident was the car's driver, Frederick Hal Draper, 28, 88 W. Ninth St., Upland.

Police said Becker was thrown against the car's front windshield injuring the driver.

Draper said he would seek his own medical care.

Thanks for a job well done

In handing President Gerald Ford the narrowest of defeats on Nov. 2, the American people have paid him high tribute.

It was Rep. Gerald Ford who, in 1974, assured his colleagues that should he somehow inherit the presidency he had no ambitions to run for the office in his own right in 1976.

Few expected to hold him to that promise, if it was a promise — nor was it a condition of his appointment to the vice presidency. But in defeat, Gerald Ford at least has the consolation of knowing that, against all the odds, he very nearly won election to an office that in his 30 years as a congressman he never dreamed of seeking.

He has much more than that to console him, of course.

If all the commentators agree on one thing about Gerald Ford, it is that he was the right man in the right place at the right time. Whatever his want of brilliance as a national and world leader, his calm administration and the personal respect and trust he commanded carried the nation successfully over one of the most crucial periods in its history.

That judgment might have been vastly different four years from now, however, had candidate Ford won the election — and only a few votes in a few key states would have done it.

Taking office next January in an uncertain and worsening economic climate, lacking any dramatic new plans for attacking the nation's problems and without any power base in an overwhelmingly Democratic Congress to support those plans if he had them, the Ford Administration might well have foundered and drifted for four years — and with it the nation.

America needs more than a caretaker president in the immediate years ahead, and the American people in their collective wisdom decided at the polls on Nov. 2 that for all their doubts about Jimmy Carter, he was the candidate who offered the greatest hope of providing the kind of leadership the highest office in the land must provide.

But this is no rebuff to Gerald Ford. If he is no Lincoln, neither is he a Herbert Hoover, a man overwhelmed by events and turned out of office as unequal to the challenges of the times. Mr. Ford's narrow defeat was high tribute, and a tremendous expression of thanks from his fellow citizens for a job well done.

Gerald Ford will certainly never be remembered as one of our great presidents. But the passage of years can only add luster to his name and a deeper appreciation of the yeoman service he rendered the nation during his brief interim administration between Watergate and the Carter era.

It's all right, Ma

They may call her "Ma Bell" but she's no women's libber — not when it comes to separate telephone book listings for husbands and wives.

It seems that a growing number of people are complaining about the Bell System's policy, which is general throughout the country, of imposing an extra charge for a separate listing, or not offering double listings like "John and Mary Doe."

It's unfair, says one Long Island, N. Y., woman because "it puts pressure on one of the persons in the marriage to submerge his or her identity." She and her husband have taken their complaint to the New York Public Service Commission.

The telephone company argues that granting a free separate listing to each husband and wife would increase the cost of its directory "substantially" and that the cost would have to be borne by all subscribers.

We hate to place ourselves in the position of supporting a monopoly, but in this case our sympathies are with the company. If it's important to a spouse to have his or her "identity" in the telephone book, then he or she ought to be willing to cough up the modest charge (about a buck a month) to defray the cost.

The public forum

The fundamental school

Dear Editor:

At a recent meeting, the Chino school board discussed the fundamental school once again. Although it has postponed the implementation of the fundamental school at this time, Citizens for Improved Education applauds trustee Lyle Briggs for his continued support of such a school and for his motion to form a new committee, one composed entirely of people who are sincerely interested in basic education and which will present to the board a workable plan for a fundamental school.

CIE recognizes that there are problems in our district and we want to do something about them as far as our own children are concerned. We identify the No. 1 problem as poor education. We do not intend this statement to be an attack on any teacher's ability, nor intend it to be disloyal to the district. We merely put our dedication to better education for our children above any ego situation.

Chino Unified School District tested last year at the 23 percentile. We feel that identifies the No. 1 problem. We do, however, remind the reader that we are speaking only for those who are NOT satisfied with 23. Those who are satisfied with the 23 percentile for their children have reached their goal. We have not. Those of us who want a fundamental school want our children to test at the 70-80 percentile.

The No. 2 problem we identify as poor citizenship. Citizenship we define as discipline, manners, and moral training, anything that would demand our children to respect the rights of others, and their own responsibilities both to others and to themselves.

We hear the constant complaint "parents do not care". When parents walk the rain soaked streets in one week to get 735 petitions for a fundamental school, they do care. These parents aren't seeking formation of a social organization. They care about their children. Twenty-three percentile is not excellent and acceptable to them. When vitally interested parents and teachers volunteer their time to devise a fundamental school for volunteer parents, they care. Those who say we have a fundamental school already, reveal their lack of understanding of a fundamental school.

CIE wants to re-enthrone the professionalism of the teaching field together with the dignity of caring parents to achieve better education for those who volunteer for a fundamental school. Since the parents of 1,400 students showed an interest in a school such as this, we pledge our continued support to see that one is established in Chino.

Justice blind to CIA crime

WASHINGTON — For over 20 years, the Justice Dept. has been winking at crimes committed by employees of the Central Intelligence Agency. Even serious crimes and felonies unrelated to official duties have been ignored.

This is the conclusion of a still secret report compiled by the House Government Information and Individual Rights subcommittee. The congressional investigators were so shocked by the Justice Dept.'s leniency that they recommended a "Special Prosecutor be appointed to prosecute illegal activities of intelligence agency personnel."

An independent prosecutor is needed, the report bluntly states, because the Justice Dept. has failed to move even in instances where there were "widespread admissions" of criminal activity and "the illegalities by the intelligence personnel (were) unrelated to their job activities."

"The Justice Department has assisted in setting the CIA above the law," the report continues, "by allowing the CIA to decide which cases would be too sensitive to prosecute, and by allowing the CIA to withhold whatever information it sees fit . . ."

The Justice Dept.'s softness on the CIA dates from a 1954 agreement between the two agencies which, in effect, gave the CIA the right to block a prosecution or keep a crime secret in the name of "national security."

A year later, Congress passed a law requiring government agency heads to report the illegal activities of their employees to the Justice Dept. The CIA, however, has rarely complied.

"Given the CIA's self interest," states the congressional report, "it is not surprising that the CIA chose to permit the prosecution of but very few cases and found much of its (illegalities) too sensitive to reveal."

Between 1954 and 1974, according to CIA files obtained by the subcommittee, there were at least 31 cases involving possible federal crimes committed by CIA personnel. None of these incidents involved acts authorized by the CIA and none were related to official duties. Crimes that may have been committed while executing officially sanctioned activities such as wiretaps and break-ins were excluded from the statistics.

The crimes included narcotics smuggling, embezzlement, theft of government funds, impersonation of a military officer, espionage and black-marketing.

Of the 31 possible crimes, only 14 were referred to Justice by the CIA and only two agency employees were actually brought to trial. Some of the cases called to the attention of the Justice Dept. were later dropped at the CIA's urging, ostensibly because sensitive information would have to be revealed during discovery or trial.

In one glaring example, the Justice Dept. was forced to drop a case against an alleged opium smuggler because of the CIA's steadfast refusal to cooperate.

Puttaporn Khramkhruan, a CIA operative from Thailand, was indicted in 1973 for illegally importing 25 kilos of raw opium into the United States. At first, the CIA's associate general counsel, John K. Greaney, promised he would cooperate fully with the U.S. attorney who was prosecuting the case. When it came time to release CIA documents, however, Greaney executed an abrupt about-face and even refused to allow a federal judge to examine them.

The U.S. attorney appealed to the Justice Dept. for an order that would force the CIA to cough up the documents. Without even asking for a cursory examination of the papers in question, Justice backed the CIA.

In later testimony before the congressional subcommittee, Greaney explained that he had changed his mind about cooperating in the prosecution because it would embarrass the CIA if one of its operatives were found guilty of smuggling opium. Furthermore, he claimed, exposure of the documents would reveal some of the CIA's sources and methods of operation in Southeast Asia.

"The behavior of CIA officials in this case," concluded the congressional investigators, "indicates that they still believe that the agency and its employees are above the criminal law . . . Additionally, this case illustrates that the CIA interprets 'national security' with undue breadth . . . Risking political embarrassment of the CIA is not and should not be deemed synonymous with risking the security of the United States."

For its part, the Justice Dept. had been "puzzlingly neglectful and inept" and may "have assisted in a cover-up of CIA participation in Southeastern Asian drug traffic."

Think on these things

Some people bring all their grievances and all their hostility to the dining table. Sitting down facing other people seems to bring out all the mixed up emotions, all the reasons why this should be a battleground to settle differences.

There are other times when disagreements can be taken care of, for dining should be one of the special times of contentment and humor and good manners. Centuries ago man may have growled while he gnawed a bone, but that time should have passed long ago. Eating together should be a time of laying aside all our complex notions to simply enjoy!

'Stones' removed without surgery

A member of the family has gallstones. This has increased what would be my normal interest in the subject.

Twenty million Americans suffer painful periodic attacks, 475,000 Americans undergo surgery for gallstones each year.

The operation is expensive, it is "no fun" and it is no insurance that the stones will not return.

So two years ago I began to watch closely research at the Mayo Clinic and elsewhere with a "chemical solvent." A drug in a capsule promised to dissolve gallstones without surgery.

Now we know it does.

Nobody is sure why tiny pebbles form in the plumbing of some people and lodge in the gallbladder, frequently resulting in excruciating abdominal pain.

Victims exhaust all the adjectives for pain in describing gallbladder attacks. Eventually they settle for some understatement such as, "You climb the wall!"

So it is difficult for conservative physicians and clinicians at 10 hospitals across our nation to contain their excitement right now over a new drug called "chenodyoxycholic acid." They call it "chenic" for short.

Dr. Johnson Thistle of Mayo says, "Preliminary evidence strongly suggests that it will turn out to be both effective and safe."

When you remedy any major disease without surgery you make a major contribution toward relieving the load on our doctors, our hospitals and our pocketbooks.

Surgical gallbladder removal was the sixth most common reason for hospital admissions last year. So a drug which would make hospitalization unnecessary would shave millions from our annual health bill.

Chenic Acid has been 10 years under development. It is now being tested extensively on humans. Assuming success of the tests, it will still be another two to three years before it is generally available for prescription.

It must first be ascertained, for example, that no liver damage — or other damage — results from the treatment.

Balancing benefits against risks is easier in such diseases as cancer, but where there is the alternative of surgery — and it is comparatively safe surgery for the removal of gallstones — evaluating the alternatives is understandably more tedious.

One million new gallstone cases appear each year. A projection of those statistics suggests that 25 percent of our total female population and 10 percent of the male population will develop "stones" before the age of sixty.

"The older you get the more likely you are to develop them," explains Dr. Thistle.

Since animals do not develop "stones" as people do, the earliest testing of Chenic Acid had to be done on humans.

At Mayo, where it has been tested since 1969, 83 percent of all patients' stones were dissolved completely or progressively reduced in size.

Just in jest

Onward and upward to better things! Having given the massage parlors something to worry about, I note that our city officials are continuing their vice abatement efforts by giving consideration to the possibility of segregating adult book stores and porno theaters. Well, why not? If you can't stop it, undoubtedly the next best thing is to confine it. And should that prove successful, who knows? Maybe some day Pomona may even have its very own segregated Red Light District.

Court financing

By EARL G. WATERS

The method of financing California courts is perhaps heading for a full review. Long ignored in the various court reform proposals they have remained, excepting for the appellate and supreme courts, a hybrid fiscal animal supported partly by the state but subordinated to the budgeting of local governments. The only reason for that is historically they grew up that way and nobody has seen fit to insist upon the state assuming its full responsibility.

The result is a conflict between the local administrators and the courts over funding, with the courts usually coming up short of money for adequate facilities, supplies and personnel. After all, the budgets are controlled by local elective officials. In the competition for tax dollars the money will go to those things which generate the most votes for the "ins".

That is bad enough but worse are the pressures on the courts, especially the municipal courts, to raise revenues through the imposition of fines. It is not unknown for local governments to adopt budgets based upon anticipated court revenues and thereafter lean on the courts to reach the predetermined figures. Such shenanigans which must presume that either a certain number of citizens are law violators or the overzealous enforcement of laws will make them such, has been aptly termed "cash register" justice. It is responsible for the undue attention given by police to minor traffic offenses including the indulgence in "speed traps" and the over patrolling of streets where traffic is known to be heavy and fast. Ticket quotas become the standard and the cops focus on areas where speed limits are commonly slightly exceeded, thus permitting the wholesale issuance of citations.

Speaking out on this is Joseph R. Grillo, presiding judge of the huge Los Angeles Municipal Court who properly observes that "Courts have the duty of dispensing justice, not raising funds." Pointing to the Separation of Powers doctrine, Grillo correctly states that the courts should "function without interference by other branches of government." Obviously if the courts are hamstrung financially by the other branches, controlled by those not dedicated to the pristine administration of justice, the judges cannot give full measure and the public before the bar, in either civil or criminal matters, is the loser.

There is no sound reason for the courts to be haphazardly financed. One can imagine the utter disaster which would exist if the federal courts were dependent upon local financing and budget control. However, Judge Grillo's contention that the revenues raised by the courts should be dedicated to their operations is not the right answer. For complete purity in the dispensing of justice those revenues should go directly to the general fund and have no relationship to court funding of judges' salaries or benefits.

If all of the state courts were, as they should be, truly state courts in all respects and unfettered by local fiscal controls, a system of overall self-administration by the state judicial council would be essential. To it would go the responsibility for the budget provisions and assignments of judges and staff. The pattern for such organization has long existed within the federal court system.

The issue of court financing was unintentionally brought out in the open as a result of Gov. Brown's veto of a bill which would have provided for excess costs of superior court felony trials involving life term crimes. Authored by Assemblyman Ken Maddy it sought to protect Madera County taxpayers from exorbitant costs arising from the trials of the Chowchilla school kidnappers and assure that county of the ability to adequately conduct the trials. His measure rejected, Maddy, an attorney, undoubtedly now will be spurred into tackling the entire problem of court financing.

"The Palestinians obviously have the sympathy of many, many people, many, or most of the countries of the world. Prosecuted people, stateless people looking for a home or something. You know, exactly like the sympathy that the Jews had when they were searching for a home. But our good Palestinian friends must know there is only a limit to where they can go and bully the world, by terrorism and blackmailing and this and that."

Ann Landers

More on black stockings

Dear Ann Landers: Can you stand one more letter about the man who wanted his wife to wear black stockings and a garter belt to bed? I hope so. Please include me as another woman who does NOT consider the request weird — unless, of course, they are simply having sex and not making love. There's a big difference, you know.

Any man worth his salt is not content merely to satisfy himself. He wants to please his wife and she, in turn, wants to please him. What is important to one should be important to the other. That's what love is all about. And without love, sex is nothing more than bedroom acrobatics.

If my husband came home one night and asked me to put on a costume to get him revved up, and there was no expression of love — only raw sex — I'd feel like a street-walker.

Some of my friends refer to marital sex as if it were housework, a chore that must be done — so they do it and get it over with as quickly as possible. What words do you have for such women? — Not One Of Them

Dear One: No words — just sympathy. They've missed it all.

Dear Ann Landers: I have a daughter who is 17. Her boyfriend is 19. They have been going together for two years.

Alice (not her real name) has one bureau drawer which she has kept locked for the past several months, and I have been wondering what she had in there. I confess I hired a locksmith to come over and open it up.

Well, now I know and I wish I didn't. Serves me right for being nosy. I discovered several contraceptives, the kind that men use. What should I do now? If my husband found out about this there would be plenty of violence. He has a very hot temper.

I feel Alice is too young for this kind of a relationship. Also, how safe are those things? I'm sure she will be furious when she finds out I invaded her privacy. Please advise me. — Worried Mother

Dear Mother: Tell Alice what you did and take your lumps. Then make an appointment for her with the family doctor or instruct her to get in touch with your local chapter of Planned Parenthood. "Those things" are not 100 per cent fail-safe. (The only 100 per cent foolproof preventative is the word "No.")

Lecturing your daughter about the evils of premarital sex will do no good. The best thing you can do now is make sure she doesn't get pregnant. (P.S. Her father need not know. There's already too much violence in the world.)

Dear Ann: This is for that wacky mother who hid the newspaper from her children so they wouldn't see your column.

My two daughters discovered Ann Landers by themselves. I was delighted. You helped put across several points I was having trouble with.

When my oldest son finished sixth grade I introduced him to your column and he hasn't missed one since.

I'm trying to get my younger son (14) to read it. He put up a fuss at first but now I see him reading it when he thinks no one is looking.

Just wanted to say you are really helping me raise my kids. — I.K.E.

Dear Ike: Thanks for those kind words. And now, may I make a suggestion? Don't hassle the 14-year-old. Information shoved down kids' throats is usually rejected. Let the choice be his.

Dr. Miller

Unhappy with effeminate pooch

DEAR DR. MILLER: George is crazy about his blue-green cat house, but ignores his orange one. They're identical except for color, so that has to be it. A smart aleck friend of mine is trying to tell me George doesn't know a blue-green cat house when he sees one, that he's color blind. That's what he thinks. I know George isn't. Would you please tell him that? K.R.

P.S. I almost forgot to mention about George. That he's a cat, I mean.

DEAR K.R.: Since two cat houses can't occupy the same space, George's choice can be governed partially, or even wholly, on factors relating to its location, i.e. temperature, light, noise levels and height, for example. While it's safe to say George wouldn't choose on the basis of a color preference as such, it's also true that George does have some, albeit weak, color vision. His retina does contain a few cones cells that are sensitive to both blue and green.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Captain, our dog, good as he is, has been a sort of disappointment. We had hoped he would develop into a strong, dominant type as he matured. Instead, he's effeminate looking and acting. We're wondering why. Since learning that males produce female hormones, too, I'm wondering if Captain might be suffering from an overproduction of these female hormones? H.L.

DEAR H.L.: Hormonal interrelationships and their effects on the body are complex and occasionally confusing. However, Captain's effeminacy (if that's what it is) wouldn't be related to an excess of female hormones. Proof? Consider the stallion. Yet he produces more estrogens than the non-pregnant mare or, for that matter, more of these female hormones than any other individual of either sex of any species.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I just bought some platys xiphophoius variatus, which are supposed to be just under a year of age. The males are beautiful fish, but still I'm a little disappointed for what I paid for them. The seller claims they'll improve with age. Should I be skeptical? K.R.

DEAR K.R.: Not this time. The male variatus does improve in coloration and fin development. This most beautiful of the xiphophoius species often requires two years to develop fully.

How to tell if you're rich

The other day out of a clear, blue sky Brucie asked, "Are we rich?"

I paused on my knees as I retrieved a dime from the sweeper bag, blew the dust off, and asked, "Not so you can notice. Why?"

I straightened up and thought a bit. Being rich is a relative sort of thing. Here's how I can always tell:

"You're rich when you buy your gas at the same service station all the time so your glasses match.

"You're rich when you can have eight people to dinner and don't have to wash forks between the main course and dessert.

"You're rich when you buy clothes for your kids that are two sizes too big for the one you buy 'em for and four sizes too big for the one that comes after him.

"You're rich when you own a boat — without oars.

"You can tell people have money when they record a check and don't have to subtract it right away.

"People have money when they sit around and joke with the cashier while she's calling in their charge to see if it's still open.

"You're rich when you write notes to the teacher on paper without lines.

"You're rich when your television set has all the knobs on it.

"You're rich when you can throw away a pair of pantyhose just because it has a large hole in it.

"You know people are loaded when they don't have to save rubber bands from the celery and store them on a doorknob.

"You're rich when you can have a home wedding without 'Haven Funeral Home' stamped on the folding chairs.

"You're rich when the Scouts have a paper drive and you have a stack of New York Times in your basement.

"You're rich when your dog is wet and smells good.

"You're rich when your own hair looks so great everyone thinks it's a wig."

Brucie sat quietly for a moment, then said, "I think my friend, Ronny, is rich."

"How can you tell?" I asked.

"His mom buys his birthday cake at a bakery and it isn't even cracked on top."

"He's rich, all right," I sighed.

Dr. Lamb

Pains after giving birth

DEAR DR. LAMB — Six months ago I had a baby. This is where my problem begins. I started having chest pains on my left side and my left arm seemed to go numb on me like it was asleep.

I went to one doctor every week for a few months. He said it was a strained muscle and gave me Motrin. I asked the druggist what they were for and he told me they were for arthritis.

I went to another doctor for his opinion and have been doctoring with him several months. He said it could be tension, but I never seem nervous or anything like that. I had a cardiogram, X rays and blood tests. They came out normal.

I was taking birth control pills so I stopped taking them but the problem is still there. It scares me a lot. I'm only 22 and have two children.

The doctor said my heart was beating too fast one week so that could be the problem with my arm. Do you have any suggestions?

DEAR READER — There is a rare condition in women after childbirth called post partum myocarditis. It is an inflammation of the heart muscle related to the pregnancy. The cause and many aspects of the illness remain obscure. However, these women have signs of heart involvement, including abnormal electrocardiograms. Your normal cardiogram and tests should rule out that condition.

Many young women seem to have a number of vague complaints after childbirth. The complaints are real enough but they don't fit the pattern of any specific disease. That is why they end up being diagnosed as nervous or being told it is a muscle spasm. You may be in that category. These may be related to subtle hormone changes.

I think the mechanism is similar to what we see after some illnesses, particularly those associated with long periods of inactivity. We call it neurocirculatory asthenia. The heart may beat rapidly; sometimes there are extra beats. The individual may feel faint on standing or become breathless with mild exertion. When these symptoms are not associated with any physical findings or other evidence of a specific disease, it is usually functional. A young mother with lots of responsibility may not be in shape for the amount she has to do. If that is the case, some help in coping with the day's demands often is a great aid. If the mother is out of shape physically, a gradual exercise program will help. The difficulty is in finding out whether the problem is associated with overwork or with lack of fitness. Usually the type of work a young mother has to do is time consuming and often nerve-racking but it may not be physically demanding like a game of tennis.

A good balance may be to get plenty of sleep one way or another and also get some time off to start a physical fitness program. Walking is a good start and you can gradually build up from there. I am sending you two issues of The Health Letter 1-11 and 1-12, Exercise, Heart and Circulation, Part I and Part II. You can use these as a guide to a fitness program. Others who want these two issues can send 50 cents for each of them with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Incidentally although Motrin is used to relieve arthritis pain, it is also used to relieve pain from other conditions.

Be positive and enthusiastic

During a television show interview, the host asked me "Dr. Schuller, why do you always seem to be so energetic?" "I suppose I'm energetic because I'm enthusiastic," I replied, continuing, "and I suppose I'm enthusiastic because I'm basically a very joyful, happy person."

The interviewer pressed, "Yes, but is it reasonable to expect that most people can be happy the way you say you're happy?" I answered, "I think so. I really do!" "If you live right, think right, play right, love right, give right and act right, you can't help but be bubbling over with energy. Most people who aren't enthusiastic probably aren't living right, loving right or they're angry inside with people."

Pianos sold by the dozen

Much ado has been made of late about how the Moslem bigwigs around the Mediterranean have become fantastically rich on oil But extraordinary wealth among rulers thereabouts is nothing new. Take Abdul Aziz IV, for instance. He was Sultan of Morocco from 1894 until he was kicked out in 1909 for extravagance. Evidently, a high powered musical instrument salesman got to him during his rule. It's a matter of record that he first learned much to his amazement several years after his retirement that pianos did not have to be bought by the dozen.

HEARTBEAT

Q. "Average human heart beats 70 or 80 times a minute. How fast does a whale's heart beat?"

A. About nine beats a minute is average for a gray whale. But there are other species. And not all of their heartbeat rates have been checked out. Don't have at hand an explanation of how a whale's pulse is taken, as a matter of fact. Will look into it and report back.

Was at Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1937, that bowler Ned Day of West Allis, Wis., rolled 33 consecutive strikes. If any bowler before or since has ever done better than that, kindly name said phenom. Statistically, a perfect game of 12 strikes supposedly only turns up once in 450,000 times.

LONG RUNS

Those prime-time TV shows that tend to run the longest have a certain something in common. Namely, not just a different story, but a different cast of characters every week, too. Consider "The Wonderful World of Disney." Or "The ABC Sunday Night Movie." Or "NBC's Saturday Night at the Movies." They've been on the air for 16, 15 and 14 years, respectively. No other evening-hour network program has held up that long.

It was the wrong Karl Marx

LONDON (AP) — The Public Record Office says a German historian's report that Karl Marx, the 19th century father of communism, was a British citizen is incorrect. It was another Karl Marx.

Michael Knierien, the curator of the Friedrich Engels Memorial Museum in Wuppertal, West Germany, reported this week that he made a two-week search in the files of the record office and found citizenship was granted in 1877 to a man named Karl Marx.

"By a coincidence there were two Karl Marxes," said the record office. "The one who was accepted as a British citizen was not the revolutionary."

The Marx who wrote Das Kapital and, with Engels, the Communist Manifesto, was born in Trier in 1818. He renounced his Prussian citizenship in 1845, was expelled and settled in Britain in 1849. He applied for British citizenship in 1874 but was turned down as "a notorious German agitator."

Marx died in London in 1883 and is buried in Highgate Cemetery.

The other Karl Marx was a jeweler from Homburg, Germany, who also lived in London and was described by police as "fairly respectable."

Four held in racial row at Pendleton

CAMP PENDLETON (AP) — A band of black Marines invaded the modern barracks room like commandoes and attacked seven white Marines, a base spokesman says.

With clubs and screwdrivers, they beat and stabbed six of the whites so severely they were still hospitalized four days later. A seventh white Marine escaped injury.

A base spokeswoman said four blacks allegedly involved were in custody today with "three to five" others being sought.

"It happened so fast that the victims are hard pressed to identify anyone," she said.

The investigation so far failed to turn up any provocation for the attack although one white Marine told newsmen the blacks believed they were retaliating for "white-power" activism on the sprawling Marine base.

Record ad year may be better in 1977

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Media executive Karl Eller says the advertising industry is astonished by record 1976 business and can expect even better times in 1977.

It has been "the most phenomenal year for the advertising business in 30 years, or maybe forever," he said in a speech.

Eller is president of Combined Communications Corp., of Phoenix, Ariz., which owns seven television stations, nine radio stations, the Cincinnati Enquirer and an outdoor advertising company.

The firm reported revenues of $130 million in 1975 and net income of $7.6 million. Eller said its television revenues have jumped 25 per cent this year with newspaper advertising up 17 per cent.

"The industry has been worried about following a banner year like 1976," he told the Stockbrokers Club Tuesday. "But our advance bookings in broadcasting are very strong.

"We expect television revenues to be up by 15 per cent to 20 per cent again next year."

Eller said his Pacific Outdoor Advertising, a division operating in the United States and Canada, picked up overflow advertisers who have been priced out of the television market.

Economist sees rising retail beef prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumers who have seen beef prices fall steadily from last year's highs can expect to pay record prices to put beef on the table in 1977, an Agriculture Department economist predicted today.

Retail beef prices soon will begin climbing and probably will cost a record average of $1.49 a pound next year, Richard J. Crom of the department's Economic Research Service said.

That is 10 cents above the estimated 1976 average of $1.39. Last year's record average was $1.46.

The reason that beef prices will swing back up is that cattlemen, who are enduring severe financial losses because of a glut of beef this year, have reduced their herds sharply, Crom said.

One consolation is that pork prices will be down in 1977, he said, although beef accounts for about two-thirds of the meat consumed by American families. Meat is the biggest item in food budgets.

"Look for beef prices in 1977 to average about 10 cents per pound higher than this year's average, while pork prices may average five cents lower," Crom said. "Retail pork prices likely will be lowest this winter, while beef will peak seasonally in the summer months."

Pork was $1.35 a pound in 1975, and climbed another penny to a record of $1.36 this year.

Crom made his analysis in a speech prepared for the department's annual outlook conference.

Retail food prices overall are expected to rise 3 to 4 per cent in 1977, about the same as the 3 per cent increase now estimated for this year, the department announced earlier this week. A spokesman said the prospective jump in 1977 beef prices was included in that estimate.

Beef prices traditionally peak in the summer. In July 1975, they hit a record monthly high of $1.61 a pound before turning down. By last September, store prices were about $1.34 a pound, measured on an all-cut basis.

Retail beef prices have fallen 4.8 per cent this year, Crom said.

Cattle producers, who have been in a financial squeeze for several years, plan to continue reducing inventories in 1977, although at a slower rate, Crom said.

Farmers and ranchers built up cattle herds steadily for years, to a peak of 131.8 million animals on Jan. 1, 1975, before paring them to get rid of the excess beef. By last Jan. 1, they totaled 128 million head, a 2.9 per cent reduction.

Crom said that the cattle inventory probably will be cut 5.5 per cent more to 121 million head by next Jan. 1, and the inventory might be around 118 million head by Jan. 1, 1978.

Thus, as producers take tough steps to offset losses, it appears that consumers are on the threshold of a new, higher plateau of beef prices.

PUBLIC NOTICE

PUBLIC HEARING CALIFORNIA PUBLIC UTILITIES COMMISSION AND PORT OF LONG BEACH

Pursuant to the California Environmental Quality Act of 1970, as amended, notice is hereby given to all interested persons and organizations that a Draft Environmental Impact Report (EIR) has been completed for the:

SOHIO WEST COAST TO MID-CONTINENT PIPELINE PROJECT

The proposed SOHIO (Standard Oil, Ohio) project consists of a three berth marine terminal, 4.92 million barrels of storage/surge tankage within approximately 12 miles of the terminal, connection with local distribution pipelines, 1,000+ miles of pipeline from Long Beach to Midland, Texas. Almost 800 miles of the pipeline is already in place and is presently used to transport some of the natural gas supply to California from Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico. A system already exists to transport crude oil from Midland, Texas to the midwest and Gulf Coast markets. The purpose of the proposed system is to provide a means of delivering North Slope (Alaskan) oil to Southern California refineries plus the capability of transmitting oil surplus to California's needs to the midwest.

The SOHIO EIR consists of an extensive analysis of the anticipated environmental impacts expected during construction, operation and maintenance of the proposed crude oil transmission system. Potential mitigation measures are also suggested for the proposed impacts. Accompanying this analysis is an examination of the marine traffic flow patterns along the tanker delivery route between Valdez, Alaska and Long Beach, California. The energy supply and demand situation as it relates to the movement of energy sources located in the United States also is evaluated together with an examination of potential alternative sites for marine terminals and various related transmission routes for delivery of Alaskan crude oil to the midwest.

Copies of the Draft EIR are available for public inspection at the following municipal/county libraries: Long Beach Municipal Library, Hacienda Heights County Library, La Puente Library, Chino Branch Library, Pomona Library, Pico Rivera Library, Downey Main Library, Montebello Library, South Gate/Hollydale Library, Paramount Library, Ontario City Library, Fontana Branch Library, Rialto Library, Colton Library, San Bernardino Public Library, Redlands Library, Loma Linda Library, and Desert Center Lake Tamarisk Library. Persons wishing to know the location of copies other than those at municipal/county libraries can call (213) 437-0041 or (415) 557-3816 and request help in locating same.

Three public hearings on this Draft EIR are scheduled as follows:

1. 10:00 a.m. Tuesday, November 30, 1976, 6th Floor Board Room, Long Beach Harbor Department Building, 925 Harbor Plaza, Long Beach, California.
2. 10:00 a.m. Monday, December 6, 1976, Los Angeles County Supervisors Board Room, Hall of Administration, 500 W. Temple Street, Los Angeles, California.
3. 10:00 a.m. Tuesday, December 14, 1976, Council Chambers, City Hall, 300 N. "D" Street, San Bernardino, California.

The presentation of the nature of the proposed project and associated impacts and proposed mitigation will be from 10:00 am. until noon. This will be followed by public comments, questions and suggestions beginning at 1:30 p.m. Written comments will be received until 10:00 a.m. on December 20, 1976. Address comments to:

L.A., S.F. counties show population drop

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California's two major urban counties, San Francisco and Los Angeles, showed a drop in population from July 1970 to July of this year, state officials say.

They were the only two counties in the state to decline over the six year period, while suburban areas, led by Orange County, showed steady growth.

Overall, California's population, spurred by an influx of Indochinese refugees, continued last year's slight increase in growth rate.

The state had about 21,520,000 people on July 1, compared to 21,198,000 a year earlier and 20,026,000 in 1970, the Department of Finance reported Tuesday.

The Los Angeles population, which dropped to 6,936,400 two years ago, was back above 7 million this year for the first time in five years, but still was about 40,000 below 1970. San Francisco's decrease to 665,000 was part of a continuing trend there.

During the past three years, net migration into the state increased significantly from a low point in 1971 and 1972, the Department of Finance's population research unit said.

Orange County, once a rural area dotted with orange groves, led all other counties in number of additional residents with a 328,700 increase to 1,749,900, up 23.1 per cent from six years ago.

Mono County in Northern California had the largest percentage increase, up 82.2 per cent in six years, and Santa Cruz County led all counties above 100,000 population with a 31.4 per cent jump.

Migration figures included 50,000 Indochinese in the last two years, and state officials said at least 90 per cent of them were Vietnamese refugees who came here at the end of the Vietnam War.

There were 322,000 births in the last year, up from lower totals in the early 1970s. State officials said that might be because some couples waited longer to have children.

"There's been a rather surprising recovery in migration," said Walter Hollmann, chief of the population research unit.

"It's certainly less than our heyday in the late 1950s and early 1960s. That heyday probably had to do with the fact that California was the land of opportunity. Life Magazine ran whole issues about us.

"Then the bloom wore off the rose when people started talking about the smog and environmental degradation, and it got crowded," Hollmann added.

Net migration figures — calculated on the basis of people leaving and entering the state — were 107,000, 185,000 and 175,000 for the last three years, compared to 60,000 in both 1971 and 1972.

"I really can't explain why migration picked up," Hollmann said. "Unemployment here is still above many other states.

"I do know why migration was down. In the early 70s we had the aerospace (layoff) disaster and we had an earthquake (in the San Fernando Valley).

"If you are sitting in your living room in Iowa and considering moving to California and they have an earthquake there, you may put off the move."

State taking action against nursing homes

SACRAMENTO (AP) — State health officials are taking action against nursing homes in Garden Grove and Sacramento where inspectors reported finding numerous violations.

All 90 Medi-Cal patients are being removed from Fountain Skilled Nursing Facility in Sacramento, and proceedings have been started to try to revoke the home's license, the state Health Department said Tuesday.

The department also said it has begun license revocation proceedings against the 99-bed Garden Grove Sanitarium, where inspectors said they found 157 violations.

Loss of license would put both nursing homes out of business. But Health Department spokesman Bob Nance said revocation proceedings can take as long as a year if the nursing home's operators take all available appeals.

The 121-bed Sacramento home has 90 Medi-Cal patients and 10 private patients, Nance said.

He said state inspectors had found inadequate nursing care, failure to give medication and treatment as prescribed, and lack of preventive care needed to protect patients from bed sores and deformities, among other violations.

Problems with the Garden Grove Sanitarium in Orange County date back to 1971, when the department placed it on probation.

Inspections since then have turned up additional violations, including inadequate staffing, water that was too hot or not hot enough for patients, insufficient food stocks and failure to carry out physicians' medication orders, the Health Department said.

Nance said the department is considering seeking a court injunction to force the nursing home to comply with regulations. State officials may also remove the home's 47 Medi-Cal patients.

Nursing home cited

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The County Department of Health Services has issued four citations against a nursing home where an elderly wheelchairbound patient accidentally drowned last week.

The citations announced Monday were against the Prestige Convalescent Center of North Hollywood.

On Nov. 8, Clara Davis, 74, was found drowned in 12 to 15 inches of water in an unused therapy pool. She had been placed under restraints in her wheelchair on doctor's orders.

Three of the citatations were Class A, the strongest civil sanctions available to the department. They alleged lack of surveillance of the pool area, lack of protective devices at the pool, and insufficient nurse staffing.

Penalties range from $1,000 to $5,000 fines.

State blasts S.F. drug program

SACRAMENTO (AP) — State officials have blasted a San Francisco drug treatment program for poor management that they say included the loss of Methadone worth $500,000 on the streets.

The Department of Health also criticized the administration of the 21-day methadone detoxification program at San Francisco General Hospital and called the San Francisco County Drug Plan budget "ludicrous" because of high administration costs.

State-regulated methadone programs are used to treat heroin addicts, who take methadone as a heroin substitute.

Josette Mondanaro, a department deputy director, released a letter Tuesday to Dr. William Goldman, acting director of Community Mental Health in San Francisco.

It said the San Francisco program's problems are "the culmination of at least three years of chronic mismanagement, faulty record keeping, unending personnel turnover, a lack of consistent treatment plans and inadequate drug security."

A Nov. 9 inspection of the program's Ivy Street Clinic revealed a total of seven missing five-liter bottles of methadone worth $500,000 if sold to addicts on the street, Dr. Mondanaro said.

"Having 70,000 milligrams of methadone missing is inexcusable. But even more inexcusable is having this loss go undetected by your own staff," she wrote Goldman.

Goldman was in Washington and not available for comment, but his assistant, Terry De Luca, said program officials were investigating 'to determine circumstances surrounding the missing methadone.

"It's very possible it could be a clerical error between what's on stock and what's disbursed," she said. The combination of the safe where methadone is stored has been changed and security guards have been posted, she added.

Deficiencies at the program's Hyde Street Clinic included a record system "so lax that a staff member could enter the safe, scoop up a handful of unused doses and leave the clinic with no one the wiser," Dr. Mondanaro said.

Both clinics have 60 days to comply with corrective orders or the state will revoke their programs, she said.

Dr. Mondanaro also said the methadone detoxification program at San Francisco General Hospital failed to respond to state requests to demonstrate some of the program's abilities.

The clinic management staff has had three major changes in the past six months, Dr. Mondanaro said.

"Aside from noncompliance, we cannot help but question the quality of care that is being offered at a clinic which has such a rapid turnover of directors. Of 48 charts reviewed, only two demonstrated adequate treatment notes," she said.

The state will give 30 days' notice of removal of funding if acceptable regulations are not received for the hospital program by Nov. 24, she said.

Dr. Mondanaro also criticized the San Francisco County Drug Plan budget proposal for 1976-77.

The total budget is $203,788, of which $102,098 goes to Walden House, Northeast and Westside programs, and $101,690 goes to administer the funds for nine months, she said.

If adjusted for a 12-month period, administration would cost about $133,000.

"I cannot believe that this budget constitutes a serious proposal. Increasing an already costly administrative program is not defensible using workload related to federally funded programs," Dr. Mondanaro wrote.

SOMETHING FOWL AFOOT — Diane Orlacchio stalks a turkey at the Hubert Ashley Turkey Farm in Flanders, N.J., recently. With Thanksgiving less than two weeks away, it's not too soon to get the bird that goes with all the trimmings.

Pesticide poisoning causes confusion within legislature

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Little is being done about pesticide poisoning of California farm workers, in part because of confusion within state government, a legislative committee has been told.

State Health Director Jerome Lackner estimatad Tuesday that only one per cent of farm worker illnesses are reported — even though there are three times as many job-related illness reports from agriculture as any other industry.

Other witnesses told the Senate Health and Welfare Committee that some of the poisonings go unreported because the victims are illegal aliens from Mexico, who fear deportation if they go to a doctor.

Some witnesses blamed a confusion of duties among three state agencies — the agriculture, health and industrial relations departments.

In one case, the committee was told, 120 workers were made ill by pesticide in a Madera vineyard, but doctors who treated them failed to file the required reports, claiming they didn't want to get the workers into trouble with immigration.

Officials of the state Industrial Relations Department conceded they had made no immediate investigation after they learned the ill workers had been released after treatment at a hospital.

One worker reportedly had to pay the hospital $85 before being let out.

"It's hard for me to believe that if there had been 120 people made ill in a white, middle-class area, you wouldn't have been there sooner," Sen. Arlen Gregorio, D-San Mateo, the committee chairman, told Industrial Relations Department officials.

The chief of the department's Division of Industrial Safety, Art Carter, replied, "To say or imply that...they would have been handled differently is just not the case."

In another case, the committee was told, 17 Salinas farm workers were deported the day after they suffered pesticide poisoning. Witnesses said the only report of the poisoning was made to Monterey County Agriculture Commissioner Richard Nutter.

Nutter protested the implication that he had told federal immigration officials about the workers so the farmer could avoid the expense and trouble of an investigation.

"The implication that we're in cahoots with the border patrol is unfounded and I resent it," Nutter said. He also said he had no reason to believe the farmer had called the immigration service.

The county agriculture commissioners' role was criticized by the United Farm Workers.

UFW lawyer Mary Mocine urged that the primary enforcement of pesticide regulations be shifted from the agriculture commissioners to the Department of Health.

She produced four workers who testified they had been made ill by pesticides while working on mechanical tomato harvesters near Tracy.

Lackner, who was once personal physician for UFW leader Cesar Chavez, said his Health Department should have "a stronger role" in enforcing pesticide rules.

Gregorio said there had been allegations that county agriculture commissioners failed to enforce pesticide rules because they are in league with growers. He noted the commissioners' association last May urged the state to stop the proliferation of pesticide rules.

Donald Hill, Tehama County agricultural commissioner and president of the association, protested that the commissioners "are just cops" and do not favor the growers.

"How did I get on the wrong side of both parties?" he asked.

Puppeteer brings show to streets of San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Like a whisp of Golden Gate fog, Tommy Roberts materializes at Union Square, or Civic Center, carrying two battered shopping bags filled with magic and laughter.

He's 4-foot-8 in his well-worn shoes and calls himself "the world's youngest leprechaun" at age 629.

A pigeon feather adorns the wool cap atop his wispy gray curls, a red bandana at his wrinkled neck, and there's a twinkle in his eyes as he shouts:

"Last call for the puppet show. Is everybody ready to see the free show? A great big show with 38 puppets and 90 dancing girls. It's good — for nothing."

As a crowd of children and grownups gather, he tells them: "What's in these bags has transformed the lives of hundreds ... thousands ... millions."

For an hour he charms the chuckling audience with hand puppets emerging from behind his "stage" — a small sheet of paper. He danced and bantered with a dunce, a clown, a lion, an ice cream cone, a kilted Scot, a hayseed, a woodpecker.

Then he ordered: "Everybody out there — close your eyes." When they reopened, the eyes see two Tommys — the puppeteer and a small facsimile that echoes his merry eyes and jaunty cap. (A sculptor friend made it as a surprise gift for Tommy.)

The two Tommys ask the audience to join them in singing "the first composition I composed in San Francisco: 'Union Square, Union Square, all the kooks are gathered there'..."

As two small friends pass roses out to the audience, the show ends with a song and dance, and advice to "get on your hands and knees, yank out weeds, and plant a seed — yes, indeed!"

"When I first came to San Francisco in the spring of 1969 I had one lousy, beat-up, 10-cent, brown paper shopping bag," he says. "Now I have two 25-cent, hand-embossed, plastic bags. I'm a conglomerate!"

Since 1974 he has been one of the 131 artists working under the federal Comprehensive Employment Training Act, bringing his magic spell of smiles and laughter to parks, mental hospitals, schools and convalescent homes.

"It's often heartbreak house, especially when I go to convalescent homes filled with poor, old ladies waiting to die. I do a little act and give out the roses," he says. "One woman, who is 85, took hers and said, 'We need you. Come back.'"

Tommy lives modestly in a hotel in the Tenderloin section downtown. "I am the only sober man in the neighborhood," he says.

His early life was in Florida and New York around the theater "where I did all kinds of things and starved, mostly."

He fancies himself a poet, and philosopher.

'Seduction,' 'Compatibility' popular, new adult games

ORANGE (AP) — Pssst — wanna buy an adult game?

More and more people are answering "yes," according to Bob Reiss, president of Reiss Games, which markets a variety of diversions for the after-school set.

The firm, whose factory in this Orange County town turns out such games as "Seduction," "Lie, Cheat & Steal," "Compatibility" and "Xaviera's Game," had sales of more than $7 million in fiscal 1976, a 50 per cent jump over the previous year. Reiss thinks more gains are ahead.

"These games fulfill needs that are not being met in everyday life," the 46-year-old executive said in an interview. "There are married couples who really don't know each other. There are questions they'd like to ask each other but they're too embarrassed. In a game like "Compatibility," the questions hide behind the cards."

Couples playing "Compatibility" must answer — for their mate as well as themselves — such questions as "Would you be tense if your 16-year-old daughter asked you about the Pill?" or "If you're in the mood and your partner isn't, what do you do?"

Reiss' most popular game is "Lie, Cheat & Steal: The Game of Political Power," in which players scheme their way to prominence. The game, which has sold more than 75,000 sets at $9 each in the last five years, came out before Watergate, although Reiss acknowledges that the scandal gave sales a boost.

"But it'll be current years from now," Reiss said. "All you have to do is pick up a paper in any town and there's lying, cheating and stealing right in front of you."

In "Seduction," which Reiss terms an "icebreaker," players get cards which have orders like "Put your hand on the knee of the person next to you" or "Take off an article of clothing beginning with the letter 'S'."

"Xaviera's Game," loosely based on the exploits of Xaviera Hollander, a self-described "happy hooker" turned author, leads players through the different attractions of an imaginary bordello.

Reiss is currently working on a new game woven around the misadventures of the heroine housewife "Mary Hartman" in the television series of the same name twice. The game isn't finished yet, but Reiss has some idea of how it will all come out.

"In most board games," he said, "players move clockwise, In this one, they can go in any direction — up, down and sideways."

Kissinger sees Soviets, China settling some bitter disputes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger suggests that the Soviet Union and China may settle some of the bitter disputes dividing them but not to the point that will threaten the West.

Kissinger said Tuesday that the Russians and Chinese "have quarreled for their own reasons and they're going to make rapprochement for their own reasons."

His assessment came at a conference of parliamentarians from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization nations in Williamsburg, Va., when he was asked if the Communists would resolve their differences at the expense of the Atlantic Alliance.

The secretary acknowledged the possibility that Peking and Moscow may close their ranks somewhat, but he sought to assure the NATO delegates that the United States and Western Europe should not be "panicked."

"There is a limit beyond which rapprochement is not likely to go," Kissinger explained.

This was a reference to U.S. intelligence assessments that the differences between Peking and Moscow are so serious and fundamental as to be beyond complete settlement.

Kissinger's appearance at the NATO conference was his first public speech since Democrat Jimmy Carter defeated President Ford two weeks ago. Many of the questions dealt with the secretary's relations with the president-elect.

Kissinger pledged to cooperate with the president-elect.

The mainlines of American foreign policy are clear and bipartisan, Kissinger said, and he will support their continuation under the Democratic president. The secretary said he will travel to Plains, Ga., on Saturday to meet with Carter "to answer fully his questions and to cooperate to the fullest extent to bring about a smooth transition."

But when asked what he and Carter would discuss, Kissinger quipped, "I have spent so much time finding Plains on the map that I haven't had much time to think about what I would say."

At another point, when asked about the continuity of U.S. foreign policy, Kissinger responded that "I cannot fully speak for the policies of the forthcoming administration," but he said diplomacy in the past has always been nonpartisan.

Responding to a question about what he would advise Carter concerning relations with Peking, Kissinger said, "I have done my utmost to curb my propensity to tell others how to conduct their affairs."

This has been difficult, "particularly to someone who was not unfailing in their attempts to give us advice" during the election campaign, Kissinger said.

A. COMMON WARTS ARE HORNY GROWTHS ON THE SKIN CAUSED BY A VIRUS INFECTION.

Perhaps you've heard you'll get warts if you touch a toad. But you won't! This idea may have started because the toad's skin is covered by wartlike growths. Warts are a horny growth on the skin.

Doctors tell us that ordinary warts are infections caused by a virus — a germ so tiny that it can be seen only under a special microscope.

The viruses causing warts live in the top layer of the skin. The common wart has a scaly top and fiberlike roots. Warts can grow anywhere on the skin.

Flat warts sometimes grow on the soles of the feet. Warts that look like little cauliflowers sometimes grow on the hands.

Common warts usually do not hurt or cause any harm. Sometimes they go away without treatment.

But if a wart hurts or becomes infected, a doctor has to remove it.

Because they are apt to disappear suddenly as if by magic, there are many superstitious beliefs that warts can be charmed away by magic spells.

English deporting former U.S. Central Intelligence operative

LONDON (AP) — The British government announced today that it plans to deport former U.S. Central Intelligence Agency operative Philip Agee on grounds he tried to obtain for publication information harmful to Britain's security.

The government on Tuesday had ordered another American, Mark Hosenball, a reporter on the London Evening Standard, to leave the country on similar grounds.

Agee, 41, served for nine years in the CIA, much of that time in Latin America. After leaving the intelligence agency, he wrote a book, "Inside the Company: CIA Diary," published two years ago. It described agency operations in detail and disclosed names of agents.

He is now working on a second book, also about CIA activities.

Agee told reporters: "One possible reason for this deportation order is that the CIA has a new chief of station in London and my expulsion might be one of his first orders of the day, as you might say.

"The letter I received from the Home Office says that I have been disseminating information harmful and injurious to British security, but this is not true," Agee said. "I have not said anything about British security or the British security services."

Revelations in "Inside the Company" about CIA agents and activities were widely publicized in Britain. Agee said after the book was published: "I want to neutralize these people, completely."

Agee said he believes the United States put pressure on Britain to get him out of the country.

"America is in a position to put on a lot of pressure on Britain over the International Monetary Fund loan negotiations," he said. "I believe pressure has been put on the government here from the very highest level to order me out in an attempt to disrupt publication of my second book."

Agee suggested that such pressure could have been prompted by his action in speaking publicly about the CIA on a recent trip he made to Jamaica. He said that while in Jamaica he named nine CIA agents based at the U.S. Embassy there.

Hosenball told reporters Tuesday that the deportation order involving him "undoubtedly hinges on some story I did in my capacity as a journalist for Time Out magazine," an unorthodox leisure guide for young people. He said the story concerned the British government's secret communications headquarters.

In a letter, the government said Hosenball's departure would be conducive to the public good in the interests of national security.

Miners prefer free hams to scholarships

OVEN FORK, Ky. (AP) — Miners at the Scotia Coal Co. apparently have decided they'd rather have their annual free Thanksgiving ham than use the money to establish a scholarship fund for the children of 26 men who died in the mine last spring.

David McKnight told a reporter for the Mountain Eagle, the weekly newspaper at nearby Whitesburg, that he had resigned as president of the Scotia Employes' Association because of the hams.

"The men just didn't want to give up their hams to commemorate the men who died," he said in an interview with reporter Bill Bishop.

Meanwhile, H.N. Kirkpatrick, Kentucky commissioner of mines and minerals, said the bodies of 11 men entombed in the mine since last March would be brought out Friday. Scotia officials gave this information to survivors so they could prepare for burial.

The team bringing out the bodies will be composed of representatives of the state and federal governments, the coal company, the employes' union and Letcher County Coroner Charles Day. A pathologist and funeral home employes also may be permitted inside the mine.

A temporary morgue is being constructed at the mine shaft. The bodies will be examined at the morgue before they are released to relatives.

McKnight said the conflict between the hams and the scholarships arose last month. He said he and five other members of the union met in mid-October and decided to use the union funds — which had been used to purchase hams for the past 10 years — to set up a scholarship fund.

However, he said some 50-60 union members met a week later and overruled the earlier vote. McKnight said he resigned a short time later.

McKnight was succeeded by Willie Perry of nearby Ermine. Perry said more than 400 hams would be distributed the day before Thanksgiving, as was the custom.

"That money they would have collected wouldn't send one kid to school for a year," said a miner who attended the second meeting but did not want to be identified. "The men felt like they should be treated the same as they always were treated."

McKnight is captain of one of three rescue teams which have been trying to retrieve the 11 bodies since the mine was re-opened in mid-July. The bodies are those of the men killed in the second of two methane gas explosions in Scotia's No. 1 mine last March.

Women

Women will continue to account for most of this country's new workers during the next decade, according to The Conference Board. Women accounted for 60 per cent of the jump in the U.S. work force during the last 10 years and will comprise an even larger share between now and 1985.

Sweet Adelines place in contest

Two Pomona Valley quartets placed at regional Sweet Adeline novice competition in San Diego. Third place was awarded the "Jelly Bean Machine" composed of three Chino women: Luan Dieterich, Karen Doble, and Glenda Lee, and Joyce Waters of Claremont.

The "Kith'n Kin" took sixth place with a fine performance from their growing repertoire of barbershop tunes.

The "Kith" is Sheila Schoonmaker of Claremont and the "Kin" are sisters from Upland, DeLourde Brooks, Francine Krueger and Gretchen Ross.

The lively spirit of the Pomona Valley Chapter was evident at the contest with 24 members attending to support their quartets.

Preparations for the annual chorus and quartet competition are just beginning. New members will feel right at home since almost a third of the 63-member chorus are new this year. Glenda Smith, membership chairman, 982-4098, will explain membership to interested persons.

RECEIVE TROPHIES AT LUNCHEON

Recipients of the 1976 Progress Bulletin Woman Achiever awards were honored at a luncheon at Orlando's and were presented inscribed silver Revere bowls in recognition of their volunteer contributions to the community. Making the presentations were Joseph A. Gendron, editor, and Mrs. Mary Remillard, Family News editor. Stories about the women's accomplishments appeared in the Oct. 26 special edition, Pomona Valley Women. From left are Miss Estelle Nesbit, Mrs. Carol Smith, Mrs. Remillard, Mrs. Jan Ellison and Mrs. Mary Montes. Sixty-five women attended the luncheon.

Housewife status is losing ground

Is "woman's place" in the home? Still?

Many young Americans feel it isn't — especially the women.

According to the latest national survey of young people conducted for the American Council of Life Insurance, only one in four of the young women in the 14 to 25 age group, wants to be a housewife.

The number of females who found the lifestyle of "an average housewife" appealing went down from 42 per cent in 1970, the first year the question was asked, to 25 per cent in 1976.

When asked to choose one of five lifestyles they found the most attractive, 34 per cent of the young women said they wanted to be successful, married executives or professionals. Six years ago only 26 per cent found this choice appealing.

Some 19 per cent opted for the lifestyle of a "single person with a good job," 10 per cent wanted a "life free of obligations, living where and with whom one pleased," and some 8 per cent voted for "working to solve social problems."

Females who preferred the executive-professional lifestyle above others, were usually single, younger, from homes with higher incomes and had some college education. Those most attracted to the "average housewife" lifestyle were more likely to be married women between the ages of 22-25, from lower income homes and those with a high school level of education.

Young women were also interested in their individual development. The proportion who opted for "an opportunity to develop as an individual," when asked about life goals, climbed from 48 per cent in 1974, the year that question was first asked, to 55 per cent just two years later.

"A happy family life" as a life choice was picked by some 34 per cent of females in 1976, a drop from the 43 per cent two years earlier.

As for that old saying about a "woman's place," only about half as many young people agreed unequivocally that "The statement 'Woman's place is in the home' still makes sense," as did young people in the 1970 survey conducted for the Council. In 1970, the percentage of those who expresses strong agreement was 28 per cent.

Joyce Brothers

Make family contract

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: Our 12-year-old son threatens to run away whenever things don't go his way. Because my husband's daughter by a previous marriage did run away he's naturally terrified of this possibility. I hate to admit it but I'm so irritated by my son't threats that I'm often tempted to open the door, give him a good shove and let him run. — T.P.

DEAR T.P.: I can understand your feeling, but there's another, more positive way out of this trying situation. Consider making a kind of family contract with your son. That is, sit down with him and negotiate. Write down his demands and yours and, when you've agreed on what you expect from each other, post this contract where it can easily be studied and reviewed by both parties.

Dr. James Alexander of the University of Utah who worked with this method of solving family problems, especially for coping with runaways, reports that it is much more powerful than threats or punishment. It allows parents and children to keep their dignity and all can have a sense of pride about living up to the bargain. It also helps to alleviate the problem of blackmail and new demands each day.

This doesn't mean your contract can't be renegotiated but there must be a initial agreement that both sides will give the original contract a try for at least two weeks before adding demands. In addition to everything else, this also helps to keep the channels of communication open.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My parents were divorced and I remember what I went through when they were splitting up. It makes me heartsick to put my child through the same torment, but I'll go crazy if I try to stay married to my husband. I can't do it. But, I don't know how to avoid hurting my 7-year-old daughter. — F.H.

DEAR F.H.: One way you can help your child overcome the trauma of your divorce is to try to improve your own mental health. If your child sees you building a new, constructive and satisfying life, she will have a good model and will be better able to respond when, and if, something bad happens to her.

Tell her what's happening, without blaming your husband, no matter how bitter and angry you may be. She is a part of her father and a part of her will identify with him. If you destroy his character, you are destroying her, too.

Children your daughter's age are susceptible to demands that they take sides. Take special care not to involve her in such conflicts. Let her know that both you and her father love her, that you want her to love and respect him and that he will continue to visit her.

Explain this to her in advance so that she will have time to prepare herself emotionally. Above all, reassure her that she had nothing to do with your problems, so she won't feel responsible.

Why We Loved Lucy So Much
Searching for the reasons behind "Lucy mania" turns out to be a journey that leads us back to ourselves.
Twenty-five years ago a public relations man was overheard saying, "We've just bought a little thing made out in Hollywood—a situation comedy with Lucille Ball and her husband Whatzisname. I don't know if it will amount to anything." That "little thing" turned out to be the most successful television program of the 1950's: "I Love Lucy." No format appeared as unlikely to succeed as the adventures of a carrot-top clown and a Cuban bandleader with an accent so thick you could cut it with a cleaver, but the laughs have gone on uninterrupted now for a quarter of a century. And while most shows come and go, Americans have clung to Lucy with fierce fidelity. It turns out there are some interesting reasons why. This week, come back with us and remember America's best-loved TV show. We promise this re-run will not be interrupted by commercials.

Filming costly in Spain

MADRID (AP) — Hollywood is not the only place where film production costs are soaring.

Famed Spanish director Jose Luis Borau ("Poachers") reports that the price of making a film in Spain has risen 40 per cent during the past year. "There are two reasons," he says. "One is inflation; the other is the new union rule that you can't shoot more than seven hours a day, even if the crew agrees to stay longer. Films that used to take five to six weeks now require seven."

GRANDPA BOONE — Singer Pat Boone, right, and his wife, Shirley, second from right, pose with their daughter and her husband, Lindy and Doug Corbin, and the first Boone grandchild, Rayan Patrick Corbin, born Friday in Los Angeles. Rayan weighed five pounds and 13 ounces. Mother and child (and grandpa) are all doing well.

Isaac Stern

Violinist to perform

Violinist Isaac Stern will present a recital in UCLA's Royce Hall at 8:30 p.m. Dec. 11, the third program in the Great Artists Blue Series.

Stern will open the program with Sonatina in G Minor by Schubert, followed by Enesco's Sonata No. 3 in A Minor.

After intermission, he will play Debussy's Sonate; Two Movements from Divertimento for Violin and Piano by Stravinsky; Adalgio in E Major and Rondo in C Major by Mozart; and Introduction and Tatantella by Sarasate.

The celebrated virtuoso will be accompanied on the piano by his long-time partner, Alexander Zakin.

Stern has toured the world, playing to sellout crowds, since he was in his teen. But his influence on culture has not been limited to performing. Stern was a founder-member of the National Council on the Arts and also has been an officer of the America-Israel Cultural Foundation. Without his intervention, Carnegie Hall would have been demolished in 1960.

Reserved seats for Stern's performance may be obtained now at the UCLA central ticket office, 650 Westwood Plaza, and all Mutual and Liberty agencies.

Having a ball

Grand uproar at Pavilion

By JOSEPH H. FIRMAN

"A Ball at Prince Orlofsky's," which opened the 10th anniversary visit of the New York City Opera at the Pavilion of the Los Angeles Music Center Wednesday night, was just that — a ball. A near full-house audience garbed in everything from tuxedos to sports jackets heard the second act of Strauss' "Die Fledermaus" and a Pops-pourri of star turns ranging from Herbert's "Italian Street Song" to the bolero from Verdi's "I Siciliani," from Massenet to "They Call the Wind Maria."

The slightly bizarre operatic olio got off to a bumpy start as the microphones pooped out when Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley and a Music Center official were trying to out-plaque each other in honoring snowy-thatched Julius Rudel, conductor of the opera company. Then the chandelier lights in Lloyd Evans' handsome but sterile set proved recalcitrant. To top it all off, in marched Tony ("The Odd Couple") Randall, decked out like a turn-of-the-century Austrian officer in off-the-shoulder jacket and tasseled boots. What, one wondered, next?

It was all fun and games but slightly more gamey than fun. The sparkling overture and the bouncy second act were delightful, highlighted by David Rae Smith's bored Prince Orlofsky and the considerable talents of David Holloway as Dr. Falke, a sprightly Sally of Diana Kehrig and a lissome Gianna Rolandi as Adele. Charles Roe and Ilona Simon were arch and melodious as the embattled Eisensteins.

Then stars and supers took up static poses about the two-level ballroom and remained frozen and expressionless as singer after singer strode into the spotlight to sing whatever came to mind. Some of the singing was magnificent, but the over all effect was slightly boring.

Most of the troupe's luminaries took a shot at center stage — Catherine Malfitano, Richard Fredricks, Maralin Niska, Pablo Elvira, Roberta Palmer, Mikhail Korogodsky, Faye Robinson, Samuel Ramey, Henry Price, Lando Bartolini. All high class, but the presentation was like a senior recital in high school.

The stars of the proceedings — well worth staying awake for — were the members of the mini-ballet, a skillful and engaging group that romped with zest through Thomas Andrew's imaginative choreography.

GETTING A LIFT — Whitney Rydbeck rides a pulchritudinous omnibus in a scene from "Stop the World, I Want To Get Off" at the Claremont Playhouse. The musical comedy by Leslie Bricusse and Anthony Newley will have its final performances at 8 o'clock tonight through Saturday. Neil Simon's "Come Blow Your Horn" opens there Dec. 10. Pat Miller directs.

Montoya slated for Garrison

Flamenco guitarist Carlos Montoya will present recitals in Garrison Theater, Claremont, at 8 p.m. Dec. 3 and 4. This is the second presentation on the Claremont Colleges' Artist Course Series.

One of the most widely heard performers in any concert idiom, Montoya has brought flamenco music to virtually every country, from the United States and Canada to Europe and the Orient, eliciting critical acclaim and audiency approbation everywhere.

In addition to his globe-girdling tours, Montoya also has won international favor through his numerous recordings. He is the most recorded flamenco artist in history and has become the symbol of flamenco music the world over.

A Spanish gypsy born in Madrid, Montoya was a musical prodigy, achieving national renown by the age of 14, when he was the toast of the "Cuadros Flamencos" during the heyday of flamenco singing and dancing. His debut as a concert artist was preceded by years of accompanying such distinguished dancers as La Argentina, Vicente Escudero and Argentinita.

The first flamenco guitarist ever to display his artistry in a solo concert, he has been hailed by aficionados as a master. His advanced technique, his flair for creative innovation and his varied repertoire make him one of the most exciting artists in the concert world today.

Tickets are available at the box office, Mutual or Liberty agencies, and by telephoning 626-4523 with BankAmericard or Master Charge.

Soviet leader wires Carter

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet President Nikolai V. Podgorny has told President-elect Jimmy Carter that he hopes relations between the Soviet Union and the United States will continue to improve after Carter takes office.

Podgorny's message, reported recently by Tass, the official Soviet news agency, said:

"Over the past years, a turn for the better in relations between the Soviet Union and the United States was achieved through joint efforts of both sides and a good foundation was created for their stable development.

"We should like to hope that in the period ahead our countries will be able to achieve further advance on this road in the interests of the Soviet and American peoples, in the interests of consolidation of peace and international security."

King Tut artifacts on display

WASHINGTON (AP) — An exhibition of priceless artifacts from the tomb of King Tut, opening a 30-month U.S. tour, promises to have diplomatic and commercial impact as well as art interest.

Officials of the National Gallery of Art anticipate that "The Treasures of Tutankhamun" will be one of the gallery's biggest attractions, equaling or surpassing recent shows on loan from the Soviet Union and the People's Republic of China.

The exhibition, which includes Tutankhamun's famous solid gold funeral mask, opened to public view Wednesday. Some 2,500 of the museum's regular patrons turned out for a preview on Tuesday.

Washington is just the start of a tour that will take the exhibit across the country. After closing here, it will be seen in Chicago, New Orleans, Los Angeles, Seattle and then at a grand finale in 1979 in New York City's Metropolitan Museum.

The show was agreed upon in principle by former President Richard M. Nixon and President Anwar Sadat of the Arab Republic of Egypt during Nixon's visit to Cairo in June 1974. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy signed a formal agreement for the show in October 1975. Kissinger himself viewed the exhibit Monday after a black-tie dinner at the gallery.

The loan was a gesture of Egypt's desire to improve its relations with the United States. Egypt will also get something in return.

The participating museums will sell publications and reproductions of jewelry, statuettes and other artifacts from the show. The proceeds are expected to net at least $1.6 million for work on the Cairo Museum and the Graeco-Roman Museum in Alexandria, Egypt.

Egyptian officials say the money will be used to renovate the Cairo Museum galleries that are the permanent home for the treasures from Tutankhamun's tomb.

Commercial firms have not been idle. There will be perfumes, calendars, note paper, jewelry, plaques and fabrics with Egyptian motifs. Washington area department stores are displaying Egyptian objects, and one store, Hecht's, has installed a gallery of objects on loan from the Egyptian Embassy, with a slide show from the National Gallery. It also is offering a new line of nationally advertised bedsheets and pillowcases with Egyptian designs.

The boy King Tut — also spelled Tutankhamon and TutAnkh-Amen — became a pharoah at age 9 and died about a decade later in 1324 B.C. But he achieved fame in the 20th century because his tomb was found intact in 1922, some 3,246 years after his death. Other pharoahs' tombs, probably richer in treasures, were ransacked by robbers over the centuries, but Tut's funerary treasures and mummy were preserved.

Some 3,000 objects were recovered by the British archeologist Howard Carter and his patron, the Earl of Carnarvon, and 55 of them — chosen for variety and beauty — comprise the exhibit.

They are displayed approximately in the sequence in which they were found.

T of C stocked with talent again

Expansion of the San Dimas Tournament of Champions has certainly not lowered the quality of the teams involved.

Once again the valley's premier basketball tournament has attracted much of the best individual and team talent in Southern California. And this year Clark High, a strong team from Las Vegas, Nev., has been added.

The Tournament of Champions, now in its fifth year, has been expanded into two separate tournaments. One, for small schools, will be called the seeded tournament, and the other, open to all schools regarless of size, will be called the open tournament.

Each tournament will have eight entries. The field for the open tournament will consist of Ganesha High, Long Beach Poly, Verbum Dei, Corona del Mar, Pasadena, Palos Verdes, Workman and Clark. The seeded tournament field includes host San Dimas, Damien, South Hills, El Dorado, Victor Valley, Moreno Valley, Mira Costa and Dana Hills.

Poly, of course, is the defending CIF 4A champion as well as the defending titlist in the Tournament of Champions.

The open tournament includes four of the top nine teams in the final CIF 4A writers' poll of last season in Poly (No. 1), Corona del Mar (No. 2), Verbum Dei (No. 4) and Pasadena (No. 9).

Playoff veterans

All four of those squads were in the 4A playoffs last year while Ganesha was in the 3A playoffs and Workman was in the 2A playoffs. Palos Verdes did not make it to postseason play last year but won the 4A title the year before by ending Verbum Dei's four-year championship string.

Among entries in the seeded tournament, Victor Valley (3A No. 6), South Hills (3A No. 9), Moreno Valley (2A No. 4) and El Dorado (2A No. 9) were all ranked in the final poll last year, and all went to the playoffs. Moreno Valley got as far as the semifinals while South Hills and El Dorado made the quarterfinals.

Individually, the Tournament of Champions is just as attractive. In fact, Street and Smith's Basketball Magazine lists 19 Southern California players on its all-America, honorable mention and outstanding players lists and seven of them will appear in the San Dimas tourney.

Duffy a top prospect

Among them is Damien's own Bill Duffy, who has developed into a very hot college prospect.

Duffy was named to the Progress Bulletin's All-Valley second team as a junior last year, and went on to excel over the summer in the Southern California Olympic Development League.

Coach Bill Roberts terms Duffey "probably the best guard in Southern California" and says he expects the 6-foot-4½, 185-pound senior to be the valley's best player this season.

Duffy, who averaged 14 points, 7.5 rebounds and five assists per game last year, is listed in the "Outstanding Players" section of Street and Smith's Basketball yearbook's high school outlook.

Also listed there are Long Beach Poly's Manny Johnson (6-7 senior), Ray Whiting (6-2 sophomore) and Tony Gwynn (5-10 senior), Corona del Mar's Alex Black (6-7 senior) and Workman's Bill Morales (6-0 senior). Poly's Dino Gregory (6-7 senior) is rated even higher as an all-America honorable mention.

The seeded portion of the Tournament of Champions will precede the open portion.

The seeded tourney will take place on Friday, Saturday and Monday, Dec. 10, 11 and 13, at San Dimas High the first two days and La Verne College the last.

The open tourney will run from Tuesday through Friday, Dec. 14 through 17, with all games at La Verne College.

Opening round pairings are as follows: Seeded Tournament — South Hills vs. El Dorado, Victor Valley vs. San Dimas, Moreno Valley vs. Damien and Mira Costa vs. Dana Hills. Open tournament — Verbum Dei vs. Ganesha, Pasadena vs. Palos Verdes, Corona del Mar vs. Workman and Long Beach Poly vs. Clark.

Anthony Munoz is lost to USC

LOS ANGELES — Anthony Munoz, former Chaffey High star, tore ligaments in his right knee in practice Tuesday and will be lost to USC for the rest of the season.

Munoz, the number two strongside offensive tackle, will undergo surgery at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center. Replacing the 6-6, 280-pound freshman, will be number two strongside guard Rick Miller, a 6-3, 280-pound senior. Munoz earned All-CBL, All-CIF and All-Valley honors last year at Chaffey.

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Outfielder Joe Rudi and shortstop Bert Campaneris are the latest refugees in the exodus of the Oakland A's via baseball's free agent route.

Rudi joined another ex-Oakland outfielder, Don Baylor, with the California Angels, and Campaneris signed with the Texas Rangers.

Both players agreed to long-term deals Wednesday and ex-Philadelphia Phillies' second baseman Dave Cash reached a similar arrangement with the Montreal Expos.

That's five signings in two days for super-agent Jerry Kapstein and four of the players he has parceled out are ex-employes of the A's and owner Charles O. Finley. Besides Rudi, Baylor and Campaneris, former Oakland catcher-first baseman Gene Tenace signed with San Diego.

Still waiting their turns are reliever Rollie Fingers, one of five free agents Kapstein still has available, and third baseman Sal Bando.

Finley retained the negotiating rights to all of his players as part of the free agent draft arrangement but, according to Kapstein, he never called the agent.

Rudi, who carried a million-dollar price tag after Boston paid Finley that much for him last June in a deal that was vetoed by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, bristled over the image his old boss has painted for himself in this free agent marketplace.

"It's incredible that Charlie comes out looking like the good guy," the veteran outfielder said. "The average people really don't know what is going on. People say, 'How can you not get along with such a nice man like that?' But they don't know him."

Rudi batted .270 with 13 home runs and 94 runs batted in for the A's last season. He missed three weeks when Finley refused to allow him in the lineup following Kuhn's block of the sale to Boston.

Only a strike threat by the rest of the team forced Finley to restore Rudi, Fingers and Vida Blue to active duty.

"Finley says he's trying to win," Rudi continued. "But going into September, when we still had a chance to win, he's trying to sell Sal Bando.

"I spent 13 years in one organization," said Rudi. "We had great closeness on that ball club. I had a lot of great moments there...but that's behind me now. Now, I'm looking to a great future."

So are the Angels. With Rudi and Baylor added to holdover Bobby Bonds, California has one of the top outfields in the American League.

"We are in search of a championship ball club in Anaheim," said Harry Dalton, executive vice president and general manager of the Angels.

California lost three minor league infielders, Paul Dade, Billy Smith and Tim Nordbrook, in the draft. That allows the Angels to sign three other free agents, one more than any other club except the A's, who can sign six.

So far the strategy has paid off with two quality outfielders in Rudi and Baylor and there's still room for one more if owner Gene Autry has anything left in his petty cash account.

The Expos were as happy with the acquisition of Cash as the Angels were about Rudi and Baylor.

The veteran second baseman said he chose Montreal because he wanted to stay in the National League and in the East Division. The Expos offered both those advantages.

Campaneris, 34, figures to move in at shortstop with Texas, allowing the Rangers to switch Toby Harrah to third base.

The two days of signings stripped the A's of four starting players and strengthened Texas and California in the AL West Division.

Still available for Kapstein's list are second baseman Bobby Grich and four pitchers, Don Gullett, Wayne Garland, Fingers and Doyle Alexander. Twice, the agent's news conferences announcing the Cash and Campaneris signings were interrupted by messages of urgent phone calls, obviously from ball clubs inquiring about his remaining players.

Braves get Matthews

ATLANTA (AP) — Saying he was glad "to get out of the cold on the West Coast," free agent outfielder Gary Matthews announced today he will sign with The Atlanta Braves in the National League.

Matthews told a news conference that it wasn't his best offer, but that it was "the fairest."

Matthews, 26, hit .279 last season with 20 home runs and 84 runs batted in while playing out his option with the San Francisco Giants.

He said he chose Atlanta because of "the way people treated me," and said he hopes to help the Braves improve on their last place finish last season.

Pranksters have their day at USC

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Phony editions of the UCLA Daily Bruin and Southern California Daily Trojan are not really new, but the gimmick is always good to remind non-football minded students at the schools that the big game is at hand.

Thus when a Daily Trojan showed up Wednesday at the Southern California campus with the headline "NCAA Declares SC Ineligible for Rose Bowl," those with a sense of the past history of the USC-UCLA football game knew it was another shot in the battle between the Bruin and Trojan students.

The four-page newspaper was phonied-up by the staff of the Daily Bruin and 5,000 copies were distributed Wednesday morning at USC, four hours before the real Daily Trojan was to be delivered. Similar stunts were perpetrated in 1949 and 1955, among other years.

Students at UCLA have for years been painting the USC mascot, a bronze statue of Tommy Trojan, blue and gold. In retaliation, USC students have painted UCLA edifices maroon and gold.

Saturday, when UCLA's No. 2-ranked football team meets USC's No 3-ranked team, someone may think of something that'll attract the attention of 92,000 in Memorial Coliseum and a national television audience.

The first shot in the 1976 battle was the newspaper, the lead story of which said the entire USC team had been declared academically ineligible.

"USC was just an extreme case," said the bogus article. "We began by investigating charges that the football coaches were hiring elementary school teachers to read playbooks to the offensive line. That happens a lot at the expensive, private degree mills that don't have entrance requirements."

Another story, on the sports page, was headlined, "Robinson Plans New Strategy to Distract UCLA Football Players." It said that USC Coach John Robinson's players would wear panty hose, false eyelashes and six-inch spike heels to distract Bruin players.

UCLA Daily Bruin Sports Editor Mike Sondheimer said his staff worked for two weeks putting out the bogus issue.

He said 22,000 issues of the Daily Bruin also carried the phony newspaper as an insert.

It's the latest twist in a long series of stunts. Once a USC student drove across town each afternoon and joined the UCLA rally committee. Working secretly 12 hours before the game, he switched the UCLA card stunts. When they were performed the following day, a red "USC" appeared in the corner of each stunt.

FATHER HINES AND SONS

It's 'Coach Hines' to sons

Progress Bulletin
Sports
Pomona, California ■ Thursday, November 18, 1976

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

La Verne College has carried its "family" concept one step farther in its football program this year.

The Leopards, who have had any number of brothers who followed brothers, now have a pair of brothers playing and their father coaching.

The coach, naturally, is Ben Hines and the players are sons Steve and Bruce. Steve, a wide receiver and a junior, plays only on offense. But Bruce, a freshman, is a defensive back and his father is his coach.

Ben, assistant football (in charge of defense) and head baseball coach, has enjoyed it for the most part. The only thing that would have made it better would have been another football championship.

"It's been a good relationship," Ben said. "I think that is due in a large part to the kids we have at La Verne right now. You know, the receptivness of the other players.

"Also, both of them have done well. Steve leads the team in receptions (22 for 422 yards) and Bruce has been one of the leaders in tackles among the defensive backs which is unusual for a freshman. They're both very good athletes. So one of the main things is that they have demonstrated clearly that, physically, they are where they should be. It might have been different if they were borderline players."

The success Steve and Bruce have enjoyed has been an added bonus.

"I've enjoyed it," Ben admitted. "I'm just like any other father and I like to see my kids do well. I particularly like them having fun at football which I think is important."

Of course the relationship on the football field is different than that at home. But Bruce is the one that notices that more than Steve or his father.

"It's 'coach' Hines here," Bruce grinned. "At the start of the season, I wanted to talk with my father and called out "dad.' He wouldn't pay any attention to me and I had to yell 'coach Hines.' So I accepted the fact that it was going to be that way. He's the coach and I'm just another player."

Neither Steve nor Bruce noted any particular problem in the fact that their dad is one of the coaches. Both admitted to some kidding, especially Bruce when practice first started.

I took a lot of kidding at first," he admitted. "But I earned my way to start and, of course, it's not like a big school where you have a lot of players for every position."

"They can both handle the razzing pretty well," said Ben. "We go at it pretty good in our family where we sometimes choose off sides and go at it. But again if it weren't for the fact that they're both having pretty good years, it would be difficult for them and for me."

Steve went to Mesa Junior College for a year after graduating from Bonita High. Then he transferred to Orange Coast for a year before transferring to La Verne.

"I always planned on coming back to La Verne to finish school," Steve said, "more for baseball than anything else. I missed football. I didn't play any football the two years I was in the junior colleges. I wasn't sure I'd play football until I got here. It's not real hard to get into the system here."

Asked why one son (Steve) went to a junior college and the other (Bruce) came directly to La Verne, the senior Hines offered this explanation.

"I think part of it was that Steve didn't know what he wanted to do," Ben said. "He wanted to get involved in a good JC baseball program for awhile and that's why he chose Mesa (Arizona). Then he went to Orange Coast because we have a house at the beach and it has a little bachelor apartment at the back and he decided he wanted to spend a year at the beach."

Ben expects both boys to play baseball for him next spring. At least he hopes they will.

"They pretty much make up their own minds," he said. "Jerry Kindall (Arizona baseball coach) almost persauded Bruce to go to the University of Arizona."

Both are infielders. Bruce is a second baseman while Steve, according to his father, can play either short or third. Both hope to play professional baseball.

"I've been drafted twice (by the Orioles and Tigers), but I'm going to finish school first," said Steve. "Then if I get drafted again, I'll sign."

"My goal is to play baseball here at La Verne and then to eventually get into professional baseball," said Bruce. "I'll sign with whoever drafts me. I knew I'd play both baseball and football in college and that's another reason why I came here. It's hard to play both if you want to go very far in one sport, but I knew I could do it here."

During the football season, Ben Hines, defensive football coach, has had one son to coach. When the baseball season rolls around, Ben Hines, baseball coach, will be able to work with both his sons. In between, he'll be able to watch daughter Kristie. She will be playing women's basketball and tennis.

Program helps get top names

The final stop on the 1976 NASCAR Grand National stock car schedule, the rich, $185,000 Los Angeles Times 500 at Ontario Motor Speedway Sunday, boasts probably its most formidable field ever, thanks in part to something called the Winners' Circle Award program.

The program, instituted this season to insure the presence of the most competitive drivers in the series at all 30 races, is viewed as a success by its creators because it has produced keener competition and probably a big reason behind the 15 per cent jump in attendance over a year ago.

Promoters like it because they can promise the big names like Richard Petty, Buddy Baker, Bobby Allison and Cale Yarborough and be guaranteed they will all show up.

The program is the reason why six drivers will win more than $200,000 in prize money this season, compared with only one last year.

But some say that the Winners' Circle also is why some of the "little people" that fill out the rest of the 30 and 40-car fields in Grand National racing are going broke.

To explain, there are eight spots on the program. Besides agreeing to run all the races, the participants need to have won at least one race the previous year "to prove their competitiveness."

A berth is worth $80,000 over the length of the season. Only seven drivers made it this year, and the first non-program driver to win this year would have been added to the current program as well as 1977. But so far no one has made it, although the lure of the money has kept about a dozen other drivers running all season.

David Pearson, a frequent winner, is not in the program because he does not run all the races. Donnie Allison, winner at Charlotte last month, is out now for the same reason.

Last year, only seven drivers—only three of which were winners—ran all races. This year it will be 14, including six winners.

Another driver who is likely to be adversely affected by the Winners' Circle program is one of the drivers it was designed to help, Bobby Alllison. For the first time since 1965, Allison is facing a winless season.

Even as a former winner at Ontario Motor Speedway, Allison takes little comfort in knowing this is his last chance.

Morgan's rushing earns 2nd award

There could be little suspense concerning the identity of the Progress Bulletin's Athlete of the Week this time around.

Walnut High's Kevin Morgan wrapped up his second such award in five week's when he rushed for an incredible 344 yards on 28 carries Friday in the Mustangs' 27-0 win over Bonita.

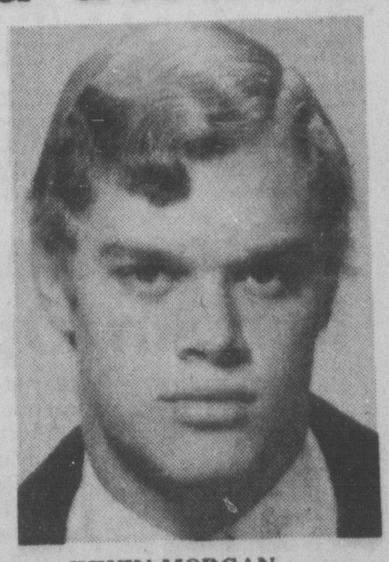
"When somebody came up after the game and said Kevin was up around 350, I thought he had to be wrong," said Walnut head coach Ken Gunn. "But we ran the films Saturday and counted it up, and, sure enough, he had 344."

Morgan's yardage total not only is the best on record for valley gridders, it ranks him 10th on the all-time CIF one-game rushing list.

Tops on that list is Whittier Christian's Craig Johnston, who gained 448 yards against L.A. Baptist last year.

Others on the list are Cantwell's Dave Johnson (401 against Pater Noster, 1969), Harvard's Kirby Andrews (385 against Paraclete, 1970), Rio Mesa's Steve Dixon (382 against Santa Paula, 1971), Baldwin Park's Rod McNeill (373 against Wilson of Hacienda Heights, 1968), Santa Monica's Mike Palmer (365 against Mira Costa, 1968), L.A. Baptist's Steve Tetrick (363 against Kennedy, 1972, South Torrance's Jeff Wang (349 against North Torrance, 1967) and Whittier Christian's Rich Gebhard (348 against San Diego Military Academy, 1973).

Morgan is also the valley's runaway top scorer, with 124 points in nine games. He has just under 1,500 yards for the season.



KEVIN MORGAN . . .
Prep Athlete of the Week

Also nominated this week was Alta Loma's Jill Taylor, who led her squad to the Hacienda League volleyball title.

Taylor, a 17-year-old senior, was named the Hacienda League's Most Valuable Player for volleyball Monday. She was also named MVP for the Gladstone Invitational Tournament earlier this season.

"Jill's performance in every game last week was superior," said coach Marilyn Shaw. Taylor and her teammates will begin CIF playoff action Saturday by hosting Indio.

Morgan will be honored at a dinner at the Pomona Elks Lodge 789 on Dec. 8.

Kicking around

With Adrian Mercado and Willie Keo

IF YOU CAN'T BELIEVE THE USSF, WHO CAN YOU BELIEVE? After phoning the U.S. Soccer Federation almost daily we reported that the USA was to meet Canada thrice last week in Haiti in World Cup eliminations. It turned out, the word received from the Empire State was not totally correct.

The truth was the USA played Haiti three exhibition games and the USA-Canada playoff game has still not been scheduled. The three games ended goalless. The significance of four and a half hours of scoreless play is speculative, but unless the level of play was of the highest caliber the three games must have added to one big bore. And they played a fourth scoreless game against a Swedish team.

THE REACTION RECEIVED FROM our readers to the English soccer games on Channel 28 has been terrific. If you enjoy viewing great soccer on the tube, send a postcard to Bill Oxley, PBS TV, 4400 Sunset Drive, Los Angeles 90027. This is small price for seeing great soccer direct from England. If you don't let them know you are watching, Channel 28 will cancel it . . . it's that simple.

Look what you will miss if you fail to respond: November 21, Portvale vs. Brighton; November 28, Leicester City vs. Manchester United; December 5, Birmingham City vs. Manchester City; December 12, Aston Villa vs. Tottenham Hotspurs; December 19, Birmingham City vs. Sunderland; and as a Christmas present (if you earn it) you'll see Arsenal vs. Manchester United. Games are televised Sundays at 6:30 p.m. KICKIN' AROUND has been invited to comment on the next game at halftime, so we'll be seeing ya.

A NEW MAGAZINE, "Soccer Corner" is on the newsstands. It is a totally American product which we hope will meet with your approval because we hope Soccer Corner will strengthen communication among the many soccer circles within the U.S. The premier issue contains a giant Pele foldout color poster in itself is worth the buck.

If it sounds like a plug, it certainly is. Kickin' Around is all for promoting the dissemination of soccer information whether it be radio, T.V., newspaper, or magazine. The media generally gives this great game the cold shoulder and as a result the "grass roots" are having to pull themselves up to the surface without much help.

The racks are full of magazines on karate, archery, fishing, table tennis, and even skateboarding, but now soccer is in there too, for the first time.

THE INTERNATIONAL SCENE: Italy: Lazio of Italy won the Italo-English Cup defeating Southhampton of England 2-0. Spain: Athletico Madrid remains in the leadership of the Spanish League despite losing 1-0 to Betis. STANDINGS: Athletico Madrid 14; Valencia and Barcelona 12; Real Madrid and Espanol 12. ARGENTINA: Boca Juniors blanked River Plate 3-0 in an Argentinian "clasico", and Independiente and Racing tied 1-1.

COLLEGE ACTION IS ALREADY INTO REGIONAL PLAYOFFS. The Far West finds defending NCAA champs U. of San Francisco going against UCLA, and San Jose matched with Washington, with winners playing-off for right to head east for the Dec. 4-5 finals in Philadelphia, (Div. One teams).

Div. Two is down to Seattle-Pacific (runnersup in '75) vs. Chico; and Hayward vs. UC Davis in the battle for the ultimate final at Seattle.

The NAIA won't have a valley representative as we hoped. Pomona-Pitzer fell to U.S. International University at San Diego by a scant 2-1 after leading at halftime 1-0, to finish the season with a fine 12-2-2 record. USIU and Biola do further battle with the Northwest or Canadian survivors . . . two of whom will enter the 8-team NAIA Finals at the Rose Bowl Nov. 24 through 27. If you've never seen the famous bowl, join all the AYSO teams who will help fill the stadium those four days. Getting the Rose Bowl for the finals is a real coup for soccer. Hats off to AYSO and NAIA!

Larry Littleton, events chairman of the four day NAIA national finals announced that all scheduled college and AYSO games for November 24 and 25 have been switched from the Rose Bowl to Pasadena City College.

The last minute switch, according to Bob Holden, general manager of the Pasadena Center, was a result of turf conditions, which do not permit four days of consecutive use of the Rose Bowl at this time.

Pasadena City College is located just two miles east of the Rose Bowl, on 1570 East Colorado Blvd.

All games, the banner contest and other events of November 26 and 27 will definitely take place at the Rose Bowl as scheduled.

FRITS ROSENVELDT reports good attendance at his Old Folks League in Ontario and welcomes more players who want to have some Sunday Fun, and in addition invites the Ladies to show up for 11 a.m. signup at Colony Park. Quite a few have already signed . . . so girls if you can't make it to Jack LaLanne's . . . there's always Frits'.

The Claremont Sunday Fun League romped thru a wet two games last Sunday . . . everyone seemingly enjoying the mud . . . and what kid could ever ignore a mud puddle? Everyone left El Roble tired but happy.

NCAA National Rankings at end of season: Clemson on top; Indiana and Hartwick tied for 2nd; Connecticut 4th; Temple 5th, followed by San Francisco, St. Louis, Quincy, Davis and Elkins and Adelphia. San Francisco won Div. One last year, Quincy took NAIA third straight time, Adelphia was Div. Two champ, and Brockport State Div. 3 titlists. The Jr. College diadem again went to Florissant Valley of St. Louis. Quincy, six times NAIA winners, beat a very capable Simon Fraser team (from British Columbia) in last year's final and the two may again clash at the Rose Bowl barring some wild upsets.

The Far West rankings: San Francisco on top; Colorado, Hayward, San Jose, Chico, Seattle-Pacific, Washington, UCLA, San Diego State, Westmont and Simon Fraser.

AFTER-THOUGHTS ON LAST SUNDAY'S TV GAME: The Wolves played well but they are not the team they were in the past . . . as their 2nd Division status attests. The glory days of Stan Cullis and Billy Wright, both Captains and center halfbacks for England in their time; Derek Dougan, Northern Ireland's dynamic striker, and Martin Buchan, Scottish International now with Manchester United . . . are long gone.

Backfield depth cuts Jones' rushing total

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

Halfback Ron Jones has a good reason why he isn't gaining as much yardage for Cal Poly this season.

"We have so many good backs this year," he said after being selected the valley's offensive player of the week for his heroics against San Luis Obispo last Saturday.

Jones has a good point.

While Andy Vinci's team has been hurt by injuries to his line, he has been blessed with a lot of depth in the offensive backfield.

Jones rushed for 720 yards on 105 carries last year to lead the Broncos in his sophomore season. This year, he has totaled 295 yards on 70 carries to rank third on the team behind Mark Sanders (624) and Brent Partridge (401).

But Jones has become more of a target for passes this season with 12 receptions for 197 yards compared to nine last year for 55 yards.

His biggest catch came last when he caught a screen pass from sophomore quarterback Sammy Ross for a spectacular 74-yard touchdown play which got Pomona back into the game early in the fourth quarter.

A few moments later, Ross connected with Dale Mitchell on a 54-yard TD pass to put the Broncs ahead, 22-19, with 2:53 left in the game only to have SLO rally back with a touchdown to pull out a 26-22 victory.

"The pros will be looking at Jones," Vinci said at this week's football luncheon. "I think he ran 120 yards on that TD run and showed a lot of moves."

"After I caught the pass, I turned upfield behind our blockers and saw an opening on the other side of the field," Jones said. "I knew we could come back in the fourth quarter and we did."

For the record, Jones ran for 56 yards on 11 carries and caught four passes for 103 yards to earn the Broncos' Player of the Week honor.

However, both Jones and Vinci paid special tribute to the offensive line for its performance against SLO.

"Our offensive line is real tough," Jones said. "They are a great group of fellows and it is comfortable running behind their blocking."

Vinci added, "It was our offensive line's finest game of the season. It seemed like they were really determined to protect our rookie quarterback."

Despite some early mistakes, Ross showed his skills in the second half in his first start as a Bronco because of the injury to regular Leo Costa.

"Considering everything, Ross had one heck of a game," Vinci said.

Jones, a junior from Porterville, says the Broncs are out to win Saturday's season finale against Puget Sound to go out as winners.

"Everybody is disappointed about last week's loss but that's behind us," Jones said. "We played a good team, and it just turned out the way it did. We want to get it together this week and get this last win."

BRONC BUSTERS — Costa was realeased from Pomona Valley Community Hospital Wednesday and will be on the sidelines Saturday night for the Puget Sound game.

Bronco cagers get stiff test

Cal Poly's basketball team will preview Monday at 8 p.m. in Kellogg Gym, hosting a powerful Athletes-In-Action team led by former UCLA center Ralph Drollinger.

Next assignments will take the Broncos to play at the University of Dayton on Nov. 27, at South Carolina on Nov. 29, at Notre Dame on Dec. 1 and at Kansas State Dec. 2.

"I know we'll get a stiff test from Athletes-In-Action, because they always have outstanding teams and have some of the nation's best former collegiate stars," said Bronco head coach Don Hogan, who is starting his fourth year as the team leader.

The Monday game will be the first competition Cal Poly has had against another team. The Broncos opened team practices on Oct. 15 and have seen only intrasquad game action. Currently 15 players are on the Bronco roster battling for the five starting positions.

Forward Jack Gamulin, guard Tom Ispas and center Don Johnson have been playing well for Cal Poly in practices, according to the coach, who reports that other Broncos also are doing well.

"Potentially we have the best team Cal Poly Pomona has ever had," said Hogan, a 1961 alumnus of Cal Poly. "How we do depends on how quickly we are able to reach that potential."

Tickets priced at $1.50 for adults, $1 for students and 50 cents for children, are available for the Athletes-In-Action game. Fans may purchase two adult season tickets for $10 or a family season ticket for $20. In all Cal Poly will host 11 games in Kellogg Gym. Ticket information may be obtained by telephoning the Cal Poly Athletic Department at (714) 598-4611.

The next Cal Poly home game won't be until Jan. 3, against Azusa Pacific. The Broncos open the California Collegiate Association season Jan. 14 at UC Riverside.

Poly opens swim slate

The Cal Poly swimming team, under head coach Bob Yamate, will open the 1976-77 season Saturday at home against the University of Puget Sound at 3:30 p.m.

Last year the Broncos finished third in the overall California Collegiate Athletic Association standings with 388 points, behind Cal State Northridge's 599 and Cal Poly San Luis Obispo's 427.

The Broncos went to the NCAA Division II Swimming and Diving Tournament last March and wound up with an 18th place finish out of 43 participants from throughout the nation. Cal Poly had 19 points total in the championships.

Soccer league slates signups

Registration for new men's and women's soccer leagues will be held Sunday at 11 a.m. at Colony Park, 1200 W. Fifth St. in Ontario.

The leagues are open to anyone over 20, preferably beginners or those without recent soccer experience. Registration is not restricted to Ontario residents — anyone may sign up. Registration fee is $10.

Original signups were held Sunday but because of bad weather that day, organizer Frits Rosenveldt has scheduled this second session.

Rosenveldt, soccer coach at Chaffey College, may be contacted at 983-8902 for further information.

Sifford takes lead in Open

By PHIL ROCHE
PB Staff Writer

Almost 30 years ago, in post-war 1948, Charlie Sifford of Los Angeles turned pro, but his game these days is sharper than ever.

Sifford, now 53, using his three-quarter swing almost to perfection, rambled around Glendora C.C. in a three-under round of 68 Wednesday to take the first day lead in the 76th annual Southern California Open.

Sifford bogeyed the 459-yard first hole, but turned the front side in 34, then planted another 34 on the scoreboard for the back nine.

One stroke behind at 69 are Rick Talt and Roger Calvin, a couple of touring pros taking a brief break from the PGA tournaments. Both rounds were posted at Glendora C.C., which according to scores, played easier than the narrow Via Verde C.C.

The best rounds at Via Verde came from amateur Scott Campbell and professional Jim Lynch, who both shot two under par 70s. Also in at Glendora with 70 were Mark Pfeil, Rick Divel, and Fritz Gambetta.

Claremont's Jon Fiedler fired a steady 71 at Via Verde

Kathy Brandt and Connie Elwell of Claremont will represent the San Antonio League in singles play while Shawnie Piper and Jeanne Urquizu of Alta Loma will represent the Hacienda League.

In doubles action, one Claremont duo of Cathy Claussen and Karen Claussen and another of Robin Su and Pam Papa will represent the SAL, while Bonita's Susan Arnold and Yvonne Radi and Alta Loma's Linda Saddlemire and Stacy Broeker will represent the HL.

Three other preliminary tournaments will be conducted simultaneously at three other sites — Cypress College, Pasadena College and Santa Monica City College — with the top two singles players and doubles teams from each prelim advancing to the finals at the Los Angeles Tennis Club on Monday, Dec. 6.

In the singles tournament at Chaffey High, Brandt will open with a bye before playing the winner of a first-round match between Urquizu and Cindy Hamilton of Elsinore. Piper will also have a bye in the first round before facing the winner of a match between Elwell and Lynn Hoyt of Hemet.

In doubles play, the teams of Arnold-Radi and Claussen-Claussen will receive first-round byes. Saddlemire-Broeker will face Tammy Bedwell and Lisa Baungarth of Bishop in the first round while Su-Papa will open against an opponent yet to be determined from the Desert Valleys league.

Kickers lose 4-2

The Diamond Bar Kickers of the Pacific Soccer League Juniors lost their first regular season game in two years as the undefeated South Bay Gunners outplayed the local team in a hard-fought battle, 4-2.

Since Coach George Ratajczak organized the Kickers, they have compiled a 37-2-2 record. They hope to get back on the winning track this Saturday when they visit Cerritos United at Haskell School in Cerritos at 1 p.m.

Diamond Bar opened the scoring with a goal by Henry Gonzales but the Gunners tied the score at 1-1 at the intermission.

Mike Brocki's goal gave the Kickers a 2-1 lead early in the second half but the Gunners scored three goals to take the victory.

YMCA sets cage tryouts

The Diamond Bar-Walnut YMCA will hold tryouts for both the girls and boys basketball leagues on Saturday at the Walnut High gymnasium.

The tryouts will start with the fourth and fifth grade boys at noon, sixth grade boys at 1 p.m., seventh grade boys at 2 p.m., eighth grade boys at 3 p.m. and fourth-ninth grade girls at 4 p.m.

Late sign-ups will be taken from 10 a.m. to noon or by contacting the YMCA or Ken Misumi at (714) 595-4488.

Morgan wins scoring race

Walnut High's Kevin Morgan outdistanced his nearest competitor by 40 points and his Mustangs finished atop the offensive team statistics in the final Progress Bulletin Prep Scoring Derby.

Morgan scored an amazing 20 touchdowns — seven more than runnerup Bob Pleasant — and a pair of two-point conversions for a total of 124 points in nine games.

San Dimas' Pleasant followed with 11 TDs for 84 points and Damien's Leo Burke and Bonita's Sanford Coggins tied for fourth and fifth places with 11 touchdowns and 68 points. Burke's total was amassed in just eight games, since Damien's incomplete game with Garey was not counted (nor was Burke's TD in that game).

Ganesha's Floyd Eddings was fifth with 10 touchdowns and 64 points.

Walnut finished the regular season with 236 points to Chaffey's 235 and San Dimas' 232. San Dimas won the defensive battle, however, allowing 52 points to runnerup Garey's 64 (in only eight games).

San Dimas also had the largest average winning margin among valley teams: the Saints scored 25.8 points per game while surrendering 5.8 for a 20-point differential.

Three teams — San Dimas, Chaffey and Alta Loma — finished among the top five in both offense and defense while four more — Walnut, Garey, Bonita and Ganesha — finished in the top 10 in both categories.

Decision nears on JRB

LOS ANGELES — One more weekend of play remains before the Junior Rose Bowl selection committee gets together to decide which out-of-state team will be invited to oppose a California eleven in the December 11 renewal of the mythical community college championship contest.

The selection committee, consisting of Glenn Davis of the sponsoring L.A. Times, Dr. Lloyd Messersmith, executive director of the California Community College Assoc. and Dr. Robert Lombardi, Saddleback College, will make the decision on Monday, Nov. 22.

Three teams which have ranked in the top ten on the national polls most of the year appear to have the edge. Mt. Hood, Oregon, riding a 21-game winning streak, Ellsworth, Iowa, unbeaten in nine games, and Wesley, Delaware, 9-0-0 in the Coastal Conference, are the leading contenders.

The high-flying Mt. Hood Saints (who have outscored opponents 383-86) are coached by Marv Heibert. They must get by Spokane Falls in Friday night's Northwest Conference title match. Mt. Hood slipped past the Spartans 20-6 during the season but must play the Washington team on its home turf this time. Spokane sports a 6-3 season mark.

Ellsworth concluded their campaign two weeks ago by trouncing Marshalltown 61-13. Vern Thomsen's Panthers outscored the opposition, 392-84, with the only close call a 27-20 decision at Iowa Central in the second game of the season.

Wesley has one game remaining, a Friday night encounter against Hartford (7-1) at Bel Air, Maryland.

Meanwhile, the California JC grid picture is anything but clear. Conference champions surviving post-season battles will be considered by the selection committee.

Citrus' Strycula to reach milestone

Citrus College football coach John Strycula was asked if it seemed to him that he'd been the Owls' head coach for 100 games, which will be the case Saturday night when Citrus plays at Riverside City College.

"I'll tell you the truth," the outspoken Owl mentor said. "After that game last Saturday, it seems more like 3,000 games!"

Strycula, one of the most successful junior college coaches currently on the job in the state, has a 72-21-6 overall record in his tenure at the Azusa campus. Thus Saturday's game with be his 100th as head coach of the Owls, and it will be a very timely present if Citrus can defeat Riverside in the final regular-season game of the season.

A victory by Citrus, currently 5-0-1 in the Mission Conference and 7-1-1 overall, over Riverside will give the Owls the conference championship and the right to host the Western States Conference champ the following Saturday in the Mission Bowl.

The Owls, who faced their stiffest challenge of the league schedule last week in their narrow 7-3 victory over Saddleback, will be looking for their third straight Mission title.

"Riverside is definitely a threat for us," Strycula said. "Early in the year they had some key people out with injuries, but some of them are back now. The pressure is all on us because we've got to win or tie this game to win the conference. Riverside has nothing to lose."

The Tigers, whom the Owls beat last year, 33-3, lost their first three games this fall but have since won three of the last five, including 18-13 win over Southwestern, a team which tied Citrus 14-14.

First-year Riverside coach Jim Kross' secondary has been impressive in the last few outings. Prior to last week's 35-21 loss to San Diego CC, the Tigers had held San Bernardino Valley and Palomar to a combined 50 yards passing.

Strycula has good reason to be weary after the narrow victory over a rugged Saddleback team last Saturday. Citrus needed a victory to virtually cinch the title in the game although they must secure it for sure in Saturday's finale at RCC.

"Saturday it was just a question as to who was going to crack — them or us," explained Strycula. "We cracked a little bit early in the game but stayed with it, and it was nip-and-tuck until they gave us the break. For both teams it was a great defensive effort." The break the Owls received came on the first play of the final quarter, when Saddleback quarterback Billy Yancy tryed to get past defensive back John Adams at the Gaucho 30.

Adams forced a fumble, which fellow defensive back Thumper White recovered on the Saddleback 26.

Alternating between fullback Raymond Butler and tailback Obie Graves, the Owls took four plays to score the lone touchdown of the game on a seven-yard run by Graves. It was the 72nd point of the year for Graves, just eight short of the Citrus school record of 80.

Aside from a 27-yard field goal by Saddleback's Jim Lachmund in the second period and a couple narrow misses by Owl kicker Bill Darrell on long field goal attempts, that took care of most of the offensive work.

Graves, now the number five all-time single-season rusher in Citrus history with 942 yards on 185 carries, managed to gain 81 yards against the Gauchos, which came into the game averaging only 71 yards a game rushing against their defense.

The victory was even more impressive, considering the loss to the Owls of starting defensive lineman Henry Camarena. Camarena was injured in an auto accident the night before the game. He suffered a concussion and a scalp wound, and it won't be known until late this week if he'll be able to play Saturday vs. RCC.

Mounties try for state C-C crown

The Mt. San Antonio College cross country team will go gunning for the state junior college title Saturday at College of the Canyons in Valencia.

The Mountie harriers are fresh off an impressive second place finish (behind Grossmont) in the Southern Cal finals, and Mountie coach John Norton is hoping his team can unseat Grossmont and American River, the Northern Cal champs, in action Saturday.

"I feel that this is our best overall team ever," Norton claims. "We are real proud of our guys.

"If we can put it all together this week we will be able to say without a doubt that this is the finest team in MSAC history. I feel we can beat Grossmont and American River if eveyone on our squad does his best."

Joe Ebiner led the Mounties' to the second place finish last week with a 20:19 clocking, which was a MSAC record for the Canyons course. Ebiner has recorded a 19:58 time this year.

Also shining in the Southern Cal finals were freshmen Dave Tillery (20:50), Barry Boettcher (20:53) and Billy Jones (20:59).

Co-captains for this year's team are Cip Gomez and Kevin Kellogg. The remainer of the MSAC squad consists of Gary Smith, Neal Ward, Jesse Garcia and Mike Green.

"If every man does what he is capable of doing, we are capable of being number one," Norton points out.

Cal Poly wins polo crown

Head coach Stan Jackson celebrated his third consecutive California Collegiate Athletic Association (CCAA) water polo championship at the helm of Cal Poly Pomona.

The Broncos took two out of three games in the CCAA Championships at Cal State Northridge last Friday and Saturday to win the crown again.

Poly finished the season with a league record of 5-1, while CS Northridge was 4-2, Cal Poly San Luis Obispo 3-3, and Cal State Los Angeles, 0-6.

The Broncos (13-10) defeated Cal State L.A. 16-9, in Friday's action and then beat CPSLO, 11-8, on Saturday morning. The host Matadors squeezed out an 11-10 victory over Cal Poly Pomona in the final game to make the league standings close.

"We're very happy about the championship," exclaimed coach Jackson. "Our main concern is to get exposure in the nationals, but our first objective was to win the conference."

Steve Peavler and Claremont's Craig Hildebrand were outstanding, not only in the championships but the whole season.

"Peavler and Hildebrand did an outstanding job for us," said Jackson. "Steve was averaging about three goals per game while Craig played tough on defense and maintained a one or two goals per game average."

Akron gets playoff bid

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — The University of Akron's third-ranked football team was one of three teams invited Tuesday to play in the quarter-finals of the NCAA Division II football playoffs.

The Zips, 8-2 and losers only to Division I opponents Temple and Marshall, will take on an as yet undetermined opponent Saturday, Nov. 27, here in the 35,000-seat Akron Rubber Bowl.

Defending Division II champion Northern Michigan and top-ranked Montana State were the other teams named Tuesday. Five other teams will be invited after Saturday's action and pairings will be announced early next week.

Pomona School Board OKs contract with teachers

By DAN NIEBRUGGE
PB Staff Writer

The Pomona School Board voted 3-2 to approve the 1976-77 contract with the Associated Pomona Teachers at a special board meeting held Wednesday night in the Pomona Education Center Board room.

All Pomona teachers in grades kindergarten through twelfth will receive an immediate eight per cent pay increase. Teachers also won their fight for maximum class size limits and binding arbitration for grievances. However, the APT lost in its struggle to set case work load limits for support personnel such as nurses and speech therapists and was also turned down in its bid to give teachers some right in determining their evaluators.

Terms of the contract, which takes effect immediately, run through Jan. 31, 1979. Earlier in the day, APT members voted for their decision to accept the agreement with 699 yes votes cast to 110 no votes for an 86.4 per cent approval.

Ratification of the agreement by both sides brings to an end negotiations which began when APT made its first contract proposal in March and which concluded with a teacher protest walkout on Oct. 28 after which the Board of Education declared an impasse in negotiations.

Following the impasse declaration, APT and administration representatives spent 12 working days hammering out the final contract with mediator Rick Odgers of the State Conciliation Service. With negotiations primarily handled by Judson Ellson of APT and Assoc. Supt. Sidney Moses of the administration, the final agreement was reached late last week after many sessions running from 8 a.m. into the early morning hours of the following day.

Trustees Ken Pine and Eugene Whitlock cast the two dissenting votes in Wednesday night's ratification. Noting his stance on binding arbitration, Pine said, "I cannot vote for any contract which incorporates binding arbitration. I believe that binding arbitration reduces the board's flexibility."

Pine said that, because this is his last year on the board he had wished to be able to leave the board having cast a yes vote on the contract but that his conscience wouldn't allow it.

Whitlock expressed his dissatisfaction with the contract by citing a need for "more productivity". In a prepared statement he said , "More pay, greater benefits and less education. Is that the way for Pomona? Is that the way we attract new residents and new business, and keep the people who are here?"

Whitlock cited recent test scores and said, "Our twelfth grade scores reflect our students being in the fifth percentile five points from being the worst district in Los Angeles County, but one of the best paid in salary and benefits."

Whitlock said, "I personally do not believe all the bargaining was done in good faith. Our children are not doing better. I believe the teachers got everything they wanted. We did not get many of the things I think we should have as regards performance. I cannot and will not support this contract knowing we are getting no guarantees of improvement."

Trustee C. Allen Braswell, who voted for ratification, said, "I feel good about this contract. I feel good about the implications of this contract. I am hoping for a new relationship of trust and confidence between us."

The APT won its fight for maximum class size and binding arbitration for grievances. Additionally, the contract contains provisions for group grievances.

Maximum class size for all elementary grades kindergarten through sixth will be placed at 32 students while secondary classes will vary with 32 in English, 34 in social studies, 32 in mathematics, 34 in science, 32 in language, 38 in senior high art and vocational classes not to exceed the number of work stations.

As for teacher evaluations, teachers will still have no say so in the selection of their evaluator. The power remains with the administration. Also, support personnel such as nurses, psychologists and speech therapists will continue to have work assigned as it is done now.

Pay increases for teachers in kindergarten through twelfth grade will include an eight per cent raise immediately, a six per cent raise effective July 1, 1977 and a two and a half per cent raise effective July 1, 1978.

Childrens' center personnel will receive a six and a half per cent raise immediately with five and two and a half per cent raises coming over the next two years.

Salaries, then, for 1976-77 will begin for a class one teacher on the first step (class one indicating a bachelor's degree) at $10,299. Top pay for a class one teacher on the 11th step is $15,037.

A class five teacher with a bachelor's and master's degree as well as an additional 60 units of college work will begin at $12,565 on step one and be making $20,598 at step 14.

Burns recommends 'no tax cut at this time'

FRB chairman sees no advantage, but keeps mind open on subject

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Arthur Burns of the Federal Reserve Board today recommended against a tax cut at the present time, but did not rule one out if the economy fails to recover from its current slowdown.

"I see no advantage in a tax cut at the present time," Burns said. "My mind on the subject, however, is by no means closed."

President-elect Jimmy Carter has said he will consider a tax reduction next year if the economic slowdown continues. Some of Carter's advisers have expressed concern that the Federal Reerve Board could offset the benefits by tightening the nation's money supply.

Burns has been trying to head off a possibe conflict with Carter on the matter.

The chairman made his statements in a speech prepared for the United States League of Savings Associations in New York. His remarks came as the government reduced its estimate of growth in the nation's economic output to 3.8 per cent during the fall quarter.

That rate is just below the level generally considered necessary to whittle down inflation.

The Commerce Department had estimated last month that the Gross National Product — or total output of goods and services — grew at an annual rate of 4 pert cent during the third quarter. The revised figures show an unexpectedly poor performance in foreign trade.

Referring to a tax cut, Burns said he "will weigh the issue carefully" if the economy apears to need such a stimulus and if there are "economies" in federal spending.

In any case, Burns said there is no need for a tax cut at the present time, partly because it could add to inflationary pressures and partly because he expects the economy to resume solid growth without one.

Carter has said he will meet with Burns next week to discuss the economy.

Buried alive!

Wood chips entomb worker 90 minutes before being freed

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Daniel Durham says he looks at life differently now that he has the chips off his shoulders — some 30,000 pounds of them that entombed him alive for 90 minutes.

Durham was dumped into a truck, buried under six feet of wood chips and carried 40 miles while his screams went unheard. Someone even walked over the chips, unaware that Durham was buried beneath.

"All of a sudden I was falling, and then I was buried," Durham said Wednesday. "I may have blacked out a couple times from suffocation. I knew I couldn't last more than five minutes more."

Durham was leveling chips in an elevated bin when he was dumped accidentally into the truck, which then headed for a fiber company 40 miles away.

Jerry Thorp, supervisor at Lumber Specialty Industries Inc., said Durham had neglected to block the driveway with a board that keeps trucks from backing under the bin while somebody is working in it. Better safety precautions since have been instituted, Thorp said.

Durham said he cleared about 1½ inches of breathing space and when the truck moved, he got air from a draft blowing through the chips.

Unknown to Durham, back at the lumber company Thorp had noticed him gone about 15 minutes after the truck pulled away. Realizing he might be in the truck, Thorp phoned fiber company officials, who contacted the driver by radio.

An ambulance awaited the truck at Longview, and workers dug and clawed Durham free. He escaped with only three cracked ribs and internal bleeding which has cleared up.

"He's a lucky fellow," added Thorp. "He wouldn't have lasted five minutes in sawdust."

Suspect in kidnaping, shooting case booked

Pomona police early today arrested a suspect in the kidnaping, robbery and wounding of a 17-year-old Claremont youth early Tuesday

The suspect, Robert Taylor, 21, of 1060 Royal Coach Ave., Pomona, was arrested at Garey and Lincoln avenues shortly after 1 a.m. He was booked on suspicion of kidnaping, robbery and assault with intent to commit murder.

The victim, Kenneth C. Morandi, was shot in the lower right jaw by one of two young men he picked up in Pomona as they were hitchhiking. They forced him to drive into an alley where they robbed and shot him.

Morandi's condition today at Pomona Valley Community Hospital was termed "fair."

Ford still mulling proposal

Expo '81 in Carter's hands?

By MAE TATE
PB Staff Writer

A decision from President Ford on Expo 81 is not immediately forthcoming and may be carried over into the Carter administration, according to White House officials today.

A White House spokesman said that although the Bureau of International Expositions approved the proposal for a class one world's fair at Ontario Motor Speedway Wednesday subject to presidential sanction, Ford and his staff are still studying the financial aspects of the proposal.

Expo 81 Corp. officials had expected prompt action by President Ford following the BIE action, but the White House spokesman said he was unable to indicate how long world fair officials would have to wait for a decision.

He added that it could be made within a week or might go in on into the Carter Administration.

California Congressmen are soliciting the president for action, but Bill Welsh, vice president of the Expo 81 Corp. board said the promoters are making no calls.

"On the financing thing, the action of the Ontario City Council (on a contractual agreement extending the time limit for Presidential approval and finalizing the financing question to March 11, 1977) changed the wording to some extent. But I don't think it will seriously affect resolution of the financing," Welsh said.

Welsh was confident that "we can come up with a final agreement that will satisfy the bonding company, the City of Ontario and us.

"The city voiced concern about a first trust deed in exchange for the $7 million from Allen and Co. But they were facing foreclosure on the speedway by the current bondholders which in effect meant the existing bondholders have the right to a first trust deed," said Welsh.

In order to resolve the problem, he said that it is most likely that a meeting will be arranged between Expo attorneys, Ontario City Atty. Sam Crowe and a representative of Allen and Co.

"We're relying upon Mayor (Paul) Treadway's statement at the end of the session Tuesday that the City of Ontario is as strongly behind the world fair as ever," Welsh added.

In regard to the delay in President Ford issuing a decision, Welsh stated "Obviously we're not going to pressure the White House."

"The BIE wants very much to see a world fair in Southern California. They're bending over backwards to help us. If we get that kind of help from people in the United States, then our problems are eliminated."

Home ownership: fading dream for most Americans

CHICAGO (AP) — New American homes are obsolete energy hogs and financially beyond the reach of 70 per cent of the nation's families, according to a panel of research and building specialists.

"Our track record in energy conservation is lousy," William Graves of Brookhaven National Laboratories in New York, said Wednesday. "Thirty per cent of the energy we use is used in buildings and half the heat now produced in a furnace goes up the stack.

"We're hooked into an obsolete building technology based on 20-cent-a-gallon oil."

Graves and three others appeared on an energy conservation panel to start a three-day building and construction exposition that is expected to attract more than 20,000 members of the building industry.

Another panel member said that while the construction of single family dwellings may be in a moderate boom period in some sections of the country, they are being priced out of the market.

The median price for a new home is between $40,000 and $50,000, said Richard Schoen, an architect with the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, Calif.

"Based on HUD statistics which allot about 25 per cent of a family's income for housing, that eliminates about 70 per cent of families from the new home-buying market," Schoen said.

The panelists said the result is that the days of the traditional American dream home with its landscaped lawn and patio may be numbered.

"I think we're seeing it already," said David Dorn of the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory in Livermore, Calif. "We're seeing the construction of more four-and eight-family home units and that is not necessarily a disadvantage. For one thing, there's a lot more open space and efficient use of open land."

All the panel members believe that no single energy source holds the solution for buildings of the future and that approaches will be based on regional resources, climate and other factors.

They also were slow to lay blame on the building industry itself.

"You can't say it's necessarily backward," said Schoen in an interview.

"There are 90,000 small home builders in the country and 90 per cent of them build less than 50 homes a year. The largest single producer has less than a 1 per cent share of the market."

"Savings and loans should set down payment requirements accomodating energy improvements and take into consideration that money saved on utility costs could allow families to handle larger monthly payments."

MSAC faculty requests class release time next spring for negotiations

The Mt. San Antonio College Faculty Association wants class release time next spring so it can negotiate its work agreement with the Board of Trustees on college time.

Mrs. Pat Perez, president of the group, asked the trustees Wednesday to allow 20 per cent of classroom time for 10 teachers — the equivalent of two full time teachers — so the faculty could bargain for a new contract, and handle whatever grievances come up during work hours.

The trustees took the request under advisement.

The request was a response to an earlier proposal by the board which had suggested that the teachers could take even 50 per cent of their work time for negotiations provided no time was taken from the classroom.

Teachers at MSAC work a 30-hour week — 15 hours in the classroom, and 15 more in support activities which include student conferences, preparation of lessons, correcting papers and attending meetings.

Mrs. Perez said the faculty association rejected the board's earlier proposal because it would not have left the teachers any time to prepare for classes and take care of the bookwork.

She told the board that a similar request for release time already was granted to the faculty by trustees at Saddleback College in Orange County.

Besides the request for release time, the president of the faculty also submitted to the board a 96-page master contract proposal for the fiscal year that starts next July. A large portion of the proposal deals with provisions already in effect at the college.

The proposed contract calls for a pay raise that would tack a three per cent increase to a cost-of-living formula. Thus, if next year's cost of living rose six per cent, the teachers, under that proposal, would be granted a nine per cent pay raise.

Mrs. Perez asked the board to study the proposal and to set up a meeting with teacher representatives by not later than Dec. 16.

The current negotiations are the result of Senate Bill 160, a new law which for the first time permits the state's teachers to bargain as an officially organized unit. Still to be heard from at MSAC is the California School Employees Association of classified workers which is expected to present a proposal of its own, probably next month.

Mrs. Perez said the faculty association represents 700 teachers in day and evening classes.

TWIST OF THE WRIST

Ben Johnson, the Academy Award-winning actor from the movie "The Last Picture Show," shows Steve Ford, 20, son of the President, some of the fine points of roping. Upland District trustees hire help

Upland School District trustees have hired a Los Angeles law firm to assist them in negotiations with the Upland Teachers Association.

The firm of Whitmore and Kay has been employed to represent the trustees in employment contract negotiations for a fee which has a $6,500 minimum and a $12,000 maximum, according to Acting Supt. Glenn W. Hardy.

There have been numerous meetings since negotiations were opened in July, Hardy said, but very little has been resolved at this point.

Hardy said the minimum fee for the law firm is based on 100 hours of service, with a fee of $65 per hour for each hour over that until the maximum fee is reached.

He added that the trustees had budgeted $10,000 for legal fees this year and all expenses above that will have to come from contingency funds.

The teachers have asked for a 10 per cent pay raise and the trustees have countered with a four per cent figure.

Is Brown playing Scrooge again?

SACRAMENTO (AP) — For the second year in a row, a state employe group says Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. is playing Scrooge at Christmas time.

Last Christmas, the California State Employes Association showed a caricature of Brown on its Christmas cards telling Santa Claus it was fine to wish everyone a merry Christmas and a happy New Year, "but is it reasonable? And who's going to pay for it?"

On Wednesday, the Clerical and Allied Service Employes (CASE) issued a press release urging Brown to declare Dec. 24 and Dec. 31 state holidays so 110,000 state workers could spend the days with their families.

Christmas and New Year's fall on Saturdays, and state law doesn't provide time off when a holiday falls on Saturday. If it falls on Sunday, state employes get Monday off.

Brown told reporters he'd give state workers an answer a month before Christmas.

CASE is distributing Christmas cards and suggesting that they be sent to Brown. They picture Brown as Scrooge telling a clerk, "Lower your expectations, Cratchit! Why should you expect a holiday, just because it's Christmas?"

The card includes this verse:

" 'Twas the day before Christmas, And all through the state, All the clericals were working, 'Cause Brown's a cheapskate."

Flu shots available at weekend clinics

Flu shots will be available to all persons 18 years of age and older free of charge during clinics this weekend at the Montclair Plaza, Claremont Colleges and a La Verne church.

These newly announced clinics are being offered by public health departments in addition to the clinics which started in October and are scheduled to be completed by early December.

Immunizations will be offered at the Montclair Plaza on Friday from 5 to 8 p.m., Saturday and Sunday from noon until 4 p.m. The immunization team will be located near the clock in the center of the mall.

Additional clinics in the West End will be held Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. in the Montclair High School cafeteria and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. at Alta Loma High School.

Parents of children with a chronic illness who are between the ages of 3 and 17 and who have had their first flu shot are reminded to obtain the second shot on Friday from 1 to 4 p.m. at the West End Health Center, 1020 W. Sixth St., Ontario.

At this point, healthy children are not being included in the immunization program in Los Angeles or San Bernardino counties, according the public health officials.

The Edmund Union on the Pomona College campus in Claremont will be the site for a flu clinic Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Ontario City Council approves amended agreement on Expo pact

By MAE TATE
PB Staff Writer

The amended agreement of a contract with Expo '81 Corp. was finally approved by the Ontario City Council after considerable haggling over an attempt by the mayor to acquire any liquid assets or cash generated by the Expo '81 Corp.

The council action followed a lengthy meeting which ended Wednesday morning, hours before the Bureau of International Expositions gave its sanction to the Expo '81. President Ford's signature is still needed for final approval.

Tempers nearly flared between Mayor Paul Treadway and Expo '81 attorney, John Skoog, when the mayor tried to force an addition to the agreement that would arbitrarily cause the non-profit corporation to distribute its assets to the city by Dec. 31, 1986.

Although the council has only donated $10,000 on paper to the exposition, the mayor continued to push the asset point first raised during an Ontario Motor Speedway Corp. executive board meeting Monday. The OMS board refused to include the addition calling for the distribution of the assets to the city upon dissolution of Expo '81 Corp., saying such a decision was a function of the City Council. They agreed there would be objections to such an action by the council.

But during the council session, OMS board president George Mim Mack did not comment on the mayor's point.

Attorney Skoog said that Expo '81 had only asked for a mere 120 day extension of the agreement with the city and OMS board and agreed to clarification of the city's reversionary rights to the speedway. However, the corporation was faced now with two major revisions that would change the original agreement, the asset distribution question and the request to allocate funds now for the tearing down temporary structures at the speedway and funding the transition plan from exposition back to speedway.

Skoog said he could live with the language of most of the changes, particularly the inclusion of specific dates for performance of certain requirements. He suggested clearing the site be included in the master plan and a special committee to plan, coordinate and implement the transition be appointed on or before June 1, 1978 with the submission of the master plan.

He refused to agree to the funding question now, however, saying that "There is no way that a lien can be placed on the gate receipts before the revenue bonds. You're asking us to guarantee success. We can't do that . . . The success of the venture is that everything will be done, but problems can arise. It doesn't make sense to me to set up a promise at the end that impends you from doing what needs to be done at the beginning."

City Atty. Samuel Crowe agreed to the suggestion that the transition plan be included in the master plan. With a few other minor changes acceptable to both parties, Councilman Robert Abel moved for approval of the amended agreement.

Treadway insisted that there "will be some impositions, costs and burdens to house and accommodate an exposition of this size. Any assets that have accumulated during the exposition should be left with the city and not taken out.

"I don't feel that $10 or $20 million should be generated in Ontario and taken and spent in the City of Los Angeles when they won't even give a financial contribution. Any access funds should first come back to the City of Ontario rather than going to some foundation or some source outside of the city," Treadway said.

Skoog said that the assets would probably go the City of Ontario anyway, but "this is not the time or the place to bring it up." Treadway bit back, saying "When is the time and the place?

"We're gone quite a far afield. This is quite a difficult question at this time. It might be a prior lien on bondholders and bonds that haven't been issued yet. If you put us in a position of committing funds to other things before the bonds we won't be able to sell the bonds. And there won't be a fair."

Councilwoman Faye Dastrup, who voted against the original extension resolution Friday, said that she had disagreed with the longer extension but now felt that the agreement protected the city.

Treadway finally relented when Abel continued to refuse to amend his motion to include the asset distribution issue. The vote was unanimous.

PETITIONS FOR PARDON

Clutching a bunch of roses, 60-year-old Iva Toguri D'Aquino, convicted in 1949 for her World War II activities as Tokyo Rose, stands on the steps of the old San Francisco Federal building Wednesday with her attorney Wayne Collins. She is seeking a presidential pardon.

Tokyo Rose asks Ford for pardon

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Iva Toguri D'Aquino held a bouquet of red roses and stood on the steps of the old federal courthouse where she was convicted 27 years ago of treason as "Tokyo Rose."

"Age is creeping up on me and I'd like to finally get it all over with," the 60-year-old Japanese-American woman said Wednesday.

Then she mailed a petition asking the U.S. Justice Department and President Ford for a pardon that would restore her United States citizenship.

"I'd like my citizenship restored so the possibility of deportation can never be brought up again," said Mrs. Toguri, who prefers her given name.

She was convicted in 1949 of broadcasting anti-American propaganda from Japan to American GIs overseas during World War II.

She served 6½ years of a 10-year sentence and successfully resisted government efforts to deport her when she was released from prison. Two previous efforts to regain citizenship failed: a clemency request in 1954 during the Eisenhower administration and a pardon petition in 1968 during the Johnson administration.

The new three-page petition said her conviction was a miscarriage of justice and claimed government prosecutors, now deceased, knew some grand jury testimony against her was perjured.

The petition was written by attorney Wayne Collins, whose late father defended Mrs. Toguri in her trial. The pardon drive is also supported by the California Legislature and a number of leading political figures.

Mrs. Toguri said Wednesday she is hopeful of success. "I think the general climate in the country has changed, and I hope it has," she said.

Mrs. Toguri was a Los Angeles-born American citizen who was visiting a sick aunt in Japan when war broke out, and she was barred from leaving, according to a statement from the Japanese-American Citizens League, which is supporting her bid for a pardon.

Although 14 English-speaking women were hired by Japanese radio to broadcast to American soldiers, Mrs. Toguri was the only one to be prosecuted, the league said.

"American soldiers coined the name 'Tokyo Rose' and applied it to any and all women broadcasters heard on Japanese radio," the statement said.

The league said Mrs. Toguri used the name "Orphan Ann" in her broadcasts, written by three American POWs who told her she could help the American war effort by watering down and burlesquing Japanese propaganda.

"President Ford is now a lame duck President and politicially it wouldn't hurt him," said Edison Uno, one of the Japanese community leaders who presented the roses to Mrs. Toguri at a news conference Wednesday. "We are very optimistic and have paved the way behind the scenes."

In Washington, White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said the Justice Department had been notified that a request for a pardon had been mailed to the department's pardon attorney. He declined further comment.

Childless and separated from her husband, Mrs. Toguri now manages a family import store in Chicago.

Abuses at Camarillo

Nurse names names in Grand Jury testimony

VENTURA (AP) — Patients are undersupervised, too heavily medicated, sometimes choked, and tended by poorly trained employes at Camarillo State Hospital, says a nurse, blaming the hospital's management for concealing poor conditions.

In a startling departure from the testimony of most witnesses during an investigation of deaths at Camarillo, Linda Holder offered Wednesday to tell all she knew, naming names and specific details.

Admittedly nervous on the witness stand, the 13-year employe of Camarillo suddenly poured out a story that accused higher-ups, including acting medical director Dr. Martin Gish, of participating in a cover-up to deceive state inspectors.

Her testimony came during the second week of a public investigation by the Ventura County Grand Jury. The investigation resulted from a year-long probe of patient deaths at the hospital dating back to 1972. Investigators have called at least 55 deaths "suspicious."

The 32-year-old nurse said that when an inspection is due, "they find out what unit will be will visited. They put new pajamas on the patients, put new sheets on the bed, and call extra help from other units" to make it appear the hospital has adequate staff.

"They cover up the conditions that we have to work under," she said, adding that she had been recently directed to work alone on the admissions unit, which receives many violent patients.

In the past, Mrs. Holder continued, her complaints went unheeded and she was afraid to give her version to inspectors.

"I'm not afraid anymore," she said, though she added that administrators were having her transferred from the admissions unit to another part of the hospital.

Gish, speaking to reporters after Mrs. Holder's testimony, said of the cover-up allegations, "I think that's long past. I think that happened during Gov. Reagan's administration."

About understaffing, he said, "We wish it would be better. The people above us are working toward improving it."

Coincidentally, the American Civil Liberties Union submitted to the 16-member grand jury Wednesday a report calling Camarillo's management an "administrative nightmare."

The report said "(the administration) encourages and rewards staff members who look the other way when patients are abused or mistreated and punishes those who speak out when they see something wrong."

The statement, submitted by Ventura County ACLU chapter officer James Provenza, included several criticisms similar to those mentioned by Mrs. Holder.

The allegations included understaffing, an "absence of strong, decisive leadership," failure of hospital management to investigate suspicious deaths, and widespread over-medication of patients.

"We have found that patients at Camarillo State Hospital are systematically given large doses of drugs as a means of control rather than therapy," the ACLU report said.

It went on to say that prescriptions which can be given by nursing staff "as needed places the decision-making power over the use of these drugs in the hands of psychiatric technicians who are neither trained nor qualified to make such decisions."

Called as a witness in the Feb. 4 death of Thomas Riddle due to strangulation and a drug overdose, Mrs. Holder said she would not have given Riddle the multi-drug tranquilizing shot he received hours before his death.

She said that in the past she has refused to carry out orders she considered harmful to a patient, and that such action has resulted in "counseling" by supervisors and a label as a "trouble maker."

Overhaul 2-3-year process— Carter

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — President-elect Jimmy Carter's promised reorganization of the federal government will be carried out in a "very careful, deliberate process" over the next two to three years, a key Carter staff member says.

Carter discussed that proposed reorganization, the economy, and his dealing with the House and Senate in a three-hour meeting with Democratic congressional leaders Wednesday at Sen. Herman Talmadge's home at Lovejoy, Ga., about 40 miles south of Atlanta. He later received expressions of support from some of the legislators present.

Carter, who was repeatedly referred to as "Mr. President" at the meeting, said later he had asked the legislators to "direct me to make the executive branch more efficient."

Another topic was Carter's expressed desire to forge a bipartisan foreign policy. A Carter aide later said Carter will seek a meeting with Republican leaders to ask advice and "give them a feeling of participation without their feeling that they were being co-opted."

Carter told the Democratic legislators he wants Congress to reenact the Hoover Reorganization Act which, before it expired last year, gave the president the authority to reorganize the federal government subject only to congressional veto.

A Carter aide said the president-elect told the group "again and again" that he has a commitment to the American people to reorganize the government. "I hope you'll accommodate me," he quoted Carter as saying.

Conditions even worse in nursing homes, says Brown

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. says problems plaguing state mental hospitals may be dwarfed by conditions in community board and care facilities.

"After we get through with the mental hospitals we are going to start looking at the board and care homes and other places in the community and we are going to find things that are even worse. It will be shocking," Brown said Wednesday.

The state mental hospital system has been rocked by a series of revelations in recent weeks that includes investigations into patients' deaths at Metropolitan State Hospital in Norwalk and Camarillo State Hospital in Ventura County.

Also, a medical inspection team withdrew accreditation from Napa State Hospital's psychiatric treatment wing after it found 42 regulation violations during a visit last July.

And disciplinary records show more than 200 employe offenses in the 11-hospital system in the last two years, including 28 cases described as "patient abuse."

In an informal press conference in his office, Brown would not specify what types of problems he expected to find in community care facilities, saying only that they would be the "kind of things you find in mental hospitals."

He referred to both board and care homes and community care facilities, but did not get more specific than that. Both nursing home-type facilities and local facilities for the mentally ill come under that description.

He also would not say if he had any specific information on poor care at at such local facilities. "I am just giving you my expectations," he said.

However, the state Health Department announced Wednesday that its inspectors have been making unannounced visits to nursing and board and care homes throughout the state for the past month.

Brown added, "I can tell you that when you have people who are poor and who are left out of society and have particular problems and then you have others take care of them and no one's watching over that whole process you have problems."

Brown said he didn't agree that his administration had moved too slowly to deal with problems at the mental hospitals or that he did not provide enough funding for hospital staffing.

"I don't know who would say that," he said. "Dr. Lackner (state Health Director Jerome Lackner) established the Office of Patients' Rights, which has begun to stir all this up.

"It was only after the patients' rights groups, the Health Department and the Little Hoover Commission and certain journalists in Southern California started getting into it that all of this started coming out."

He said 1,000 unfilled positions at the hospitals — not a lack of funding — was responsible for any staffing shortages.

Body of missing boy, 4, found

TEN SLEEP, Wyo. (AP) — A month-long vigil by the parents of 4-year-old Ronnie Rea, who was unable to speak and was legally blind without glasses, has ended with the discovery of his decomposed body.

The boy's disappearance on Oct. 11 had baffled searchers.

Ward pleads guilty to lesser charge

The second of seven wards charged with attacking security guards at the Youth Training School in Chino Sept. 21 has pleaded guilty to a lesser charge under the terms of a plea bargain in Chino Municipal Court.

YTS ward Everett Washington, 21, originally charged with assault with a deadly weapon on a peace officer while in prison, pleaded guilty to the lesser charge of assault by means of force likely to cause great bodily injury to YTS guard Gary Cauble.

The greater charge was dismissed under the terms of the plea bargain by Judge Philip Schaefer.

Last week YTS ward Jordan Flagg, the alleged precipitator of the riot that seriously injured Cauble and a second guard and touched off an escape by 12 inmates, pleaded guilty to two counts of assault with a deadly weapon. The five remaining YTS wards charged in the incident began their preliminary hearings Wednesday afternoon.

Judge Schaefer ordered Washington to appear in Superior Court for probation reports and sentencing on or before Dec. 8.

Man jailed in Chino robbery

A 24-year-old Ontario man was arrested by Ontario and Chino police shortly after an armed robbery at the Mohawk Self-service station at Oaks Avenue and Riverside Drive in Chino Wednesday afternoon.

Antonio Munez Navarro was booked in the San Bernardino County Jail for investigation of armed robbery, according to Chino police.

Investigators said a lone gunman drove into the service station about 3 p.m. He left his car and approached the attendant.

One of the missions of the auxiliary is in patrolling the nation's coastal areas. In 1975, the auxiliary was directly responsible for saving 27 lives and $21 million in property in Southern California. Another area is in public education. 'Package with care' suggests postmaster

Ontario Postmaster Charles F. Linck Jr. is encouraging mailers to "package with care" this year.

"Customers who follow our fundamental packaging procedures will be more assured that their gifts will arrive in time for Christmas and, most of all in good condition" he added.

The ABC's for packaging Christmas gifts for mailing follow.

—Fragile items can damage each other within the same package if they are not individually cushioned and separated by fiberboard strips. Newspaper or similar materials provide good cushioning.

—Textile products need a sturdy container because they offer little support to the box. If the outer corrugated container is too large, it can easily be trimmed to size by slitting the four corners as needed.

—Sturdy hardware items such as electric knives deserve good packaging, too. The light paperboard box in which such goods are sold was never intended to be a shipping container. Always place the display container within a sturdy corrugated box. Cushioning can be crumpled newspaper or similar materials.

All packages intended for mailing should be sealed with reinforced tape, said Linck. Customers also are reminded to only put the address on one side of the outer carton. However, a supplemental address card may be placed inside to assure delivery if the outer address becomes illegible.

Ontario firm honors employe

In November of 1956, Betty Kilpatrick was asked by a friend to help the Don Rancho Co. for a couple of hours work.

She agreed, just as a favor, but her job turned into the longest running favor on record. Today, 20 years later, she is still there.

Since that time, the company has grown and today is known as Richton Sportswear, makers of the Hang Ten brand, which is located in Ontario.

In honor of the contribution she has made to Richton's growth, she was presented with a plaque in tribute to her many years of service. She is a long time resident of Ontario.

Los Serranos boy injured

An 11-year-old Los Serranos boy was injured Tuesday night when he rode his bicycle into the path of a car on Los Serranos Boulevard east of Monte Vista Avenue in the Chino area.

Roger Dale Woodham, 122 Los Serranos Blvd., was listed in fair condition Wednesday at Park Avenue Hospital, Pomona, with multiple injuries suffered in the 5:10 p.m. accident.

California Highway Patrol officers said the youth attempted to cross the highway southbound when he was struck by a car driven by Thomas Stevenson Wood, 26, of 105 E. H St., Apt. 4, Ontario.

Wood told patrolmen he saw the boy on the bicycle ride in front of him and he slammed on the brakes but was unable to avoid the collision.

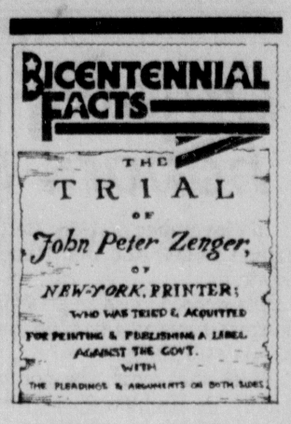
Mouse club leader dies

LOS ANGELES (AP)— Private funeral services will be held for Joseph "Roy" Williams, one of the leaders of Walt Disney's "The Mickey Mouse Club."

Williams died Sunday at his home in Burbank. He was reported to be recovering from a recent heart attack.

Williams worked for Disney for 39 years as an art director and consultant. He designed the "Mousketeers" hat, the now-famous symbol of Disneyland and Disney productions.



The trial of John Peter Zenger, said Gouverneur Morris, was "the morning star of that liberty which subsequently revolutionized America." In 1734 Zenger, publisher of the New York Journal, was charged with seditious libel.

But the appeal of the distinguished Andrew Hamilton for "the Liberty — both of exposing and opposing arbitrary Power . . . by speaking and writing the Truth" brought a swift acquittal.

Pomona boy hurt when hit by car

A 6-year-old Pomona boy was injured late Tuesday afternoon when he was hit by a car while he was enroute to school.

The victim, Tomas Rodriguez, of 2289 Orange Grove Ave., was struck when he suddenly ran into Glen Avenue north of Arroyo Avenue from in front of a parked car, police reported. The child was taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital where he was treated and transferred to County-USC Medical Center. His condition was termed fair there Wednesday. Complaints against debt collectors are being dealt with

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A new regulatory code aimed at reducing what has become a record volume of complaints against debt collection agencies is nearing completion, a state official says.

Douglas Faigin, chief of the State Bureau of Collection and Investigative Services which licenses and regulates collection agencies, said a public hearing here this week was the fifth and final hearing on the proposed rules.

Faigin said the revised code would include provisions that would:

—Restrict collector contact with a debtor's employer.

—Provide remedies if collector contact with a debtor at work endangers the debtor's job.

—Require all written forms demanding money from a debtor be reviewed by the state bureau.

—Prohibit collectors from making representations that are false and made for the purpose of harassment.

Faigin said the 1,963 complaints made against California collection agencies' practices in the last fiscal year "amounted to a 41 per cent rise in just three years."

He said only 19 per cent of the complaints checked out as unjustified, and an additional 13 per cent were against unlicensed collection agencies.

Alicia Cortez

Chino names future school

A future elementary school in Chino will be named for Alicia Cortez, the first Latin teacher in the district and wife of former mayor Zeke Cortez.

The Chino school board, on a 3-2 vote, has decided to name the proposed school on the Magnolia Avenue site for Mrs. Cortez.

Mrs. Cortez taught in the district from 1936 to 1940 at the old D Street School. She later became a substitute teacher at other schools.

A native of Chino, Mrs. Cortez graduated from Chino High School. She was the recipient of the Rotary Club's Citizen of the Year award several years ago, and she has been active in the Sister City Committee and League of Women Voters. She was a founder of Chino Council of Social Services.

Board member Augustine Tapia moved to name the school for Mrs. Cortez, and he was supported by Lyle Briggs and Paul Peterson. Opposing the motion were Board President Al McCombs and Pete Vander Poel.

Two other names had been offered by other board members, said Tapia. Those included Levi Dickey, former superintendent of schools, and Willora Williams, former district administrator.

Both McCombs and Vander Poel argued it was not good policy to name a school after a person who was still living, such as Mrs. Cortez. "Someone who is alive might go out and shoot a person tomorrow," McCombs noted. "Then where are you?"

Tapia contended the board named the Chino High gym after ex-basketball coach Frank Elder two years ago. Elder is still living.

"How come when I make a recommendation (of Mrs. Cortez), all of a sudden Pete (Vander Poel) wants a ew policy on naming schools?" asked Tapia.

He is a Diplomate, American Board of Anesthesiology, Fellow of the American College of Anesthesiologists and the American College of Legal Medicine, member of the American College of Physicians and numerous professional associations. Lasker Award winners announced

NEW YORK (AP) — The World Health Organization and the first woman to get an Albert Lasker Basic Medical Research Award were among the 1976 Lasker Award winners announced Wednesday.

They were joined by two scientists involved in the development of a "milestone" drug used against severe high blood pressure and heart disease. The Lasker Awards are given to honor medical, biological or clinical work that leads to significant lessening of a major cause of disability or death. Since the Lasker Awards were established in 1944, 25 Lasker winners later became Nobel Prize winners.

The winners, named by Mrs. Albert D. Lasker, president of the Albert and Mary Lasker Foundation, are:

—Dr. Rosalyn S. Yalow, a nuclear physicist and senior medical investigator, Veterans Administration, New York, the $10,000 Basic Medical Research Award for discovering and developing the technique of radioimmunoassay for measuring concentrations of substances such as hormones, viruses and drugs.

—The World Health Organization, awarded the $10,000 Special Albert Lasker Public Health Service Award, for "its historic achievement in the imminent eradication of smallpox — the first and only disease ever to be eradicated from the earth." There are only a few known cases of smallpox in the world today.

The award was accepted by Dr. Halfdan Mahler, director-general of WHO, and Dr. Donald A. Henderson, chief of the Smallpox Eradication Unit, Geneva. They said the U.S. Center for Disease Control, Atlanta, contributed to the effort.

—Dr. Raymond P. Ahlquist, professor and chairman, department of pharmacology, Medical College of Georgia, Augusta, and Dr. J. W. Black, professor and head of the department of pharmacology, University College of London, England, share the $10,000 Clinical Medical Research Award.

Dr. Ahlquist won for his concept of receptors or "receiving stations" for hormonal messages in the cardiovascular system. Dr. Black, using that concept, designed a drug, propranolol or Inderal, which the Lasker awards jury called "one of the most important drugs of the century," for severe high blood pressure and heart disease.

Dr. Yalow, who also is distinguished service professor at the Mount Sinai School of Medicine, conducted her work in collaboration with the late Dr. Solomon A. Berson, her associate from 1950 until his death in 1972. The awards will be presented at a luncheon on Friday at the St. Regis Hotel. The chairman of the awards jury is Dr. Michael E. DeBakey, the heart surgeon, who is president and chief executive officer of the Baylor College of Medicine, Texas Medical Center, Houston.

Casino take 11% higher

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — Nevada casinos won nearly $352 million during summer months this year — an 11 per cent increase over the same period a year ago.

The Nevada Gaming Commission said that the take in taxable gross revenues during July, August and September was about $35 million higher than the sum taken in the same period a year before.

Phil Hannifin, chairman of the state Gaming Control Board said the revenues ran about what the state had anticipated.

The winnings by the casinos during the third quarter of calendar 1976 meant more than $18 million in taxes for the state. That's a $2 million increase over the tax take netted during the same period in 1975.

The quarterly figures show that clubs in the Las Vegas area grossed more than $223 million, for an increase of nearly 12 per cent over the same quarter last year.

The figures also showed clubs in the Reno-North Tahoe area with winnings up 13 per cent.

ALL IN A ROW — A worker at PPG Industries in Creighton, Pa., inspects auto windshields with "pigtails" of built-in radio antennas. The antenna windshield, sporting nearly invisible wires embedded in a plastic layer between two glass plies, is an option to exterior antennas because it offers more safeguards against vandalism.

Brown administration's delay cost state?

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California lost several hundred thousand dollars in interest this year because the Brown administration delayed applying for up to $50 million in available federal highway funds, the Sacramento Union reported.

State Transportation Director Adriana Gianturco has since applied for the funds.

But the Union said Ms. Gianturco decided not to apply for the money in June after being told by a top aide that the funds might raise questions about how much Caltrans needed, in light of its existing surplus.

That $185-million surplus as of June 30 prompted criticism of the Brown administration from advocates of more freeway building.

No proof was offered that the size of the Caltrans surplus influenced Ms. Gianturco's decision not to apply for the federal money in June.

The newspaper said Ms. Gianturco, an appointee of Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., decided in late June not to apply for $40 million to $50 million in federal funds that were due the state from a recomputation of past federal aid projects.

Robert Adams, Ms. Gianturco's assistant for financial management, said the aid application was delayed until a six-year highway plan was adopted.

"We consciously held the decision up until we had the long-range program," Adams said.

The pro-freeway state Transportation Commission and Ms. Gianturco's department have adopted rival long-range plans.

Government finding

Long-term jobless are not chiselers

WASHINGTON (AP) — New government studies suggest that the long-term unemployed are unable to find jobs and are not chiselers who "ride with the system" at government expense.

The studies — one by the Labor Department and another prepared for the government by a private firm — show that the overwhelming majority of those who had exhausted their jobless benefits were still unemployed a year after the benefits ended.

Roger Rossi, who heads the department's unemployment insurance research division, said the studies provide the first information about who the longterm unemployed are and what happens to them.

The findings tend to rebut arguments by some economists and politicians that unemployment benefits discourage people from looking for work and that those who use up their benefits either quickly get jobs or drop out of the labor market.

The findings also could be important to the incoming Carter administration, which will have to decide early next year whether to recommend continuation of the emergency jobless aid program.

That program, which provides an extra 26 weeks of federal aid — for a total of 65 weeks — to persons who have used up their 39 weeks of regular and extended state-federal benefits, expires in March.

Labor Department figures show that more than 2.7 million Americans exhausted their benefits from January 1975 through last July. The latest figures show there were 7.6 million persons out of work but seeking it in October. This was a joblesss rate of 7.9 per cent.

Because the government does not keep track of individuals who are no longer entitled to benefits, no figures are available on the actual number of these people who found jobs or dropped out of the labor force. However, the two surveys indicate most were still looking for work several weeks after their benefits ran out.

The department found in a four-state sampling that 80 per cent of those surveyed were still in the labor force two months after their benefits ran out, but only 16 per cent found jobs.

The other survey, based on interviews in four major cities by Mathematica Policy Research of Princeton, N.J., showed that about 25 per cent of the "exhaustees" were working within four months after benefits stopped and that only 36 per cent found jobs after one year.

"The low re-employment rate and the low incidence of labor force withdrawal shortly after exhaustion do not support the hypothesis that long-term beneficiaries 'ride with the system' and then immediately take jobs or leave the labor force," the department report says.

The surveys found that despite federal law banning age discrimination in employment, about 70 per cent of the exhaustees "were beyond the prime working years, that is, 45 years of age or older."

Young white males had the highest re-employment rates, the studies showed. For those who found jobs after benefits ran out, the surveys found their wages averaged $19 a week less than on their previous job.

The Labor Department study was based on surveys in California, Missouri, Nevada, New York and Wisconsin. The Mathematica survey involved samples taken in Atlanta, Baltimore, Chicago and Seattle.

REUNITED AFTER 41 YEARS — It was a tearful reunion at the Orlando, Fla., airport for four sisters who were separated after their mother was declared unfit in 1935. Mrs. Dorothy Wiley, left, is welcomed at the airport by her sisters, Mrs. Agnes Wagner, Winter Haven; Mrs. Olier Mowery, Auburndale, and Mrs. Carolyn McIntire, Miami.

Nutrition, dental health ideas: more quackery than truth?

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—A California educator believes certain proposed new concepts about nutrition and dental health are closer to quackery than the truth.

"To me, it's irresponsible for a scientist to make an experimental animal out of somebody by overselling them," said Dr. William T. Jarvis, assistant professor of dentistry at Loma Linda University.

Jarvis told a convention of the American Dental Association that many well-meaning but misguided people, some of them prominent in the dental profession, are promoting ideas which have previously been identifiable only as "nutritional quackery."

Jarvis used sugar as an example.

"They seem to have to convince the patient that just the fact that its bad on their teeth isn't enough, they have to convince them it's going to kill them," Jarvis explained.

When persons using such overkill tactics to achieve their goals are questioned by the scientific community, they usually resort to blasting the government regulators or the medical profession as being corrupt, Jarvis said.

"Because they don't have the scientific evidence, all they can do is impune the opposition. So the effect of this is to undermine the public's confidence . . . whether it be health care, the food supply, government watchdogs, the regulators, and this creates an image in the mind of the patient. 'I can't trust my doctor, I can't trust the government,' and of course in America we have enough paranoia as it is," Jarvis said.

Jarvis said many health food supporters suggest honey as an alternative to sugar as a sweetner. He said honey is just as bad as sugar.

Prevention needs to be sold as a practical method in private practice.

Despite claims by some nutritionists and health food experts that today's food is the source of practically all dental and medical problems because of over-processing, devitalization, soil depletion and other reasons, Jarvis said food today is "probably better" than it has ever been.

Opening lead — J ♥

By OSWALD & JAMES JACOBY

The student counted his winners before playing to trick one. There were eight top-card tricks and just one extra club trick would give him game and rubber.

He ducked the first heart on general principles, but had to win the second in dummy. Then he cashed dummy's queen of clubs, led a second club toward his hand and went up with his king. West dropped a low diamond and the student's fourth club trick had gone into limbo. Five minutes later the opponents had chalked up 100 points above the line.

"Wasn't I unlucky?" asked the student.

"Yes, you were," replied the Professor. "But you made your own bad luck. You only needed four club tricks. Once East followed to the second club you could be sure of four club tricks by simply finessing the ten spot.

"Your play of the king would have been correct if you had needed five club tricks, but you only needed four and should have taken the safety play to insure yourself against the actual club break."

Nuclear plant water supply given okay

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The state Public Utilities Commission has approved the environmental impact for a water supply proposed for a new nuclear power plant, another step toward clearing the way for construction of the plant southwest of Blythe.

The plant would be built and run by the San Diego Gas & Electric Co.

The PUC action Tuesday applies only to the proposed plant's water supply and not to the plant as a whole, a PUC spokesman noted. But it does mean the utility can seek approval of water supply agreements.

San Diego Gas proposed to build two units at the site, one to be operative in 1984 and the other in 1986.

Economic growth in valley continues

A 23% rise over 1975; much higher than average SoCal figure

By ED PRATHER
PB Staff Writer

Substantial economic growth continued in the valley cities during the second quarter of the year, according to taxable sales figures released this week by the State Board of Equalization.

Total taxable sales for the quarter in the nine valley cities was $251,627,000, compared to $204,451,000 for the same period in 1975.

That represents a growth of 23.0 per cent, which is well in advance of the Southern California average of 13.7 per cent and the statewide average of 13.9 per cent.

The continued housing boom and the recovery of the auto industry were leading factors in the growth both locally and statewide.

In Pomona, for instance, auto dealers and stores sold more than $14 million in merchandise during the three month period.

Housing starts and sales all over the valley not only increased sales of building materials, but also spilled over into the other retail categories as well, such as furniture, as new residents set up housekeeping.

Statewide there were authorizations for 55,000 new residential units during the quarter, which is 50 per cent higher than a year earlier.

Through the first two quarters of the year the rate of new housing construction, if continued through the year, would result in about 196,000 new homes and apartment units being built.

While housing and car sales enjoyed big gains, they were not alone as mobile home trailer sales also spurted, up 36.9 per cent in California.

Service stations also showed considerable growth, 12.2 per cent, as Californians returned to their old pre-gas shortage ways and purchased an all time record 2.74 billion gallons of gas during the quarter. The previous record was 2.69 billion set in the third quarter of 1973.

Figures for individual cities in the valley were:

—Pomona $92,893,000, up 18.1 per cent from $78,597,000 and a 36.9 per cent share of the valley market.

—Ontario $49,697,000, up 29 per cent from $38,500,000 with a 19.7 per cent share of the valley total.

—Montclair $43,391,000, up 20.5 per cent from $36,000,000 with a 17.2 per cent of the valley market.

—Upland $25,317,000, up 29.1 per cent from $19,605,000 with a 10 per cent portion of the valley total.

—Chino $16,319,000, up 28.5 per cent from $12,698,000 for a 6.4 per cent share of the valley market.

—Claremont $9,978,000, up 24.9 per cent from $7,986,000 for a 3.9 per cent share of the valley market.

—La Verne $7,017,000, up 33.3 per cent from $5,262,000 for 2.7 per cent of the valley market.

—San Dimas $6,224,000, up 21.3 per cent from $5,131,000 for a 2.4 per cent share of the valley total.

—Walnut $791,000, up 3.6 per cent from $762,000 for a .3 per cent share of the valley market.

Cities in the valley receive one penny on the dollar through sales taxes collected by the state.

Claremonters push for peak pricing, surcharge on water

By GEORGE MacLAREN
PB Staff Writer

Claremont residents and city officials ignored terms such as step increases and rates of return and pushed for peak pricing and pumping surcharges Wednesday before a Public Utilities Commission examiner at Claremont city hall.

PUC Examiner John Gillanders flew from San Francisco to hold a public hearing and receive testimony for and against the Southern California Water Co.'s requests for rate increases of 9.34 per cent this year and step increases of 1.3 per cent in 1978 and 1979, and a rate of return of 15 per cent to the common stockholder. No decision was made.

Claremont City Manager Norman King, speaking for the City Council, requested that the water firm establish a surcharge on all or a portion of the water used at peak periods during the year, specifically during the four or five months when the largest volume of imported water is used.

King estimated that 70 per cent of the water used by Claremonters is well water, and that it would be in the interest of Claremont customers to discourage water use at peak periods.

King explained that his request is justified because peak pricing or a peaking surcharge more accurately will relate the cost of service to the revenue received.

King also asked that the utility set a pumping surcharge on water used in a specific pressure zone or combination of zones in Claremont.

Of about eight pressure zones in Claremont, five are north of the Thompson Creek Flood Control Channel, King explained.

King said that the areas north of the channel have no indigenous supply of water, and all water used must be boosted from the flatland.

"Because the cost of pumping is increasingly a greater portion of the delivered price of water, it is reasonable to establish differential rate zones," King testified.

He said that consumers in each rate zone would pay a pumping surcharge equal to the estimated cost of pumping the water into that zone.

King asked that the water company study the concepts, and if they are found reasonable, to implement them at once.

W. V. Caveney, senior vice-president of the water company, agreed that it would be incumbent upon the company to study the concepts, and that the staff could do that within six months.

Early in the hearing, examiner Gillanders chastized the firm for not filing with the PUC reports ordered when the PUC granted the firm's last rate increase in 1974.

CHECKMATE! It didn't take long for "expert" chess player Douglas Root, a student at Chaparral Intermediate School in Diamond Bar, to win all 10 of these games with members of the Ganesha High School Chess Club at an exhibition held Tuesday. The 13-year-old youngster played the games simultaneously and after three hours it was all over as player after player went down to defeat. Doug said afterwords, "I only had trouble with three of the games."

Stays in Chaffey High District

By CONRAD CASLER
PB Correspondent

Pullout of Ontario-Montclair Elementary School District from Chaffey High School District is a dead issue today.

San Bernardino County's Commission on School Organization killed the proposal Wednesday night at a public meeting in Chaffey High School auditorium.

After two hours of pro and con testimony which produced no verbal fireworks among professional educators and taxpayers on both sides, the 11-man commission headed by rancher-housewife Mrs. Dortha Cooley killed the measure in a unanimous vote.

Supt. Jack Jones of Ontario-Montclair District, said his board of trustees probably will not appeal the decision nor file a new petition "within the near future." An Ontario-Montclair citizens study group recommended the unification action last spring.

G.A. Chalfant, president of the Chaffey board of trustees, said the vote pleased him. Chaffey trustees voted in August to oppose the proposal by Ontario-Montclair to pull out of the Chaffey district and form a kindergarten through 12th grade school system of about 23,000 pupils, taking with them Chaffey, Ontario, Montclair high schools plus the district's only continuation school.

This would have left the balance of the district with almost as many pupils with only two high schools — Upland and Alta Loma. Both of those schools are already overcrowded with almost 800 surplus Alta Loma High School students bused to other district high schools now.

Negative vote by the school reorganization commission means the nine grade school districts now feeding Chaffey High School District will remain intact. They include Alta Loma, Central, Cucamonga, Etiwanda, Guasti, Mt. Baldy, Mountain View, Ontario-Montclair and Upland.

Chaffey District taxpayers have voted down bond proposals to build a new high school in the rapidly growing Upland-Alta Loma-Cucamonga area since 1963.

Handbills hinder negotiations in Bonita

By BOB SWETNAM
PB Staff Writer

Controversial handbills recently distributed door-to-door by teachers in the Bonita Unified School District have apparently led to a slowdown in salary negotiations between teachers and district administrators.

The handbills, which express the concern of teachers for a fair and equitable solution to contract negotiations, have been termed by Bonita School Supt. James Johnson as a "propoganda flyer" and "hitpiece."

Johnson at a board of education meeting Wednesday night called the teachers' handbills "confusing and misleading.

"This flyer was circulated unsigned and undated," said Johnson. "The distribution of it was in direct opposition to the Bonita Unified Teacher Association (BUTA) president's request that all negotiations be held at the bargaining table.

"Since the names, addresses, and telephone numbers of school board members were printed on the handbills, it led a number of persons to believe the flyer had been prepared and distributed by the board."

Johnson, who in the past has been critical of the California Teachers Association (CTA), the umbrella organization for the BUTA, for encouraging teacher groups to use public opinion as a tool in salary negotiations, told BUTA President Robert Shears, "I think we could do better if we tried to enlighten people rather than confuse them."

In a statement to the board, Shears defended the BUTA's use of the handbills. "We make no apology for our use of the flyer. It was never intended as a 'hitpiece' such as the superintendent implied. In fact it was a model of restraint and objectivity," he said.

"We discovered that many voters in the community were not even aware that negotiations were taking place and that little progress was being made. The issues certainly need publicity and explanation," he told the board.

Primarily, disagreement between the teachers and the administration centers on the issue of salary and class sizes.

The administration claims the teachers salary demands would cost taxpayers an additional $3 million in taxes if accepted in their present form.

"We just don't have that kind of money," said Johnson, "and where the BUTA thinks we're going to get it is beyond me."

Shears, however, believes the teachers' request would cost only $1.5 million.

"We are looking for a reasonable and equitable contract and the administration knows that," said Shears. "When we say reasonable we are obviously referring to what is reasonable within the financial constraints that apply."

So far, teachers have been offered a two per cent raise in salaries. Apparently they are seeking a raise in the neighborhood of five to six per cent.

Representatives from both sides today will meet for the 26th time in an attempt to hammer out a settlement.

Benefit marathon race slated Friday at Grand Prix course

The Grand Prix Driving Course in Pomona will be the setting for a 600-lap, 24-hour marathon race starting at 7 p.m. Friday.

The marathon, supported by widely known race drivers and entertainment personalities, will benefit the Help Them Walk Again Foundation.

The foundation is dedicated to the research and rehabilitation of spinal injuries, stroke and central nervous system disorders.

Teams will drive the course 600 times, at a cost per team of $1.50 per lap. Sponsors of the marathon are seeking team supporters from the community and business firms.

In case of rain, the event will be held on Nov. 26 and 27.

The activities at the Grand Prix Course will include entertainment by Les Brown Jr., Ricky Nelson, Bill Dana and the Ontario 500 queen and her court. Live music will be presented during the event and prizes will be awarded.

The Help Them Walk Again Foundation was organized last spring in Las Vegas, Nev. The national chairman is Mrs. JoAnne Toadvine, the mother of a paraplegic child.

Since its founding, the organization has already established chapters in 29 states.

"The public must be made aware of the increasing epidemic of paralysis and spinal injuries that have confined more than 250,000 young people to wheelchairs or beds due to accidents that damaged their spinal cord or central nervous system," Mrs. Toadvine said.

"Researchers now feel thay are close to developing some methods of spinal regeneration, possibly even cure in some cases," the chairman said.

"Research has been neglected because it was thought that no cure was possible and because no funds were available."

The foundation is operated entirely by volunteers and all funds collected at the marathon will be used for research.

Two Pomonans hurt in two-car crash

A couple riding double on a motorcycle was injured Wednesday night when their bike hit a car after running a stop sign at Mountain and Bonita avenues in Claremont, police reported.

The pair was southbound in Mountain when they entered the intersection and collided with the car. The driver of the motorcycle, Thomas E. McFadden, 21, of Pomona, told police that the vehicle's brakes failed. Both he and his passenger, Kathleen Becker, 17, of Claremont, were taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital where Miss Becker was reported in good condition today. McFadden later was transferred to County-USC Medical Center where his condition was said to be "fair."

The driver of the car was Pamela R. Tucker, 16, of Claremont, who was westbound.

Upland man crossing Foothill hit by car

A 20-year-old Upland man crossing Foothill Boulevard west of San Antonio Avenue in Upland was injured Wednesday evening after being struck by a small foreign car.

Brian Douglas Beckerof 759 Birch Ave., was treated for multiple injuries at San Antonio Community Hospital and later released.

Also injured in the accident was the car's driver, Frederick Hal Draper, 28, 88 W. Ninth St., Upland.

Police said Becker was thrown against the car's front windshield injuring the driver.

Draper said he would seek his own medical care.

Bloodmobile to be held in D.B.

Thanks for a job well done

In handing President Gerald Ford the narrowest of defeats on Nov. 2, the American people have paid him high tribute.

It was Rep. Gerald Ford who, in 1974, assured his colleagues that should he somehow inherit the presidency he had no ambitions to run for the office in his own right in 1976.

Few expected to hold him to that promise, if it was a promise — nor was it a condition of his appointment to the vice presidency. But in defeat, Gerald Ford at least has the consolation of knowing that, against all the odds, he very nearly won election to an office that in his 30 years as a congressman he never dreamed of seeking.

He has much more than that to console him, of course.

If all the commentators agree on one thing about Gerald Ford, it is that he was the right man in the right place at the right time. Whatever his want of brilliance as a national and world leader, his calm administration and the personal respect and trust he commanded carried the nation successfully over one of the most crucial periods in its history.

That judgment might have been vastly different four years from now, however, had candidate Ford won the election — and only a few votes in a few key states would have done it.

Taking office next January in an uncertain and worsening economic climate, lacking any dramatic new plans for attacking the nation's problems and without any power base in an overwhelmingly Democratic Congress to support those plans if he had them, the Ford Administration might well have foundered and drifted for four years — and with it the nation.

America needs more than a caretaker president in the immediate years ahead, and the American people in their collective wisdom decided at the polls on Nov. 2 that for all their doubts about Jimmy Carter, he was the candidate who offered the greatest hope of providing the kind of leadership the highest office in the land must provide.

But this is no rebuff to Gerald Ford. If he is no Lincoln, neither is he a Herbert Hoover, a man overwhelmed by events and turned out of office as unequal to the challenges of the times. Mr. Ford's narrow defeat was high tribute, and a tremendous expression of thanks from his fellow citizens for a job well done.

Gerald Ford will certainly never be remembered as one of our great presidents. But the passage of years can only add luster to his name and a deeper appreciation of the yeoman service he rendered the nation during his brief interim administration between Watergate and the Carter era.

It's all right, Ma

They may call her "Ma Bell" but she's no women's libber — not when it comes to separate telephone book listings for husbands and wives.

It seems that a growing number of people are complaining about the Bell System's policy, which is general throughout the country, of imposing an extra charge for a separate listing, or not offering double listings like "John and Mary Doe."

It's unfair, says one Long Island, N. Y., woman because "it puts pressure on one of the persons in the marriage to submerge his or her identity." She and her husband have taken their complaint to the New York Public Service Commission.

The telephone company argues that granting a free separate listing to each husband and wife would increase the cost of its directory "substantially" and that the cost would have to be borne by all subscribers.

We hate to place ourselves in the position of supporting a monopoly, but in this case our sympathies are with the company. If it's important to a spouse to have his or her "identity" in the telephone book, then he or she ought to be willing to cough up the modest charge (about a buck a month) to defray the cost.

The fundamental school

Dear Editor:

At a recent meeting, the Chino school board discussed the fundamental school once again. Although it has postponed the implementation of the fundamental school at this time, Citizens for Improved Education applauds trustee Lyle Briggs for his continued support of such a school and for his motion to form a new committee, one composed entirely of people who are sincerely interested in basic education and which will present to the board a workable plan for a fundamental school.

CIE recognizes that there are problems in our district and we want to do something about them as far as our own children are concerned. We identify the No. 1 problem as poor education. We do not intend this statement to be an attack on any teacher's ability, nor intend it to be disloyal to the district. We merely put our dedication to better education for our children above any ego situation.

Chino Unified School District tested last year at the 23 percentile. We feel that identifies the No. 1 problem. We do, however, remind the reader that we are speaking only for those who are NOT satisfied with 23. Those who are satisfied with the 23 percentile for their children have reached their goal. We have not. Those of us who want a fundamental school want our children to test at the 70-80 percentile.

The No. 2 problem we identify as poor citizenship. Citizenship we define as discipline, manners, and moral training, anything that would demand our children to respect the rights of others, and their own responsibilities both to others and to themselves.

We hear the constant complaint "parents do not care". When parents walk the rain soaked streets in one week to get 735 petitions for a fundamental school, they do care. These parents aren't seeking formation of a social organization. They care about their children. Twenty-three percentile is not excellent and acceptable to them. When vitally interested parents and teachers volunteer their time to devise a fundamental school for volunteer parents, they care. Those who say we have a fundamental school already, reveal their lack of understanding of a fundamental school.

CIE wants to re-enthrone the professionalism of the teaching field together with the dignity of caring parents to achieve better education for those who volunteer for a fundamental school. Since the parents of 1,400 students showed an interest in a school such as this, we pledge our continued support to see that one is established in Chino.

Justice blind to CIA crime

WASHINGTON — For over 20 years, the Justice Dept. has been winking at crimes committed by employees of the Central Intelligence Agency. Even serious crimes and felonies unrelated to official duties have been ignored.

This is the conclusion of a still secret report compiled by the House Government Information and Individual Rights subcommittee. The congressional investigators were so shocked by the Justice Dept.'s leniency that they recommended a "Special Prosecutor be appointed to prosecute illegal activities of intelligence agency personnel."

An independent prosecutor is needed, the report bluntly states, because the Justice Dept. has failed to move even in instances where there were "widespread admissions" of criminal activity and "the illegalities by the intelligence personnel (were) unrelated to their job activities."

"The Justice Department has assisted in setting the CIA above the law," the report continues, "by allowing the CIA to decide which cases would be too sensitive to prosecute, and by allowing the CIA to withhold whatever information it sees fit . . ."

The Justice Dept.'s softness on the CIA dates from a 1954 agreement between the two agencies which, in effect, gave the CIA the right to block a prosecution or keep a crime secret in the name of "national security."

A year later, Congress passed a law requiring government agency heads to report the illegal activities of their employees to the Justice Dept. The CIA, however, has rarely complied.

"Given the CIA's self interest," states the congressional report, "it is not surprising that the CIA chose to permit the prosecution of but very few cases and found much of its (illegalities) too sensitive to reveal."

Between 1954 and 1974, according to CIA files obtained by the subcommittee, there were at least 31 cases involving possible federal crimes committed by CIA personnel. None of these incidents involved acts authorized by the CIA and none were related to official duties. Crimes that may have been committed while executing officially sanctioned activities such as wiretaps and break-ins were excluded from the statistics.

The crimes included narcotics smuggling, embezzlement, theft of government funds, impersonation of a military officer, espionage and black-marketing.

Of the 31 possible crimes, only 14 were referred to Justice by the CIA and only two agency employees were actually brought to trial. Some of the cases called to the attention of the Justice Dept. were later dropped at the CIA's urging, ostensibly because sensitive information would have to be revealed during discovery or trial.

In one glaring example, the Justice Dept. was forced to drop a case against an alleged opium smuggler because of the CIA's steadfast refusal to cooperate.

Puttaporn Khramkhruan, a CIA operative from Thailand, was indicted in 1973 for illegally importing 25 kilos of raw opium into the United States. At first, the CIA's associate general counsel, John K. Greaney, promised he would cooperate fully with the U.S. attorney who was prosecuting the case. When it came time to release CIA documents, however, Greaney executed an abrupt about-face and even refused to allow a federal judge to examine them.

The U.S. attorney appealed to the Justice Dept. for an order that would force the CIA to cough up the documents. Without even asking for a cursory examination of the papers in question, Justice backed the CIA.

In later testimony before the congressional subcommittee, Greaney explained that he had changed his mind about cooperating in the prosecution because it would embarrass the CIA if one of its operatives were found guilty of smuggling opium. Furthermore, he claimed, exposure of the documents would reveal some of the CIA's sources and methods of operation in Southeast Asia.

"The behavior of CIA officials in this case," concluded the congressional investigators, "indicates that they still believe that the agency and its employees are above the criminal law . . . Additionally, this case illustrates that the CIA interprets 'national security' with undue breadth . . . Risking political embarrassment of the CIA is not and should not be deemed synonymous with risking the security of the United States."

For its part, the Justice Dept. had been "puzzlingly neglectful and inept" and may "have assisted in a cover-up of CIA participation in Southeastern Asian drug traffic."

Think on these things

Some people bring all their grievances and all their hostility to the dining table. Sitting down facing other people seems to bring out all the mixed up emotions, all the reasons why this should be a battleground to settle differences.

There are other times when disagreements can be taken care of, for dining should be one of the special times of contentment and humor and good manners. Centuries ago man may have growled while he gnawed a bone, but that time should have passed long ago. Eating together should be a time of laying aside all our complex notions to simply enjoy!

'Stones' removed without surgery

A member of the family has gallstones. This has increased what would be my normal interest in the subject.

Twenty million Americans suffer painful periodic attacks, 475,000 Americans undergo surgery for gallstones each year.

The operation is expensive, it is "no fun" and it is no insurance that the stones will not return.

So two years ago I began to watch closely research at the Mayo Clinic and elsewhere with a "chemical solvent." A drug in a capsule promised to dissolve gallstones without surgery.

Now we know it does.

Nobody is sure why tiny pebbles form in the plumbing of some people and lodge in the gallbladder, frequently resulting in excruciating abdominal pain.

Victims exhaust all the adjectives for pain in describing gallbladder attacks. Eventually they settle for some understatement such as, "You climb the wall!"

So it is difficult for conservative physicians and clinicians at 10 hospitals across our nation to contain their excitement right now over a new drug called "chenodyoxycholic acid." They call it "chenic" for short.

Dr. Johnson Thistle of Mayo says, "Preliminary evidence strongly suggests that it will turn out to be both effective and safe."

When you remedy any major disease without surgery you make a major contribution toward relieving the load on our doctors, our hospitals and our pocketbooks.

Surgical gallbladder removal was the sixth most common reason for hospital admissions last year. So a drug which would make hospitalization unnecessary would shave millions from our annual health bill.

Chenic Acid has been 10 years under development. It is now being tested extensively on humans. Assuming success of the tests, it will still be another two to three years before it is generally available for prescription.

It must first be ascertained, for example, that no liver damage — or other damage — results from the treatment.

Balancing benefits against risks is easier in such diseases as cancer, but where there is the alternative of surgery — and it is comparatively safe surgery for the removal of gallstones — evaluating the alternatives is understandably more tedious.

One million new gallstone cases appear each year. A projection of those statistics suggests that 25 percent of our total female population and 10 percent of the male population will develop "stones" before the age of sixty.

"The older you get the more likely you are to develop them," explains Dr. Thistle.

Since animals do not develop "stones" as people do, the earliest testing of Chenic Acid had to be done on humans.

At Mayo, where it has been tested since 1969, 83 percent of all patients' stones were dissolved completely or progressively reduced in size.

Just in jest

Onward and upward to better things! Having given the massage parlors something to worry about, I note that our city officials are continuing their vice abatement efforts by giving consideration to the possibility of segregating adult book stores and porno theaters. Well, why not? If you can't stop it, undoubtedly the next best thing is to confine it. And should that prove successful, who knows? Maybe some day Pomona may even have its very own segregated Red Light District.

Court financing

By EARL G. WATERS

The method of financing California courts is perhaps heading for a full review. Long ignored in the various court reform proposals they have remained, excepting for the appellate and supreme courts, a hybrid fiscal animal supported partly by the state but subordinated to the budgeting of local governments. The only reason for that is historically they grew up that way and nobody has seen fit to insist upon the state assuming its full responsibility.

The result is a conflict between the local administrators and the courts over funding, with the courts usually coming up short of money for adequate facilities, supplies and personnel. After all, the budgets are controlled by local elective officials. In the competition for tax dollars the money will go to those things which generate the most votes for the "ins".

That is bad enough but worse are the pressures on the courts, especially the municipal courts, to raise revenues through the imposition of fines. It is not unknown for local governments to adopt budgets based upon anticipated court revenues and thereafter lean on the courts to reach the predetermined figures. Such shenanigans which must presume that either a certain number of citizens are law violators or the overzealous enforcement of laws will make them such, has been aptly termed "cash register" justice. It is responsible for the undue attention given by police to minor traffic offenses including the indulgence in "speed traps" and the over patrolling of streets where traffic is known to be heavy and fast. Ticket quotas become the standard and the cops focus on areas where speed limits are commonly slightly exceeded, thus permitting the wholesale issuance of citations.

Speaking out on this is Joseph R. Grillo, presiding judge of the huge Los Angeles Municipal Court who properly observes that "Courts have the duty of dispensing justice, not raising funds." Pointing to the Separation of Powers doctrine, Grillo correctly states that the courts should "function without interference by other branches of government." Obviously if the courts are hamstrung financially by the other branches, controlled by those not dedicated to the pristine administration of justice, the judges cannot give full measure and the public before the bar, in either civil or criminal matters, is the loser.

There is no sound reason for the courts to be haphazardly financed. One can imagine the utter disaster which would exist if the federal courts were dependent upon local financing and budget control. However, Judge Grillo's contention that the revenues raised by the courts should be dedicated to their operations is not the right answer. For complete purity in the dispensing of justice those revenues should go directly to the general fund and have no relationship to court funding of judges' salaries or benefits.

If all of the state courts were, as they should be, truly state courts in all respects and unfettered by local fiscal controls, a system of overall self-administration by the state judicial council would be essential. To it would go the responsibility for the budget provisions and assignments of judges and staff. The pattern for such organization has long existed within the federal court system.

The issue of court financing was unintentionally brought out in the open as a result of Gov. Brown's veto of a bill which would have provided for excess costs of superior court felony trials involving life term crimes. Authored by Assemblyman Ken Maddy it sought to protect Madera County taxpayers from exorbitant costs arising from the trials of the Chowchilla school kidnappers and assure that county of the ability to adequately conduct the trials. His measure rejected, Maddy, an attorney, undoubtedly now will be spurred into tackling the entire problem of court financing.

Ann Landers

More on black stockings

Dear Ann Landers: Can you stand one more letter about the man who wanted his wife to wear black stockings and a garter belt to bed? I hope so. Please include me as another woman who does NOT consider the request weird — unless, of course, they are simply having sex and not making love. There's a big difference, you know.

Any man worth his salt is not content merely to satisfy himself. He wants to please his wife and she, in turn, wants to please him. What is important to one should be important to the other. That's what love is all about. And without love, sex is nothing more than bedroom acrobatics.

If my husband came home one night and asked me to put on a costume to get him revved up, and there was no expression of love — only raw sex — I'd feel like a street-walker.

Some of my friends refer to marital sex as if it were housework, a chore that must be done — so they do it and get it over with as quickly as possible. What words do you have for such women? — Not One Of Them

Dear One: No words — just sympathy. They've missed it all.

Dear Ann Landers: I have a daughter who is 17. Her boyfriend is 19. They have been going together for two years.

Alice (not her real name) has one bureau drawer which she has kept locked for the past several months, and I have been wondering what she had in there. I confess I hired a locksmith to come over and open it up.

Well, now I know and I wish I didn't. Serves me right for being nosy. I discovered several contraceptives, the kind that men use. What should I do now? If my husband found out about this there would be plenty of violence. He has a very hot temper.

I feel Alice is too young for this kind of a relationship. Also, how safe are those things? I'm sure she will be furious when she finds out I invaded her privacy. Please advise me. — Worried Mother

Dear Mother: Tell Alice what you did and take your lumps. Then make an appointment for her with the family doctor or instruct her to get in touch with your local chapter of Planned Parenthood. "Those things" are not 100 per cent fail-safe. (The only 100 per cent foolproof preventative is the word "No.")

Lecturing your daughter about the evils of premarital sex will do no good. The best thing you can do now is make sure she doesn't get pregnant. (P.S. Her father need not know. There's already too much violence in the world.)

Dear Ann: This is for that wacky mother who hid the newspaper from her children so they wouldn't see your column.

My two daughters discovered Ann Landers by themselves. I was delighted. You helped put across several points I was having trouble with.

When my oldest son finished sixth grade I introduced him to your column and he hasn't missed one since.

I'm trying to get my younger son (14) to read it. He put up a fuss at first but now I see him reading it when he thinks no one is looking.

Just wanted to say you are really helping me raise my kids. — I.K.E.

Dear Ike: Thanks for those kind words. And now, may I make a suggestion? Don't hassle the 14-year-old. Information shoved down kids' throats is usually rejected. Let the choice be his.

Dr. Miller

Unhappy with effeminate pooch

DEAR DR. MILLER: George is crazy about his blue-green cat house, but ignores his orange one. They're identical except for color, so that has to be it. A smart aleck friend of mine is trying to tell me George doesn't know a blue-green cat house when he sees one, that he's color blind. That's what he thinks. I know George isn't. Would you please tell him that? K.R.

P.S. I almost forgot to mention about George. That he's a cat, I mean.

DEAR K.R.: Since two cat houses can't occupy the same space, George's choice can be governed partially, or even wholly, on factors relating to its location, i.e. temperature, light, noise levels and height, for example. While it's safe to say George wouldn't choose on the basis of a color preference as such, it's also true that George does have some, albeit weak, color vision. His retina does contain a few cones cells that are sensitive to both blue and green.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Captain, our dog, good as he is, has been a sort of disappointment. We had hoped he would develop into a strong, dominant type as he matured. Instead, he's effeminate looking and acting. We're wondering why. Since learning that males produce female hormones, too, I'm wondering if Captain might be suffering from an overproduction of these female hormones? H.L.

DEAR H.L.: Hormonal interrelationships and their effects on the body are complex and occasionally confusing. However, Captain's effeminacy (if that's what it is) wouldn't be related to an excess of female hormones. Proof? Consider the stallion. Yet he produces more estrogens than the non-pregnant mare or, for that matter, more of these female hormones than any other individual of either sex of any species.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I just bought some platys xiphophoius variatus, which are supposed to be just under a year of age. The males are beautiful fish, but still I'm a little disappointed for what I paid for them. The seller claims they'll improve with age. Should I be skeptical? K.R.

DEAR K.R.: Not this time. The male variatus does improve in coloration and fin development. This most beautiful of the xiphophoius species often requires two years to develop fully.

How to tell if you're rich

The other day out of a clear, blue sky Brucie asked, "Are we rich?"

I paused on my knees as I retrieved a dime from the sweeper bag, blew the dust off, and asked, "Not so you can notice. Why?"

I straightened up and thought a bit. Being rich is a relative sort of thing. Here's how I can always tell:

"You're rich when you buy your gas at the same service station all the time so your glasses match.

"You're rich when you can have eight people to dinner and don't have to wash forks between the main course and dessert.

"You're rich when you buy clothes for your kids that are two sizes too big for the one you buy 'em for and four sizes too big for the one that comes after him.

"You're rich when you own a boat — without oars.

"You can tell people have money when they record a check and don't have to subtract it right away.

"People have money when they sit around and joke with the cashier while she's calling in their charge to see if it's still open.

"You're rich when you write notes to the teacher on paper without lines.

"You're rich when your television set has all the knobs on it.

"You're rich when you can throw away a pair of pantyhose just because it has a large hole in it.

"You know people are loaded when they don't have to save rubber bands from the celery and store them on a doorknob.

"You're rich when you can have a home wedding without 'Haven Funeral Home' stamped on the folding chairs.

"You're rich when the Scouts have a paper drive and you have a stack of New York Times in your basement.

"You're rich when your dog is wet and smells good.

"You're rich when your own hair looks so great everyone thinks it's a wig."

Brucie sat quietly for a moment, then said, "I think my friend, Ronny, is rich."

"How can you tell?" I asked.

"His mom buys his birthday cake at a bakery and it isn't even cracked on top."

"He's rich, all right," I sighed.

Pains after giving birth

DEAR DR. LAMB — Six months ago I had a baby. This is where my problem begins. I started having chest pains on my left side and my left arm seemed to go numb on me like it was asleep.

I went to one doctor every week for a few months. He said it was a strained muscle and gave me Motrin. I asked the druggist what they were for and he told me they were for arthritis.

I went to another doctor for his opinion and have been doctoring with him several months. He said it could be tension, but I never seem nervous or anything like that. I had a cardiogram, X rays and blood tests. They came out normal.

I was taking birth control pills so I stopped taking them but the problem is still there. It scares me a lot. I'm only 22 and have two children.

The doctor said my heart was beating too fast one week so that could be the problem with my arm. Do you have any suggestions?

DEAR READER — There is a rare condition in women after childbirth called post partum myocarditis. It is an inflammation of the heart muscle related to the pregnancy. The cause and many aspects of the illness remain obscure. However, these women have signs of heart involvement, including abnormal electrocardiograms. Your normal cardiogram and tests should rule out that condition.

Many young women seem to have a number of vague complaints after childbirth. The complaints are real enough but they don't fit the pattern of any specific disease. That is why they end up being diagnosed as nervous or being told it is a muscle spasm. You may be in that category. These may be related to subtle hormone changes.

I think the mechanism is similar to what we see after some illnesses, particularly those associated with long periods of inactivity. We call it neurocirculatory asthenia. The heart may beat rapidly; sometimes there are extra beats. The individual may feel faint on standing or become breathless with mild exertion. When these symptoms are not associated with any physical findings or other evidence of a specific disease, it is usually functional. A young mother with lots of responsibility may not be in shape for the amount she has to do. If that is the case, some help in coping with the day's demands often is a great aid. If the mother is out of shape physically, a gradual exercise program will help. The difficulty is in finding out whether the problem is associated with overwork or with lack of fitness. Usually the type of work a young mother has to do is time consuming and often nerve-racking but it may not be physically demanding like a game of tennis.

A good balance may be to get plenty of sleep one way or another and also get some time off to start a physical fitness program. Walking is a good start and you can gradually build up from there. I am sending you two issues of The Health Letter 1-11 and 1-12, Exercise, Heart and Circulation, Part I and Part II. You can use these as a guide to a fitness program. Others who want these two issues can send 50 cents for each of them with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Incidentally although Motrin is used to relieve arthritis pain, it is also used to relieve pain from other conditions.

Robert Schuller

Be positive and enthusiastic

During a television show interview, the host asked me "Dr. Schuller, why do you always seem to be so energetic?" "I suppose I'm energetic because I'm enthusiastic," I replied, continuing, "and I suppose I'm enthusiastic because I'm basically a very joyful, happy person."

The interviewer pressed, "Yes, but is it reasonable to expect that most people can be happy the way you say you're happy?" I answered, "I think so. I really do!" "If you live right, think right, play right, love right, give right and act right, you can't help but be bubbling over with energy. Most people who aren't enthusiastic probably aren't living right, loving right or they're angry inside with people."

If you battle negative thoughts all day, you can expect to suffer battle fatigue at night! Positive thinking and positive living does lead to enthusiastic and happy living.

Pianos sold by the dozen

Much ado has been made of late about how the Moslem bigwigs around the Mediterranean have become fantastically rich on oil But extraordinary wealth among rulers thereabouts is nothing new. Take Abdul Aziz IV, for instance. He was Sultan of Morocco from 1894 until he was kicked out in 1909 for extravagance. Evidently, a high powered musical instrument salesman got to him during his rule. It's a matter of record that he first learned much to his amazement several years after his retirement that pianos did not have to be bought by the dozen.

The Venezuelans for years were permitted to send love letters at half the usual first-class mail rates so long as they put those messages in special bright red envelopes.

Recent surveys show that time of the week when a child is most likely to swallow poison is Sunday morning.

HEARTBEAT

Q. "Average human heart beats 70 or 80 times a minute. How fast does a whale's heart beat?"

A. About nine beats a minute is average for a gray whale. But there are other species. And not all of their heartbeat rates have been checked out. Don't have at hand an explanation of how a whale's pulse is taken, as a matter of fact. Will look into it and report back.

Was at Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1937, that bowler Ned Day of West Allis, Wis., rolled 33 consecutive strikes. If any bowler before or since has ever done better than that, kindly name said phenom. Statistically, a perfect game of 12 strikes supposedly only turns up once in 450,000 times.

LONG RUNS

Those prime-time TV shows that tend to run the longest have a certain something in common. Namely, not just a different story, but a different cast of characters every week, too. Consider "The Wonderful World of Disney." Or "The ABC Sunday Night Movie." Or "NBC's Saturday Night at the Movies." They've been on the air for 16, 15 and 14 years, respectively. No other evening-hour network program has held up that long.

Let's say you stretch your arms straight out from your sides. If you're put together properly, the distance between the fingernails on your right hand and those on your left hand will be eight times the vertical length of your head.

Now some medical experts contradict a long time notion to say you're just as likely to become seasick in the dark as in the daylight.

As for earaches, the statisticians report they're most common in February and least common in June.

Did I tell you the average farm pond nationwide covers about two acres?

What people say

"One has only to recall reports of harsh conditioning methods, a scarcity of programs for the disabled, drug abuse, excessive parental-coach pressure in youth programs, unfair practices used to discourage female participation, and unsportsmanlike acts . . . to realize that current sports forms are no longer meeting the needs of the participants."

It was the wrong Karl Marx

LONDON (AP) — The Public Record Office says a German historian's report that Karl Marx, the 19th century father of communism, was a British citizen is incorrect. It was another Karl Marx.

Michael Knierien, the curator of the Friedrich Engels Memorial Museum in Wuppertal, West Germany, reported this week that he made a two-week search in the files of the record office and found citizenship was granted in 1877 to a man named Karl Marx.

"By a coincidence there were two Karl Marxes," said the record office. "The one who was accepted as a British citizen was not the revolutionary."

The Marx who wrote Das Kapital and, with Engels, the Communist Manifesto, was born in Trier in 1818. He renounced his Prussian citizenship in 1845, was expelled and settled in Britain in 1849. He applied for British citizenship in 1874 but was turned down as "a notorious German agitator."

Marx died in London in 1883 and is buried in Highgate Cemetery.

The other Karl Marx was a jeweler from Homburg, Germany, who also lived in London and was described by police as "fairly respectable."

Big government

Government looms large in the English-speaking world. In the United States, government employs one out of six workers and controls around 37 per cent of total spending. In the United Kingdom, it controls nearly 60 per cent of the expenditures, The Conference Board observes.

Four held in racial row at Pendleton

CAMP PENDLETON (AP) — A band of black Marines invaded the modern barracks room like commandoes and attacked seven white Marines, a base spokesman says.

With clubs and screwdrivers, they beat and stabbed six of the whites so severely they were still hospitalized four days later. A seventh white Marine escaped injury.

A base spokeswoman said four blacks allegedly involved were in custody today with "three to five" others being sought.

"It happened so fast that the victims are hard pressed to identify anyone," she said.

The investigation so far failed to turn up any provocation for the attack although one white Marine told newsmen the blacks believed they were retaliating for "white-power" activism on the sprawling Marine base.

Record ad year may be better in 1977

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Media executive Karl Eller says the advertising industry is astonished by record 1976 business and can expect even better times in 1977.

It has been "the most phenomenal year for the advertising business in 30 years, or maybe forever," he said in a speech.

Eller is president of Combined Communications Corp., of Phoenix, Ariz., which owns seven television stations, nine radio stations, the Cincinnati Enquirer and an outdoor advertising company.

The firm reported revenues of $130 million in 1975 and net income of $7.6 million. Eller said its television revenues have jumped 25 per cent this year with newspaper advertising up 17 per cent.

"The industry has been worried about following a banner year like 1976," he told the Stockbrokers Club Tuesday. "But our advance bookings in broadcasting are very strong.

"We expect television revenues to be up by 15 per cent to 20 per cent again next year."

Eller said his Pacific Outdoor Advertising, a division operating in the United States and Canada, picked up overflow advertisers who have been priced out of the television market.

Economist sees rising retail beef prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumers who have seen beef prices fall steadily from last year's highs can expect to pay record prices to put beef on the table in 1977, an Agriculture Department economist predicted today.

Retail beef prices soon will begin climbing and probably will cost a record average of $1.49 a pound next year, Richard J. Crom of the department's Economic Research Service said.

That is 10 cents above the estimated 1976 average of $1.39. Last year's record average was $1.46.

The reason that beef prices will swing back up is that cattlemen, who are enduring severe financial losses because of a glut of beef this year, have reduced their herds sharply, Crom said.

One consolation is that pork prices will be down in 1977, he said, although beef accounts for about two-thirds of the meat consumed by American families. Meat is the biggest item in food budgets.

"Look for beef prices in 1977 to average about 10 cents per pound higher than this year's average, while pork prices may average five cents lower," Crom said. "Retail pork prices likely will be lowest this winter, while beef will peak seasonally in the summer months."

Pork was $1.35 a pound in 1975, and climbed another penny to a record of $1.36 this year.

Crom made his analysis in a speech prepared for the department's annual outlook conference.

Retail food prices overall are expected to rise 3 to 4 per cent in 1977, about the same as the 3 per cent increase now estimated for this year, the department announced earlier this week. A spokesman said the prospective jump in 1977 beef prices was included in that estimate.

Beef prices traditionally peak in the summer. In July 1975, they hit a record monthly high of $1.61 a pound before turning down. By last September, store prices were about $1.34 a pound, measured on an all-cut basis.

Retail beef prices have fallen 4.8 per cent this year, Crom said.

Cattle producers, who have been in a financial squeeze for several years, plan to continue reducing inventories in 1977, although at a slower rate, Crom said.

Farmers and ranchers built up cattle herds steadily for years, to a peak of 131.8 million animals on Jan. 1, 1975, before paring them to get rid of the excess beef. By last Jan. 1, they totaled 128 million head, a 2.9 per cent reduction.

Crom said that the cattle inventory probably will be cut 5.5 per cent more to 121 million head by next Jan. 1, and the inventory might be around 118 million head by Jan. 1, 1978.

Thus, as producers take tough steps to offset losses, it appears that consumers are on the threshold of a new, higher plateau of beef prices.

PUBLIC NOTICE

PUBLIC HEARING CALIFORNIA PUBLIC UTILITIES COMMISSION AND PORT OF LONG BEACH

Pursuant to the California Environmental Quality Act of 1970, as amended, notice is hereby given to all interested persons and organizations that a Draft Environmental Impact Report (EIR) has been completed for the:

SOHIO WEST COAST TO MID-CONTINENT PIPELINE PROJECT

The proposed SOHIO (Standard Oil, Ohio) project consists of a three berth marine terminal, 4.92 million barrels of storage/surge tankage within approximately 12 miles of the terminal, connection with local distribution pipelines, 1,000+ miles of pipeline from Long Beach to Midland, Texas. Almost 800 miles of the pipeline is already in place and is presently used to transport some of the natural gas supply to California from Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico. A system already exists to transport crude oil from Midland, Texas to the midwest and Gulf Coast markets. The purpose of the proposed system is to provide a means of delivering North Slope (Alaskan) oil to Southern California refineries plus the capability of transmitting oil surplus to California's needs to the midwest.

The SOHIO EIR consists of an extensive analysis of the anticipated environmental impacts expected during construction, operation and maintenance of the proposed crude oil transmission system. Potential mitigation measures are also suggested for the proposed impacts. Accompanying this analysis is an examination of the marine traffic flow patterns along the tanker delivery route between Valdez, Alaska and Long Beach, California. The energy supply and demand situation as it relates to the movement of energy sources located in the United States also is evaluated together with an examination of potential alternative sites for marine terminals and various related transmission routes for delivery of Alaskan crude oil to the midwest.

Copies of the Draft EIR are available for public inspection at the following municipal/county libraries: Long Beach Municipal Library, Hacienda Heights County Library, La Puente Library, Chino Branch Library, Pomona Library, Pico Rivera Library, Downey Main Library, Montebello Library, South Gate/Hollydale Library, Paramount Library, Ontario City Library, Fontana Branch Library, Rialto Library, Colton Library, San Bernardino Public Library, Redlands Library, Loma Linda Library, and Desert Center Lake Tamarisk Library. Persons wishing to know the location of copies other than those at municipal/county libraries can call (213) 437-0041 or (415) 557-3816 and request help in locating same.

Three public hearings on this Draft EIR are scheduled as follows:

1. 10:00 a.m. Tuesday, November 30, 1976, 6th Floor Board Room, Long Beach Harbor Department Building, 925 Harbor Plaza, Long Beach, California.
2. 10:00 a.m. Monday, December 6, 1976, Los Angeles County Supervisors Board Room, Hall of Administration, 500 W. Temple Street, Los Angeles, California.
3. 10:00 a.m. Tuesday, December 14, 1976, Council Chambers, City Hall, 300 N. "D" Street, San Bernardino, California.

The presentation of the nature of the proposed project and associated impacts and proposed mitigation will be from 10:00 am. until noon. This will be followed by public comments, questions and suggestions beginning at 1:30 p.m. Written comments will be received until 10:00 a.m. on December 20, 1976. Address comments to:

L.A., S.F. counties show population drop

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California's two major urban counties, San Francisco and Los Angeles, showed a drop in population from July 1970 to July of this year, state officials say.

They were the only two counties in the state to decline over the six year period, while suburban areas, led by Orange County, showed steady growth.

Overall, California's population, spurred by an influx of Indochinese refugees, continued last year's slight increase in growth rate.

The state had about 21,520,000 people on July 1, compared to 21,198,000 a year earlier and 20,026,000 in 1970, the Department of Finance reported Tuesday.

The Los Angeles population, which dropped to 6,936,400 two years ago, was back above 7 million this year for the first time in five years, but still was about 40,000 below 1970. San Francisco's decrease to 665,000 was part of a continuing trend there.

During the past three years, net migration into the state increased significantly from a low point in 1971 and 1972, the Department of Finance's population research unit said.

Orange County, once a rural area dotted with orange groves, led all other counties in number of additional residents with a 328,700 increase to 1,749,900, up 23.1 per cent from six years ago.

Mono County in Northern California had the largest percentage increase, up 82.2 per cent in six years, and Santa Cruz County led all counties above 100,000 population with a 31.4 per cent jump.

Migration figures included 50,000 Indochinese in the last two years, and state officials said at least 90 per cent of them were Vietnamese refugees who came here at the end of the Vietnam War.

There were 322,000 births in the last year, up from lower totals in the early 1970s. State officials said that might be because some couples waited longer to have children.

"There's been a rather surprising recovery in migration," said Walter Hollmann, chief of the population research unit.

"It's certainly less than our heyday in the late 1950s and early 1960s. That heyday probably had to do with the fact that California was the land of opportunity. Life Magazine ran whole issues about us.

"Then the bloom wore off the rose when people started talking about the smog and environmental degradation, and it got crowded," Hollmann added.

Net migration figures — calculated on the basis of people leaving and entering the state — were 107,000, 185,000 and 175,000 for the last three years, compared to 60,000 in both 1971 and 1972.

"I really can't explain why migration picked up," Hollmann said. "Unemployment here is still above many other states.

"I do know why migration was down. In the early 70s we had the aerospace (layoff) disaster and we had an earthquake (in the San Fernando Valley).

"If you are sitting in your living room in Iowa and considering moving to California and they have an earthquake there, you may put off the move."

State taking action against nursing homes

SACRAMENTO (AP) — State health officials are taking action against nursing homes in Garden Grove and Sacramento where inspectors reported finding numerous violations.

All 90 Medi-Cal patients are being removed from Fountain Skilled Nursing Facility in Sacramento, and proceedings have been started to try to revoke the home's license, the state Health Department said Tuesday.

The department also said it has begun license revocation proceedings against the 99-bed Garden Grove Sanitarium, where inspectors said they found 157 violations.

Loss of license would put both nursing homes out of business. But Health Department spokesman Bob Nance said revocation proceedings can take as long as a year if the nursing home's operators take all available appeals.

The 121-bed Sacramento home has 90 Medi-Cal patients and 10 private patients, Nance said.

He said state inspectors had found inadequate nursing care, failure to give medication and treatment as prescribed, and lack of preventive care needed to protect patients from bed sores and deformities, among other violations.

Problems with the Garden Grove Sanitarium in Orange County date back to 1971, when the department placed it on probation.

Inspections since then have turned up additional violations, including inadequate staffing, water that was too hot or not hot enough for patients, insufficient food stocks and failure to carry out physicians' medication orders, the Health Department said.

Nance said the department is considering seeking a court injunction to force the nursing home to comply with regulations. State officials may also remove the home's 47 Medi-Cal patients.

Nursing home cited

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The County Department of Health Services has issued four citations against a nursing home where an elderly wheelchairbound patient accidentally drowned last week.

The citations announced Monday were against the Prestige Convalescent Center of North Hollywood.

On Nov. 8, Clara Davis, 74, was found drowned in 12 to 15 inches of water in an unused therapy pool. She had been placed under restraints in her wheelchair on doctor's orders.

Three of the citatations were Class A, the strongest civil sanctions available to the department. They alleged lack of surveillance of the pool area, lack of protective devices at the pool, and insufficient nurse staffing.

Penalties range from $1,000 to $5,000 fines.

State blasts S.F. drug program

BEAUTIES AND BEASTS — Elizabeth Taylor and Diana Rigg cuddle lion cubs recently in Vienna, where the two women are being filmed in "A Little Night Music." The cubs, who were born in a nearby safari park, have been named in honor of the actresses.

SACRAMENTO (AP) — State officials have blasted a San Francisco drug treatment program for poor management that they say included the loss of Methadone worth $500,000 on the streets.

The Department of Health also criticized the administration of the 21-day methadone detoxification program at San Francisco General Hospital and called the San Francisco County Drug Plan budget "ludicrous" because of high administration costs.

State-regulated methadone programs are used to treat heroin addicts, who take methadone as a heroin substitute.

Josette Mondanaro, a department deputy director, released a letter Tuesday to Dr. William Goldman, acting director of Community Mental Health in San Francisco.

It said the San Francisco program's problems are "the culmination of at least three years of chronic mismanagement, faulty record keeping, unending personnel turnover, a lack of consistent treatment plans and inadequate drug security."

A Nov. 9 inspection of the program's Ivy Street Clinic revealed a total of seven missing five-liter bottles of methadone worth $500,000 if sold to addicts on the street, Dr. Mondanaro said.

"Having 70,000 milligrams of methadone missing is inexcusable. But even more inexcusable is having this loss go undetected by your own staff," she wrote Goldman.

Goldman was in Washington and not available for comment, but his assistant, Terry De Luca, said program officials were investigating 'to determine circumstances surrounding the missing methadone.

"It's very possible it could be a clerical error between what's on stock and what's disbursed," she said. The combination of the safe where methadone is stored has been changed and security guards have been posted, she added.

Deficiencies at the program's Hyde Street Clinic included a record system "so lax that a staff member could enter the safe, scoop up a handful of unused doses and leave the clinic with no one the wiser," Dr. Mondanaro said.

Both clinics have 60 days to comply with corrective orders or the state will revoke their programs, she said.

Dr. Mondanaro also said the methadone detoxification program at San Francisco General Hospital failed to respond to state requests to demonstrate some of the program's abilities.

The clinic management staff has had three major changes in the past six months, Dr. Mondanaro said.

"Aside from noncompliance, we cannot help but question the quality of care that is being offered at a clinic which has such a rapid turnover of directors. Of 48 charts reviewed, only two demonstrated adequate treatment notes," she said.

The state will give 30 days' notice of removal of funding if acceptable regulations are not received for the hospital program by Nov. 24, she said.

Dr. Mondanaro also criticized the San Francisco County Drug Plan budget proposal for 1976-77.

The total budget is $203,788, of which $102,098 goes to Walden House, Northeast and Westside programs, and $101,690 goes to administer the funds for nine months, she said.

If adjusted for a 12-month period, administration would cost about $133,000.

"I cannot believe that this budget constitutes a serious proposal. Increasing an already costly administrative program is not defensible using workload related to federally funded programs," Dr. Mondanaro wrote.

Pesticide poisoning causes confusion within legislature

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Little is being done about pesticide poisoning of California farm workers, in part because of confusion within state government, a legislative committee has been told.

State Health Director Jerome Lackner estimatad Tuesday that only one per cent of farm worker illnesses are reported — even though there are three times as many job-related illness reports from agriculture as any other industry.

Other witnesses told the Senate Health and Welfare Committee that some of the poisonings go unreported because the victims are illegal aliens from Mexico, who fear deportation if they go to a doctor.

Some witnesses blamed a confusion of duties among three state agencies — the agriculture, health and industrial relations departments.

In one case, the committee was told, 120 workers were made ill by pesticide in a Madera vineyard, but doctors who treated them failed to file the required reports, claiming they didn't want to get the workers into trouble with immigration.

Officials of the state Industrial Relations Department conceded they had made no immediate investigation after they learned the ill workers had been released after treatment at a hospital.

One worker reportedly had to pay the hospital $85 before being let out.

"It's hard for me to believe that if there had been 120 people made ill in a white, middle-class area, you wouldn't have been there sooner," Sen. Arlen Gregorio, D-San Mateo, the committee chairman, told Industrial Relations Department officials.

The chief of the department's Division of Industrial Safety, Art Carter, replied, "To say or imply that...they would have been handled differently is just not the case."

In another case, the committee was told, 17 Salinas farm workers were deported the day after they suffered pesticide poisoning. Witnesses said the only report of the poisoning was made to Monterey County Agriculture Commissioner Richard Nutter.

Nutter protested the implication that he had told federal immigration officials about the workers so the farmer could avoid the expense and trouble of an investigation.

"The implication that we're in cahoots with the border patrol is unfounded and I resent it," Nutter said. He also said he had no reason to believe the farmer had called the immigration service.

The county agriculture commissioners' role was criticized by the United Farm Workers.

UFW lawyer Mary Mocine urged that the primary enforcement of pesticide regulations be shifted from the agriculture commissioners to the Department of Health.

She produced four workers who testified they had been made ill by pesticides while working on mechanical tomato harvesters near Tracy.

Lackner, who was once personal physician for UFW leader Cesar Chavez, said his Health Department should have "a stronger role" in enforcing pesticide rules.

Gregorio said there had been allegations that county agriculture commissioners failed to enforce pesticide rules because they are in league with growers. He noted the commissioners' association last May urged the state to stop the proliferation of pesticide rules.

Donald Hill, Tehama County agricultural commissioner and president of the association, protested that the commissioners "are just cops" and do not favor the growers.

"How did I get on the wrong side of both parties?" he asked.

Puppeteer brings show to streets of San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Like a whisp of Golden Gate fog, Tommy Roberts materializes at Union Square, or Civic Center, carrying two battered shopping bags filled with magic and laughter.

He's 4-foot-8 in his well-worn shoes and calls himself "the world's youngest leprechaun" at age 629.

A pigeon feather adorns the wool cap atop his wispy gray curls, a red bandana at his wrinkled neck, and there's a twinkle in his eyes as he shouts:

"Last call for the puppet show. Is everybody ready to see the free show? A great big show with 38 puppets and 90 dancing girls. It's good — for nothing."

As a crowd of children and grownups gather, he tells them: "What's in these bags has transformed the lives of hundreds ... thousands ... millions."

For an hour he charms the chuckling audience with hand puppets emerging from behind his "stage" — a small sheet of paper. He danced and bantered with a dunce, a clown, a lion, an ice cream cone, a kilted Scot, a hayseed, a woodpecker.

Then he ordered: "Everybody out there — close your eyes." When they reopened, the eyes see two Tommys — the puppeteer and a small facsimile that echoes his merry eyes and jaunty cap. (A sculptor friend made it as a surprise gift for Tommy.)

The two Tommys ask the audience to join them in singing "the first composition I composed in San Francisco: 'Union Square, Union Square, all the kooks are gathered there'..."

As two small friends pass roses out to the audience, the show ends with a song and dance, and advice to "get on your hands and knees, yank out weeds, and plant a seed — yes, indeed!"

"When I first came to San Francisco in the spring of 1969 I had one lousy, beat-up, 10-cent, brown paper shopping bag," he says. "Now I have two 25-cent, hand-embossed, plastic bags. I'm a conglomerate!"

Since 1974 he has been one of the 131 artists working under the federal Comprehensive Employment Training Act, bringing his magic spell of smiles and laughter to parks, mental hospitals, schools and convalescent homes.

"It's often heartbreak house, especially when I go to convalescent homes filled with poor, old ladies waiting to die. I do a little act and give out the roses," he says. "One woman, who is 85, took hers and said, 'We need you. Come back.'"

Tommy lives modestly in a hotel in the Tenderloin section downtown. "I am the only sober man in the neighborhood," he says.

His early life was in Florida and New York around the theater "where I did all kinds of things and starved, mostly."

He fancies himself a poet, and philosopher.

'Seduction,' 'Compatibility' popular, new adult games

ORANGE (AP) — Pssst — wanna buy an adult game?

More and more people are answering "yes," according to Bob Reiss, president of Reiss Games, which markets a variety of diversions for the after-school set.

The firm, whose factory in this Orange County town turns out such games as "Seduction," "Lie, Cheat & Steal," "Compatibility" and "Xaviera's Game," had sales of more than $7 million in fiscal 1976, a 50 per cent jump over the previous year. Reiss thinks more gains are ahead.

"These games fulfill needs that are not being met in everyday life," the 46-year-old executive said in an interview. "There are married couples who really don't know each other. There are questions they'd like to ask each other but they're too embarrassed. In a game like "Compatibility," the questions hide behind the cards."

Couples playing "Compatibility" must answer — for their mate as well as themselves — such questions as "Would you be tense if your 16-year-old daughter asked you about the Pill?" or "If you're in the mood and your partner isn't, what do you do?"

Reiss' most popular game is "Lie, Cheat & Steal: The Game of Political Power," in which players scheme their way to prominence. The game, which has sold more than 75,000 sets at $9 each in the last five years, came out before Watergate, although Reiss acknowledges that the scandal gave sales a boost.

"But it'll be current years from now," Reiss said. "All you have to do is pick up a paper in any town and there's lying, cheating and stealing right in front of you."

In "Seduction," which Reiss terms an "icebreaker," players get cards which have orders like "Put your hand on the knee of the person next to you" or "Take off an article of clothing beginning with the letter 'S'."

"Xaviera's Game," loosely based on the exploits of Xaviera Hollander, a self-described "happy hooker" turned author, leads players through the different attractions of an imaginary bordello.

Reiss is currently working on a new game woven around the misadventures of the heroine housewife "Mary Hartman" in the television series of the same name twice. The game isn't finished yet, but Reiss has some idea of how it will all come out.

"In most board games," he said, "players move clockwise, In this one, they can go in any direction — up, down and sideways."

Kissinger sees Soviets, China settling some bitter disputes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger suggests that the Soviet Union and China may settle some of the bitter disputes dividing them but not to the point that will threaten the West.

Kissinger said Tuesday that the Russians and Chinese "have quarreled for their own reasons and they're going to make rapprochement for their own reasons."

His assessment came at a conference of parliamentarians from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization nations in Williamsburg, Va., when he was asked if the Communists would resolve their differences at the expense of the Atlantic Alliance.

The secretary acknowledged the possibility that Peking and Moscow may close their ranks somewhat, but he sought to assure the NATO delegates that the United States and Western Europe should not be "panicked."

"There is a limit beyond which rapprochement is not likely to go," Kissinger explained.

This was a reference to U.S. intelligence assessments that the differences between Peking and Moscow are so serious and fundamental as to be beyond complete settlement.

Kissinger's appearance at the NATO conference was his first public speech since Democrat Jimmy Carter defeated President Ford two weeks ago. Many of the questions dealt with the secretary's relations with the president-elect.

Kissinger pledged to cooperate with the president-elect.

The mainlines of American foreign policy are clear and bipartisan, Kissinger said, and he will support their continuation under the Democratic president. The secretary said he will travel to Plains, Ga., on Saturday to meet with Carter "to answer fully his questions and to cooperate to the fullest extent to bring about a smooth transition."

But when asked what he and Carter would discuss, Kissinger quipped, "I have spent so much time finding Plains on the map that I haven't had much time to think about what I would say."

At another point, when asked about the continuity of U.S. foreign policy, Kissinger responded that "I cannot fully speak for the policies of the forthcoming administration," but he said diplomacy in the past has always been nonpartisan.

Responding to a question about what he would advise Carter concerning relations with Peking, Kissinger said, "I have done my utmost to curb my propensity to tell others how to conduct their affairs."

This has been difficult, "particularly to someone who was not unfailing in their attempts to give us advice" during the election campaign, Kissinger said.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "WHERE DO WARTS COME FROM?"

ELAINE YANSSY
AUSTIN, TX

A. COMMON WARTS ARE HORNY GROWTHS ON THE SKIN CAUSED BY A VIRUS INFECTION.

Perhaps you've heard you'll get warts if you touch a toad. But you won't! This idea may have started because the toad's skin is covered by wartlike growths. Warts are a horny growth on the skin.

Doctors tell us that ordinary warts are infections caused by a virus — a germ so tiny that it can be seen only under a special microscope.

The viruses causing warts live in the top layer of the skin. The common wart has a scaly top and fiberlike roots. Warts can grow anywhere on the skin.

Flat warts sometimes grow on the soles of the feet. Warts that look like little cauliflowers sometimes grow on the hands.

Common warts usually do not hurt or cause any harm. Sometimes they go away without treatment.

But if a wart hurts or becomes infected, a doctor has to remove it.

Because they are apt to disappear suddenly as if by magic, there are many superstitious beliefs that warts can be charmed away by magic spells.

A World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, Ca 95061.

English deporting former U.S. Central Intelligence operative

LONDON (AP) — The British government announced today that it plans to deport former U.S. Central Intelligence Agency operative Philip Agee on grounds he tried to obtain for publication information harmful to Britain's security.

The government on Tuesday had ordered another American, Mark Hosenball, a reporter on the London Evening Standard, to leave the country on similar grounds.

Agee, 41, served for nine years in the CIA, much of that time in Latin America. After leaving the intelligence agency, he wrote a book, "Inside the Company: CIA Diary," published two years ago. It described agency operations in detail and disclosed names of agents.

He is now working on a second book, also about CIA activities.

Agee told reporters: "One possible reason for this deportation order is that the CIA has a new chief of station in London and my expulsion might be one of his first orders of the day, as you might say.

"The letter I received from the Home Office says that I have been disseminating information harmful and injurious to British security, but this is not true," Agee said. "I have not said anything about British security or the British security services."

Revelations in "Inside the Company" about CIA agents and activities were widely publicized in Britain. Agee said after the book was published: "I want to neutralize these people, completely."

Agee said he believes the United States put pressure on Britain to get him out of the country.

"America is in a position to put on a lot of pressure on Britain over the International Monetary Fund loan negotiations," he said. "I believe pressure has been put on the government here from the very highest level to order me out in an attempt to disrupt publication of my second book."

Agee suggested that such pressure could have been prompted by his action in speaking publicly about the CIA on a recent trip he made to Jamaica. He said that while in Jamaica he named nine CIA agents based at the U.S. Embassy there.

Hosenball told reporters Tuesday that the deportation order involving him "undoubtedly hinges on some story I did in my capacity as a journalist for Time Out magazine," an unorthodox leisure guide for young people. He said the story concerned the British government's secret communications headquarters.

In a letter, the government said Hosenball's departure would be conducive to the public good in the interests of national security.

Miners prefer free hams to scholarships

OVEN FORK, Ky. (AP) — Miners at the Scotia Coal Co. apparently have decided they'd rather have their annual free Thanksgiving ham than use the money to establish a scholarship fund for the children of 26 men who died in the mine last spring.

David McKnight told a reporter for the Mountain Eagle, the weekly newspaper at nearby Whitesburg, that he had resigned as president of the Scotia Employes' Association because of the hams.

"The men just didn't want to give up their hams to commemorate the men who died," he said in an interview with reporter Bill Bishop.

Meanwhile, H.N. Kirkpatrick, Kentucky commissioner of mines and minerals, said the bodies of 11 men entombed in the mine since last March would be brought out Friday. Scotia officials gave this information to survivors so they could prepare for burial.

The team bringing out the bodies will be composed of representatives of the state and federal governments, the coal company, the employes' union and Letcher County Coroner Charles Day. A pathologist and funeral home employes also may be permitted inside the mine.

A temporary morgue is being constructed at the mine shaft. The bodies will be examined at the morgue before they are released to relatives.

McKnight said the conflict between the hams and the scholarships arose last month. He said he and five other members of the union met in mid-October and decided to use the union funds — which had been used to purchase hams for the past 10 years — to set up a scholarship fund.

However, he said some 50-60 union members met a week later and overruled the earlier vote. McKnight said he resigned a short time later.

McKnight was succeeded by Willie Perry of nearby Ermine. Perry said more than 400 hams would be distributed the day before Thanksgiving, as was the custom.

"That money they would have collected wouldn't send one kid to school for a year," said a miner who attended the second meeting but did not want to be identified. "The men felt like they should be treated the same as they always were treated."

McKnight is captain of one of three rescue teams which have been trying to retrieve the 11 bodies since the mine was re-opened in mid-July. The bodies are those of the men killed in the second of two methane gas explosions in Scotia's No. 1 mine last March.

Women

Women will continue to account for most of this country's new workers during the next decade, according to The Conference Board. Women accounted for 60 per cent of the jump in the U.S. work force during the last 10 years and will comprise an even larger share between now and 1985.

Sweet Adelines place in contest

Two Pomona Valley quartets placed at regional Sweet Adeline novice competition in San Diego. Third place was awarded the "Jelly Bean Machine" composed of three Chino women: Luan Dieterich, Karen Doble, and Glenda Lee, and Joyce Waters of Claremont.

The "Kith'n Kin" took sixth place with a fine performance from their growing repertoire of barbershop tunes.

The "Kith" is Sheila Schoonmaker of Claremont and the "Kin" are sisters from Upland, DeLourde Brooks, Francine Krueger and Gretchen Ross.

The lively spirit of the Pomona Valley Chapter was evident at the contest with 24 members attending to support their quartets.

Preparations for the annual chorus and quartet competition are just beginning. New members will feel right at home since almost a third of the 63-member chorus are new this year. Glenda Smith, membership chairman, 982-4098, will explain membership to interested persons.

Housewife status is losing ground

Is "woman's place" in the home? Still?

Many young Americans feel it isn't — especially the women.

According to the latest national survey of young people conducted for the American Council of Life Insurance, only one in four of the young women in the 14 to 25 age group, wants to be a housewife.

The number of females who found the lifestyle of "an average housewife" appealing went down from 42 per cent in 1970, the first year the question was asked, to 25 per cent in 1976.

When asked to choose one of five lifestyles they found the most attractive, 34 per cent of the young women said they wanted to be successful, married executives or professionals. Six years ago only 26 per cent found this choice appealing.

Some 19 per cent opted for the lifestyle of a "single person with a good job," 10 per cent wanted a "life free of obligations, living where and with whom one pleased," and some 8 per cent voted for "working to solve social problems."

Females who preferred the executive-professional lifestyle above others, were usually single, younger, from homes with higher incomes and had some college education. Those most attracted to the "average housewife" lifestyle were more likely to be married women between the ages of 22-25, from lower income homes and those with a high school level of education.

Young women were also interested in their individual development. The proportion who opted for "an opportunity to develop as an individual," when asked about life goals, climbed from 48 per cent in 1974, the year that question was first asked, to 55 per cent just two years later.

"A happy family life" as a life choice was picked by some 34 per cent of females in 1976, a drop from the 43 per cent two years earlier.

As for that old saying about a "woman's place," only about half as many young people agreed unequivocally that "The statement 'Woman's place is in the home' still makes sense," as did young people in the 1970 survey conducted for the Council. In 1970, the percentage of those who expresses strong agreement was 28 per cent.

Joyce Brothers

Make family contract

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: Our 12-year-old son threatens to run away whenever things don't go his way. Because my husband's daughter by a previous marriage did run away he's naturally terrified of this possibility. I hate to admit it but I'm so irritated by my son't threats that I'm often tempted to open the door, give him a good shove and let him run. — T.P.

DEAR T.P.: I can understand your feeling, but there's another, more positive way out of this trying situation. Consider making a kind of family contract with your son. That is, sit down with him and negotiate. Write down his demands and yours and, when you've agreed on what you expect from each other, post this contract where it can easily be studied and reviewed by both parties.

Dr. James Alexander of the University of Utah who worked with this method of solving family problems, especially for coping with runaways, reports that it is much more powerful than threats or punishment. It allows parents and children to keep their dignity and all can have a sense of pride about living up to the bargain. It also helps to alleviate the problem of blackmail and new demands each day.

This doesn't mean your contract can't be renegotiated but there must be a initial agreement that both sides will give the original contract a try for at least two weeks before adding demands. In addition to everything else, this also helps to keep the channels of communication open.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My parents were divorced and I remember what I went through when they were splitting up. It makes me heartsick to put my child through the same torment, but I'll go crazy if I try to stay married to my husband. I can't do it. But, I don't know how to avoid hurting my 7-year-old daughter. — F.H.

DEAR F.H.: One way you can help your child overcome the trauma of your divorce is to try to improve your own mental health. If your child sees you building a new, constructive and satisfying life, she will have a good model and will be better able to respond when, and if, something bad happens to her.

Tell her what's happening, without blaming your husband, no matter how bitter and angry you may be. She is a part of her father and a part of her will identify with him. If you destroy his character, you are destroying her, too.

Children your daughter's age are susceptible to demands that they take sides. Take special care not to involve her in such conflicts. Let her know that both you and her father love her, that you want her to love and respect him and that he will continue to visit her.

Explain this to her in advance so that she will have time to prepare herself emotionally. Above all, reassure her that she had nothing to do with your problems, so she won't feel responsible.

Why We Loved Lucy So Much

Searching for the reasons behind "Lucy mania" turns out to be a journey that leads us back to ourselves.

Twenty-five years ago a public relations man was overheard saying, "We've just bought a little thing made out in Hollywood—a situation comedy with Lucille Ball and her husband Whatzisname. I don't know if it will amount to anything." That "little thing" turned out to be the most successful television program of the 1950's: "I Love Lucy." No format appeared as unlikely to succeed as the adventures of a carrot-top clown and a Cuban bandleader with an accent so thick you could cut it with a cleaver, but the laughs have gone on uninterrupted now for a quarter of a century. And while most shows come and go, Americans have clung to Lucy with fierce fidelity. It turns out there are some interesting reasons why. This week, come back with us and remember America's best-loved TV show. We promise this re-run will not be interrupted by commercials.

Filming costly in Spain

MADRID (AP) — Hollywood is not the only place where film production costs are soaring.

Famed Spanish director Jose Luis Borau ("Poachers") reports that the price of making a film in Spain has risen 40 per cent during the past year. "There are two reasons," he says. "One is inflation; the other is the new union rule that you can't shoot more than seven hours a day, even if the crew agrees to stay longer. Films that used to take five to six weeks now require seven."

Having a ball

Grand uproar at Pavilion

By JOSEPH H. FIRMAN

"A Ball at Prince Orlofsky's," which opened the 10th anniversary visit of the New York City Opera at the Pavilion of the Los Angeles Music Center Wednesday night, was just that — a ball. A near full-house audience garbed in everything from tuxedos to sports jackets heard the second act of Strauss' "Die Fledermaus" and a Pops-pourri of star turns ranging from Herbert's "Italian Street Song" to the bolero from Verdi's "I Siciliani," from Massenet to "They Call the Wind Maria."

The slightly bizarre operatic olio got off to a bumpy start as the microphones pooped out when Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley and a Music Center official were trying to out-plaque each other in honoring snowy-thatched Julius Rudel, conductor of the opera company. Then the chandelier lights in Lloyd Evans' handsome but sterile set proved recalcitrant. To top it all off, in marched Tony ("The Odd Couple") Randall, decked out like a turn-of-the-century Austrian officer in off-the-shoulder jacket and tasseled boots. What, one wondered, next?

It was all fun and games but slightly more gamey than fun. The sparkling overture and the bouncy second act were delightful, highlighted by David Rae Smith's bored Prince Orlofsky and the considerable talents of David Holloway as Dr. Falke, a sprightly Sally of Diana Kehrig and a lissome Gianna Rolandi as Adele. Charles Roe and Ilona Simon were arch and melodious as the embattled Eisensteins.

Then stars and supers took up static poses about the two-level ballroom and remained frozen and expressionless as singer after singer strode into the spotlight to sing whatever came to mind. Some of the singing was magnificent, but the over all effect was slightly boring.

Most of the troupe's luminaries took a shot at center stage — Catherine Malfitano, Richard Fredricks, Maralin Niska, Pablo Elvira, Roberta Palmer, Mikhail Korogodsky, Faye Robinson, Samuel Ramey, Henry Price, Lando Bartolini. All high class, but the presentation was like a senior recital in high school.

The stars of the proceedings — well worth staying awake for — were the members of the mini-ballet, a skillful and engaging group that romped with zest through Thomas Andrew's imaginative choreography.

GETTING A LIFT — Whitney Rydbeck rides a pulchritudinous omnibus in a scene from "Stop the World, I Want To Get Off" at the Claremont Playhouse. The musical comedy by Leslie Bricusse and Anthony Newley will have its final performances at 8 o'clock tonight through Saturday. Neil Simon's "Come Blow Your Horn" opens there Dec. 10. Pat Miller directs.

Montoya slated for Garrison

Flamenco guitarist Carlos Montoya will present recitals in Garrison Theater, Claremont, at 8 p.m. Dec. 3 and 4. This is the second presentation on the Claremont Colleges' Artist Course Series.

One of the most widely heard performers in any concert idiom, Montoya has brought flamenco music to virtually every country, from the United States and Canada to Europe and the Orient, eliciting critical acclaim and audiency approbation everywhere.

In addition to his globe-girdling tours, Montoya also has won international favor through his numerous recordings. He is the most recorded flamenco artist in history and has become the symbol of flamenco music the world over.

A Spanish gypsy born in Madrid, Montoya was a musical prodigy, achieving national renown by the age of 14, when he was the toast of the "Cuadros Flamencos" during the heyday of flamenco singing and dancing. His debut as a concert artist was preceded by years of accompanying such distinguished dancers as La Argentina, Vicente Escudero and Argentinita.

The first flamenco guitarist ever to display his artistry in a solo concert, he has been hailed by aficionados as a master. His advanced technique, his flair for creative innovation and his varied repertoire make him one of the most exciting artists in the concert world today.

Tickets are available at the box office, Mutual or Liberty agencies, and by telephoning 626-4523 with BankAmericard or Master Charge.

Soviet leader wires Carter

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet President Nikolai V. Podgorny has told President-elect Jimmy Carter that he hopes relations between the Soviet Union and the United States will continue to improve after Carter takes office.

Podgorny's message, reported recently by Tass, the official Soviet news agency, said:

"Over the past years, a turn for the better in relations between the Soviet Union and the United States was achieved through joint efforts of both sides and a good foundation was created for their stable development.

"We should like to hope that in the period ahead our countries will be able to achieve further advance on this road in the interests of the Soviet and American peoples, in the interests of consolidation of peace and international security."

King Tut artifacts on display

WASHINGTON (AP) — An exhibition of priceless artifacts from the tomb of King Tut, opening a 30-month U.S. tour, promises to have diplomatic and commercial impact as well as art interest.

Officials of the National Gallery of Art anticipate that "The Treasures of Tutankhamun" will be one of the gallery's biggest attractions, equaling or surpassing recent shows on loan from the Soviet Union and the People's Republic of China.

The exhibition, which includes Tutankhamun's famous solid gold funeral mask, opened to public view Wednesday. Some 2,500 of the museum's regular patrons turned out for a preview on Tuesday.

Washington is just the start of a tour that will take the exhibit across the country. After closing here, it will be seen in Chicago, New Orleans, Los Angeles, Seattle and then at a grand finale in 1979 in New York City's Metropolitan Museum.

The show was agreed upon in principle by former President Richard M. Nixon and President Anwar Sadat of the Arab Republic of Egypt during Nixon's visit to Cairo in June 1974. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy signed a formal agreement for the show in October 1975. Kissinger himself viewed the exhibit Monday after a black-tie dinner at the gallery.

The loan was a gesture of Egypt's desire to improve its relations with the United States. Egypt will also get something in return.

The participating museums will sell publications and reproductions of jewelry, statuettes and other artifacts from the show. The proceeds are expected to net at least $1.6 million for work on the Cairo Museum and the Graeco-Roman Museum in Alexandria, Egypt.

Egyptian officials say the money will be used to renovate the Cairo Museum galleries that are the permanent home for the treasures from Tutankhamun's tomb.

Commercial firms have not been idle. There will be perfumes, calendars, note paper, jewelry, plaques and fabrics with Egyptian motifs. Washington area department stores are displaying Egyptian objects, and one store, Hecht's, has installed a gallery of objects on loan from the Egyptian Embassy, with a slide show from the National Gallery. It also is offering a new line of nationally advertised bedsheets and pillowcases with Egyptian designs.

The boy King Tut — also spelled Tutankhamon and TutAnkh-Amen — became a pharoah at age 9 and died about a decade later in 1324 B.C. But he achieved fame in the 20th century because his tomb was found intact in 1922, some 3,246 years after his death. Other pharoahs' tombs, probably richer in treasures, were ransacked by robbers over the centuries, but Tut's funerary treasures and mummy were preserved.

Some 3,000 objects were recovered by the British archeologist Howard Carter and his patron, the Earl of Carnarvon, and 55 of them — chosen for variety and beauty — comprise the exhibit.

They are displayed approximately in the sequence in which they were found.

T of C stocked with talent again

Expansion of the San Dimas Tournament of Champions has certainly not lowered the quality of the teams involved.

Once again the valley's premier basketball tournament has attracted much of the best individual and team talent in Southern California. And this year Clark High, a strong team from Las Vegas, Nev., has been added.

The Tournament of Champions, now in its fifth year, has been expanded into two separate tournaments. One, for small schools, will be called the seeded tournament, and the other, open to all schools regarless of size, will be called the open tournament.

Each tournament will have eight entries. The field for the open tournament will consist of Ganesha High, Long Beach Poly, Verbum Dei, Corona del Mar, Pasadena, Palos Verdes, Workman and Clark. The seeded tournament field includes host San Dimas, Damien, South Hills, El Dorado, Victor Valley, Moreno Valley, Mira Costa and Dana Hills.

Poly, of course, is the defending CIF 4A champion as well as the defending titlist in the Tournament of Champions.

The open tournament includes four of the top nine teams in the final CIF 4A writers' poll of last season in Poly (No. 1), Corona del Mar (No. 2), Verbum Dei (No. 4) and Pasadena (No. 9).

Playoff veterans

All four of those squads were in the 4A playoffs last year while Ganesha was in the 3A playoffs and Workman was in the 2A playoffs. Palos Verdes did not make it to postseason play last year but won the 4A title the year before by ending Verbum Dei's four-year championship string.

Among entries in the seeded tournament, Victor Valley (3A No. 6), South Hills (3A No. 9), Moreno Valley (2A No. 4) and El Dorado (2A No. 9) were all ranked in the final poll last year, and all went to the playoffs. Moreno Valley got as far as the semifinals while South Hills and El Dorado made the quarterfinals.

Individually, the Tournament of Champions is just as attractive. In fact, Street and Smith's Basketball Magazine lists 19 Southern California players on its all-America, honorable mention and outstanding players lists and seven of them will appear in the San Dimas tourney.

Duffy a top prospect

Among them is Damien's own Bill Duffy, who has developed into a very hot college prospect.

Duffy was named to the Progress Bulletin's All-Valley second team as a junior last year, and went on to excel over the summer in the Southern California Olympic Development League.

Coach Bill Roberts terms Duffey "probably the best guard in Southern California" and says he expects the 6-foot-4½, 185-pound senior to be the valley's best player this season.

Duffy, who averaged 14 points, 7.5 rebounds and five assists per game last year, is listed in the "Outstanding Players" section of Street and Smith's Basketball yearbook's high school outlook.

Also listed there are Long Beach Poly's Manny Johnson (6-7 senior), Ray Whiting (6-2 sophomore) and Tony Gwynn (5-10 senior), Corona del Mar's Alex Black (6-7 senior) and Workman's Bill Morales (6-0 senior). Poly's Dino Gregory (6-7 senior) is rated even higher as an all-America honorable mention.

The seeded portion of the Tournament of Champions will precede the open portion.

The seeded tourney will take place on Friday, Saturday and Monday, Dec. 10, 11 and 13, at San Dimas High the first two days and La Verne College the last.

The open tourney will run from Tuesday through Friday, Dec. 14 through 17, with all games at La Verne College.

Opening round pairings are as follows: Seeded Tournament — South Hills vs. El Dorado, Victor Valley vs. San Dimas, Moreno Valley vs. Damien and Mira Costa vs. Dana Hills. Open tournament — Verbum Dei vs. Ganesha, Pasadena vs. Palos Verdes, Corona del Mar vs. Workman and Long Beach Poly vs. Clark.

Anthony Munoz is lost to USC

LOS ANGELES — Anthony Munoz, former Chaffey High star, tore ligaments in his right knee in practice Tuesday and will be lost to USC for the rest of the season.

Munoz, the number two strongside offensive tackle, will undergo surgery at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center. Replacing the 6-6, 280-pound freshman, will be number two strongside guard Rick Miller, a 6-3, 280-pound senior. Munoz earned All-CBL, All-CIF and All-Valley honors last year at Chaffey.

Rudi delighted to join Angels

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Outfielder Joe Rudi and shortstop Bert Campaneris are the latest refugees in the exodus of the Oakland A's via baseball's free agent route.

Rudi joined another ex-Oakland outfielder, Don Baylor, with the California Angels, and Campaneris signed with the Texas Rangers.

Both players agreed to long-term deals Wednesday and ex-Philadelphia Phillies' second baseman Dave Cash reached a similar arrangement with the Montreal Expos.

That's five signings in two days for super-agent Jerry Kapstein and four of the players he has parceled out are ex-employes of the A's and owner Charles O. Finley. Besides Rudi, Baylor and Campaneris, former Oakland catcher-first baseman Gene Tenace signed with San Diego.

Still waiting their turns are reliever Rollie Fingers, one of five free agents Kapstein still has available, and third baseman Sal Bando.

Finley retained the negotiating rights to all of his players as part of the free agent draft arrangement but, according to Kapstein, he never called the agent.

Rudi, who carried a million-dollar price tag after Boston paid Finley that much for him last June in a deal that was vetoed by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, bristled over the image his old boss has painted for himself in this free agent marketplace.

"It's incredible that Charlie comes out looking like the good guy," the veteran outfielder said. "The average people really don't know what is going on. People say, 'How can you not get along with such a nice man like that?' But they don't know him."

Rudi batted .270 with 13 home runs and 94 runs batted in for the A's last season. He missed three weeks when Finley refused to allow him in the lineup following Kuhn's block of the sale to Boston.

Only a strike threat by the rest of the team forced Finley to restore Rudi, Fingers and Vida Blue to active duty.

"Finley says he's trying to win," Rudi continued. "But going into September, when we still had a chance to win, he's trying to sell Sal Bando.

"I spent 13 years in one organization," said Rudi. "We had great closeness on that ball club. I had a lot of great moments there...but that's behind me now. Now, I'm looking to a great future."

So are the Angels. With Rudi and Baylor added to holdover Bobby Bonds, California has one of the top outfields in the American League.

"We are in search of a championship ball club in Anaheim," said Harry Dalton, executive vice president and general manager of the Angels.

California lost three minor league infielders, Paul Dade, Billy Smith and Tim Nordbrook, in the draft. That allows the Angels to sign three other free agents, one more than any other club except the A's, who can sign six.

So far the strategy has paid off with two quality outfielders in Rudi and Baylor and there's still room for one more if owner Gene Autry has anything left in his petty cash account.

The Expos were as happy with the acquisition of Cash as the Angels were about Rudi and Baylor.

The veteran second baseman said he chose Montreal because he wanted to stay in the National League and in the East Division. The Expos offered both those advantages.

Campaneris, 34, figures to move in at shortstop with Texas, allowing the Rangers to switch Toby Harrah to third base.

The two days of signings stripped the A's of four starting players and strengthened Texas and California in the AL West Division.

Still available for Kapstein's list are second baseman Bobby Grich and four pitchers, Don Gullett, Wayne Garland, Fingers and Doyle Alexander. Twice, the agent's news conferences announcing the Cash and Campaneris signings were interrupted by messages of urgent phone calls, obviously from ball clubs inquiring about his remaining players.

Braves get Matthews

ATLANTA (AP) — Saying he was glad "to get out of the cold on the West Coast," free agent outfielder Gary Matthews announced today he will sign with The Atlanta Braves in the National League.

Matthews told a news conference that it wasn't his best offer, but that it was "the fairest."

Matthews, 26, hit .279 last season with 20 home runs and 84 runs batted in while playing out his option with the San Francisco Giants.

He said he chose Atlanta because of "the way people treated me," and said he hopes to help the Braves improve on their last place finish last season.

FATHER HINES AND SONS

Ben Hines (center), defensive coach of La Verne College's football team, has the joy of seeing his two sons, Bruce (left) and Steve (right), playing football for the Leos. They will also play baseball for their father during the baseball season.

It's 'Coach Hines' to sons

Progress Bulletin
Sports
Pomona, California ■ Thursday, November 18, 1976

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

La Verne College has carried its "family" concept one step farther in its football program this year.

The Leopards, who have had any number of brothers who followed brothers, now have a pair of brothers playing and their father coaching.

The coach, naturally, is Ben Hines and the players are sons Steve and Bruce. Steve, a wide receiver and a junior, plays only on offense. But Bruce, a freshman, is a defensive back and his father is his coach.

Ben, assistant football (in charge of defense) and head baseball coach, has enjoyed it for the most part. The only thing that would have made it better would have been another football championship.

"It's been a good relationship," Ben said. "I think that is due in a large part to the kids we have at La Verne right now. You know, the receptivness of the other players.

"Also, both of them have done well. Steve leads the team in receptions (22 for 422 yards) and Bruce has been one of the leaders in tackles among the defensive backs which is unusual for a freshman. They're both very good athletes. So one of the main things is that they have demonstrated clearly that, physically, they are where they should be. It might have been different if they were borderline players."

The success Steve and Bruce have enjoyed has been an added bonus.

"I've enjoyed it," Ben admitted. "I'm just like any other father and I like to see my kids do well. I particularly like them having fun at football which I think is important."

Of course the relationship on the football field is different than that at home. But Bruce is the one that notices that more than Steve or his father.

"It's 'coach' Hines here," Bruce grinned. "At the start of the season, I wanted to talk with my father and called out "dad.' He wouldn't pay any attention to me and I had to yell 'coach Hines.' So I accepted the fact that it was going to be that way. He's the coach and I'm just another player."

Neither Steve nor Bruce noted any particular problem in the fact that their dad is one of the coaches. Both admitted to some kidding, especially Bruce when practice first started.

I took a lot of kidding at first," he admitted. "But I earned my way to start and, of course, it's not like a big school where you have a lot of players for every position."

"They can both handle the razzing pretty well," said Ben. "We go at it pretty good in our family where we sometimes choose off sides and go at it. But again if it weren't for the fact that they're both having pretty good years, it would be difficult for them and for me."

Steve went to Mesa Junior College for a year after graduating from Bonita High. Then he transferred to Orange Coast for a year before transferring to La Verne.

"I always planned on coming back to La Verne to finish school," Steve said, "more for baseball than anything else. I missed football. I didn't play any football the two years I was in the junior colleges. I wasn't sure I'd play football until I got here. It's not real hard to get into the system here."

Asked why one son (Steve) went to a junior college and the other (Bruce) came directly to La Verne, the senior Hines offered this explanation.

"I think part of it was that Steve didn't know what he wanted to do," Ben said. "He wanted to get involved in a good JC baseball program for awhile and that's why he chose Mesa (Arizona). Then he went to Orange Coast because we have a house at the beach and it has a little bachelor apartment at the back and he decided he wanted to spend a year at the beach."

Ben expects both boys to play baseball for him next spring. At least he hopes they will.

"They pretty much make up their own minds," he said. "Jerry Kindall (Arizona baseball coach) almost persauded Bruce to go to the University of Arizona."

Both are infielders. Bruce is a second baseman while Steve, according to his father, can play either short or third. Both hope to play professional baseball.

"I've been drafted twice (by the Orioles and Tigers), but I'm going to finish school first," said Steve. "Then if I get drafted again, I'll sign."

"My goal is to play baseball here at La Verne and then to eventually get into professional baseball," said Bruce. "I'll sign with whoever drafts me. I knew I'd play both baseball and football in college and that's another reason why I came here. It's hard to play both if you want to go very far in one sport, but I knew I could do it here."

During the football season, Ben Hines, defensive football coach, has had one son to coach. When the baseball season rolls around, Ben Hines, baseball coach, will be able to work with both his sons. In between, he'll be able to watch daughter Kristie. She will be playing women's basketball and tennis.

Program helps get top names

The final stop on the 1976 NASCAR Grand National stock car schedule, the rich, $185,000 Los Angeles Times 500 at Ontario Motor Speedway Sunday, boasts probably its most formidable field ever, thanks in part to something called the Winners' Circle Award program.

The program, instituted this season to insure the presence of the most competitive drivers in the series at all 30 races, is viewed as a success by its creators because it has produced keener competition and probably a big reason behind the 15 per cent jump in attendance over a year ago.

Promoters like it because they can promise the big names like Richard Petty, Buddy Baker, Bobby Allison and Cale Yarborough and be guaranteed they will all show up.

The program is the reason why six drivers will win more than $200,000 in prize money this season, compared with only one last year.

But some say that the Winners' Circle also is why some of the "little people" that fill out the rest of the 30 and 40-car fields in Grand National racing are going broke.

To explain, there are eight spots on the program. Besides agreeing to run all the races, the participants need to have won at least one race the previous year "to prove their competitiveness."

A berth is worth $80,000 over the length of the season. Only seven drivers made it this year, and the first non-program driver to win this year would have been added to the current program as well as 1977. But so far no one has made it, although the lure of the money has kept about a dozen other drivers running all season.

David Pearson, a frequent winner, is not in the program because he does not run all the races. Donnie Allison, winner at Charlotte last month, is out now for the same reason.

Last year, only seven drivers—only three of which were winners—ran all races. This year it will be 14, including six winners.

Another driver who is likely to be adversely affected by the Winners' Circle program is one of the drivers it was designed to help, Bobby Allison. For the first time since 1965, Allison is facing a winless season.

Even as a former winner at Ontario Motor Speedway, Allison takes little comfort in knowing this is his last chance.

Pranksters have their day at USC

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Phony editions of the UCLA Daily Bruin and Southern California Daily Trojan are not really new, but the gimmick is always good to remind non-football minded students at the schools that the big game is at hand.

Thus when a Daily Trojan showed up Wednesday at the Southern California campus with the headline "NCAA Declares SC Ineligible for Rose Bowl," those with a sense of the past history of the USC-UCLA football game knew it was another shot in the battle between the Bruin and Trojan students.

The four-page newspaper was phonied-up by the staff of the Daily Bruin and 5,000 copies were distributed Wednesday morning at USC, four hours before the real Daily Trojan was to be delivered. Similar stunts were perpetrated in 1949 and 1955, among other years.

Students at UCLA have for years been painting the USC mascot, a bronze statue of Tommy Trojan, blue and gold. In retaliation, USC students have painted UCLA edifices maroon and gold.

Saturday, when UCLA's No. 2-ranked football team meets USC's No 3-ranked team, someone may think of something that'll attract the attention of 92,000 in Memorial Coliseum and a national television audience.

The first shot in the 1976 battle was the newspaper, the lead story of which said the entire USC team had been declared academically ineligible.

"USC was just an extreme case," said the bogus article. "We began by investigating charges that the football coaches were hiring elementary school teachers to read playbooks to the offensive line. That happens a lot at the expensive, private degree mills that don't have entrance requirements."

Another story, on the sports page, was headlined, "Robinson Plans New Strategy to Distract UCLA Football Players." It said that USC Coach John Robinson's players would wear panty hose, false eyelashes and six-inch spike heels to distract Bruin players.

UCLA Daily Bruin Sports Editor Mike Sondheimer said his staff worked for two weeks putting out the bogus issue.

He said 22,000 issues of the Daily Bruin also carried the phony newspaper as an insert.

It's the latest twist in a long series of stunts. Once a USC student drove across town each afternoon and joined the UCLA rally committee. Working secretly 12 hours before the game, he switched the UCLA card stunts. When they were performed the following day, a red "USC" appeared in the corner of each stunt.

Morgan's rushing earns 2nd award

There could be little suspense concerning the identity of the Progress Bulletin's Athlete of the Week this time around.

Walnut High's Kevin Morgan wrapped up his second such award in five week's when he rushed for an incredible 344 yards on 28 carries Friday in the Mustangs' 27-0 win over Bonita.

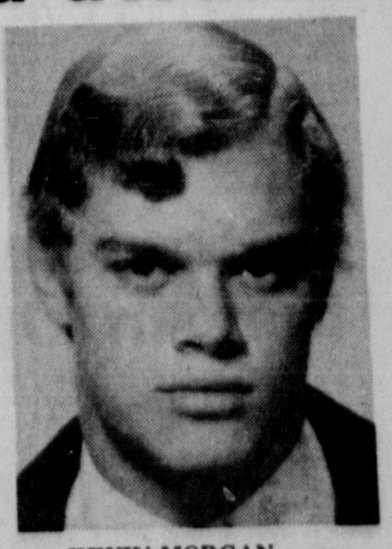
"When somebody came up after the game and said Kevin was up around 350, I thought he had to be wrong," said Walnut head coach Ken Gunn. "But we ran the films Saturday and counted it up, and, sure enough, he had 344."

Morgan's yardage total not only is the best on record for valley gridders, it ranks him 10th on the all-time CIF one-game rushing list.

Tops on that list is Whittier Christian's Craig Johnston, who gained 448 yards against L.A. Baptist last year.

Others on the list are Cantwell's Dave Johnson (401 against Pater Noster, 1969), Harvard's Kirby Andrews (385 against Paraclete, 1970), Rio Mesa's Steve Dixon (382 against Santa Paula, 1971), Baldwin Park's Rod McNeill (373 against Wilson of Hacienda Heights, 1968), Santa Monica's Mike Palmer (365 against Mira Costa, 1968), L.A. Baptist's Steve Tetrick (363 against Kennedy, 1972, South Torrance's Jeff Wang (349 against North Torrance, 1967) and Whittier Christian's Rich Gebhard (348 against San Diego Military Academy, 1973).

Morgan is also the valley's runaway top scorer, with 124 points in nine games. He has just under 1,500 yards for the season.



KEVIN MORGAN . . .
Prep Athlete of the Week

Also nominated this week was Alta Loma's Jill Taylor, who led her squad to the Hacienda League volleyball title.

Taylor, a 17-year-old senior, was named the Hacienda League's Most Valuable Player for volleyball Monday. She was also named MVP for the Gladstone Invitational Tournament earlier this season.

"Jill's performance in every game last week was superior," said coach Marilyn Shaw. Taylor and her teammates will begin CIF playoff action Saturday by hosting Indio.

Morgan will be honored at a dinner at the Pomona Elks Lodge 789 on Dec. 8.

Sifford takes lead in Open

By PHIL ROCHE
PB Staff Writer

Almost 30 years ago, in post-war 1948, Charlie Sifford of Los Angeles turned pro, but his game these days is sharper than ever.

Sifford, now 53, using his three-quarter swing almost to perfection, rambled around Glendora C.C. in a three-under round of 68 Wednesday to take the first day lead in the 76th annual Southern California Open.

Sifford bogeyed the 459-yard first hole, but turned the front side in 34, then planted another 34 on the scoreboard for the back nine.

One stroke behind at 69 are Rick Talt and Roger Calvin, a couple of touring pros taking a brief break from the PGA tournaments. Both rounds were posted at Glendora C.C., which according to scores, played easier than the narrow Via Verde C.C.

The best rounds at Via Verde came from amateur Scott Campbell and professional Jim Lynch, who both shot two under par 70s. Also in at Glendora with 70 were Mark Pfeil, Rick Divel, and Fritz Gambetta.

Claremont's Jon Fiedler fired a steady 71 at Via Verde to tie with Gary McCord, the 1975 Open winner who played his round at Glendora.

Remarkable Gerry Simoni, the 20-year-old from Upland, fashioned an even par 72 at Via Verde to lead area amateurs in exceptional performances. Mark Pailthorpe and defending amateur Marsh Shumaker fired 74s at Via Verde.

The second round in the three-day, 54-hole tournament will be played today at both Via Verde and Glendora.

Alta Loma cagers play preview game

Alta Loma High's annual Blue and Silver Basketball game will be held on Wednesday, Nov. 24 in the Alta Loma boys' gym at 8 p.m.

The contest will divide the varsity team into two teams that will face each other. Head coach Jeff McCall will coach one squad while Artie Keough handles the other squads' varsity players.

The varsity, will have returning lettermen Rich Davis, John Conger, and Jeff Anderson participating in the contest that will send its proceeds to various Alta Loma basketball expenses.

Two other contest have been scheduled before the main event. The Frosh and Soph teams will kick off action at 6 p.m. At 7:15 p.m. the junior varsity, coached by Keough, will play a faculty squad yet to be selected.

Tickets at $1 will be available from Alta Loma basketball players or at the high school's student store on or after Nov. 15.

IF YOU CAN'T BELIEVE THE USSF, WHO CAN YOU BELIEVE? After phoning the U.S. Soccer Federation almost daily we reported that the USA was to meet Canada thrice last week in Haiti in World Cup eliminations. It turned out, the word received from the Empire State was not totally correct.

The truth was the USA played Haiti three exhibition games and the USA-Canada playoff game has still not been scheduled. The three games ended goalless. The significance of four and a half hours of scoreless play is speculative, but unless the level of play was of the highest caliber the three games must have added to one big bore. And they played a fourth scoreless game against a Swedish team.

THE REACTION RECEIVED FROM our readers to the English soccer games on Channel 28 has been terrific. If you enjoy viewing great soccer on the tube, send a postcard to Bill Oxley, PBS TV, 4400 Sunset Drive, Los Angeles 90027. This is small price for seeing great soccer direct from England. If you don't let them know you are watching, Channel 28 will cancel it . . . it's that simple.

Look what you will miss if you fail to respond: November 21, Portvale vs. Brighton; November 28, Leicester City vs. Manchester United; December 5, Birmingham City vs. Manchester City; December 12, Aston Villa vs. Tottenham Hotspurs; December 19, Birmingham City vs. Sunderland; and as a Christmas present (if you earn it) you'll see Arsenal vs. Manchester United. Games are televised Sundays at 6:30 p.m. KICKIN' AROUND has been invited to comment on the next game at halftime, so we'll be seeing ya.

A NEW MAGAZINE, "Soccer Corner" is on the newsstands. It is a totally American product which we hope will meet with your approval because we hope Soccer Corner will strengthen communication among the many soccer circles within the U.S. The premier issue contains a giant Pele foldout color poster in itself is worth the buck.

If it sounds like a plug, it certainly is. Kickin' Around is all for promoting the dissemination of soccer information whether it be radio, T.V., newspaper, or magazine. The media generally gives this great game the cold shoulder and as a result the "grass roots" are having to pull themselves up to the surface without much help.

The racks are full of magazines on karate, archery, fishing, table tennis, and even skateboarding, but now soccer is in there too, for the first time.

THE INTERNATIONAL SCENE: Italy: Lazio of Italy won the Italo-English Cup defeating Southhampton of England 2-0. Spain: Athletico Madrid remains in the leadership of the Spanish League despite losing 1-0 to Betis. STANDINGS: Athletico Madrid 14; Valencia and Barcelona 12; Real Madrid and Espanol 12. ARGENTINA: Boca Juniors blanked River Plate 3-0 in an Argentinian "clasico", and Independiente and Racing tied 1-1.

COLLEGE ACTION IS ALREADY INTO REGIONAL PLAYOFFS. The Far West finds defending NCAA champs U. of San Francisco going against UCLA, and San Jose matched with Washington, with winners playing-off for right to head east for the Dec. 4-5 finals in Philadelphia, (Div. One teams).

Div. Two is down to Seattle-Pacific (runnersup in '75) vs. Chico; and Hayward vs. UC Davis in the battle for the ultimate final at Seattle.

The NAIA won't have a valley representative as we hoped. Pomona-Pitzer fell to U.S. International University at San Diego by a scant 2-1 after leading at halftime 1-0, to finish the season with a fine 12-2-2 record. USIU and Biola do further battle with the Northwest or Canadian survivors . . . two of whom will enter the 8-team NAIA Finals at the Rose Bowl Nov. 24 through 27. If you've never seen the famous bowl, join all the AYSO teams who will help fill the stadium those four days. Getting the Rose Bowl for the finals is a real coup for soccer. Hats off to AYSO and NAIA!

Larry Littleton, events chairman of the four day NAIA national finals announced that all scheduled college and AYSO games for November 24 and 25 have been switched from the Rose Bowl to Pasadena City College.

The last minute switch, according to Bob Holden, general manager of the Pasadena Center, was a result of turf conditions, which do not permit four days of consecutive use of the Rose Bowl at this time.

Pasadena City College is located just two miles east of the Rose Bowl, on 1570 East Colorado Blvd.

All games, the banner contest and other events of November 26 and 27 will definitely take place at the Rose Bowl as scheduled.

FRITS ROSENVELDT reports good attendance at his Old Folks League in Ontario and welcomes more players who want to have some Sunday Fun, and in addition invites the Ladies to show up for 11 a.m. signup at Colony Park. Quite a few have already signed . . . so giris if you can't make it to Jack LaLanne's . . . there's always Frits'.

The Claremont Sunday Fun League romped thru a wet two games last Sunday . . . everyone seemingly enjoying the mud . . . and what kid could ever ignore a mud puddle? Everyone left El Roble tired but happy.

NCAA National Rankings at end of season: Clemson on top; Indiana and Hartwick tied for 2nd; Connecticut 4th; Temple 5th, followed by San Francisco, St. Louis, Quincy, Davis and Elkins and Adelphia. San Francisco won Div. One last year, Quincy took NAIA third straight time, Adelphia was Div. Two champ, and Brockport State Div. 3 titlists. The Jr. College diadem again went to Florissant Valley of St. Louis. Quincy, six times NAIA winners, beat a very capable Simon Fraser team (from British Columbia) in last year's final and the two may again clash at the Rose Bowl barring some wild upsets.

The Far West rankings: San Francisco on top; Colorado, Hayward, San Jose, Chico, Seattle-Pacific, Washington, UCLA, San Diego State, Westmont and Simon Fraser.

AFTER-THOUGHTS ON LAST SUNDAY'S TV GAME: The Wolves played well but they are not the team they were in the past . . . as their 2nd Division status attests. The glory days of Stan Cullis and Billy Wright, both Captains and center halfbacks for England in their time; Derek Dougan, Northern Ireland's dynamic striker, and Martin Buchan, Scottish International now with Manchester United . . . are long gone.

Backfield depth cuts Jones' rushing total

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

Halfback Ron Jones has a good reason why he isn't gaining as much yardage for Cal Poly this season.

"We have so many good backs this year," he said after being selected the valley's offensive player of the week for his heroics against San Luis Obispo last Saturday.

Jones has a good point.

While Andy Vinci's team has been hurt by injuries to his line, he has been blessed with a lot of depth in the offensive backfield.

Jones rushed for 720 yards on 105 carries last year to lead the Broncos in his sophomore season. This year, he has totaled 295 yards on 70 carries to rank third on the team behind Mark Sanders (624) and Brent Partridge (401).

But Jones has become more of a target for passes this season with 12 receptions for 197 yards compared to nine last year for 55 yards.

His biggest catch came last when he caught a screen pass from sophomore quarterback Sammy Ross for a spectacular 74-yard touchdown play which got Pomona back into the game early in the fourth quarter.

A few moments later, Ross connected with Dale Mitchell on a 54-yard TD pass to put the Broncs ahead, 22-19, with 2:53 left in the game only to have SLO rally back with a touchdown to pull out a 26-22 victory.

"The pros will be looking at Jones," Vinci said at this week's football luncheon. "I think he ran 120 yards on that TD run and showed a lot of moves."

"After I caught the pass, I turned upfield behind our blockers and saw an opening on the other side of the field," Jones said. "I knew we could come back in the fourth quarter and we did."

For the record, Jones ran for 56 yards on 11 carries and caught four passes for 103 yards to earn the Broncos' Player of the Week honor.

However, both Jones and Vinci paid special tribute to the offensive line for its performance against SLO.

"Our offensive line is real tough," Jones said. "They are a great group of fellows and it is comfortable running behind their blocking."

Vinci added, "It was our offensive line's finest game of the season. It seemed like they were really determined to protect our rookie quarterback."

Despite some early mistakes, Ross showed his skills in the second half in his first start as a Bronco because of the injury to regular Leo Costa.

"Considering everything, Ross had one heck of a game," Vinci said.

Jones, a junior from Porterville, says the Broncs are out to win Saturday's season finale against Puget Sound to go out as winners.

"Everybody is disappointed about last week's loss but that's behind us," Jones said. "We played a good team, and it just turned out the way it did. We want to get it together this week and get this last win."

BRONC BUSTERS — Costa was realeased from Pomona Valley Community Hospital Wednesday and will be on the sidelines Saturday night for the Puget Sound game.

Bronco cagers get stiff test

Cal Poly's basketball team will preview Monday at 8 p.m. in Kellogg Gym, hosting a powerful Athletes-In-Action team led by former UCLA center Ralph Drollinger.

Next assignments will take the Broncos to play at the University of Dayton on Nov. 27, at South Carolina on Nov. 29, at Notre Dame on Dec. 1 and at Kansas State Dec. 2.

"I know we'll get a stiff test from Athletes-In-Action, because they always have outstanding teams and have some of the nation's best former collegiate stars," said Bronco head coach Don Hogan, who is starting his fourth year as the team leader.

The Monday game will be the first competition Cal Poly has had against another team. The Broncos opened team practices on Oct. 15 and have seen only intrasquad game action. Currently 15 players are on the Bronco roster battling for the five starting positions.

Forward Jack Gamulin, guard Tom Ispas and center Don Johnson have been playing well for Cal Poly in practices, according to the coach, who reports that other Broncos also are doing well.

"Potentially we have the best team Cal Poly Pomona has ever had," said Hogan, a 1961 alumnus of Cal Poly. "How we do depends on how quickly we are able to reach that potential."

Tickets priced at $1.50 for adults, $1 for students and 50 cents for children, are available for the Athletes-In-Action game. Fans may purchase two adult season tickets for $10 or a family season ticket for $20. In all Cal Poly will host 11 games in Kellogg Gym. Ticket information may be obtained by telephoning the Cal Poly Athletic Department at (714) 598-4611.

The next Cal Poly home game won't be until Jan. 3, against Azusa Pacific. The Broncos open the California Coll

Six Claremont girls in CIF net tourney

Six Claremont High tennis players, four from Alta Loma and two from Bonita will compete in the CIF Girls' Individual Tennis Tournament at Chaffey High Saturday beginning at 8:30 p.m.

Kathy Brandt and Connie Elwell of Claremont will represent the San Antonio League in singles play while Shawnie Piper and Jeanne Urquizu of Alta Loma will represent the Hacienda League.

In doubles action, one Claremont duo of Cathy Claussen and Karen Claussen and another of Robin Su and Pam Papa will represent the SAL, while Bonita's Susan Arnold and Yvonne Radi and Alta Loma's Linda Saddlemire and Stacy Broeker will represent the HL.

Three other preliminary tournaments will be conducted simultaneously at three other sites — Cypress College, Pasadena College and Santa Monica City College — with the top two singles players and doubles teams from each prelim advancing to the finals at the Los Angeles Tennis Club on Monday, Dec. 6.

In the singles tournament at Chaffey High, Brandt will open with a bye before playing the winner of a first-round match between Urquizu and Cindy Hamilton of Elsinore. Piper will also have a bye in the first round before facing the winner of a match between Elwell and Lynn Hoyt of Hemet.

In doubles play, the teams of Arnold-Radi and Claussen-Claussen will receive first-round byes. Saddlemire-Broeker will face Tammy Bedwell and Lisa Baungarth of Bishop in the first round while Su-Papa will open against an opponent yet to be determined from the Desert Valleys league.

Kickers lose 4-2

The Diamond Bar Kickers of the Pacific Soccer League Juniors lost their first regular season game in two years as the undefeated South Bay Gunners outplayed the local team in a hard-fought battle, 4-2.

Since Coach George Ratajczak organized the Kickers, they have compiled a 37-2-2 record. They hope to get back on the winning track this Saturday when they visit Cerritos United at Haskell School in Cerritos at 1 p.m.

Diamond Bar opened the scoring with a goal by Henry Gonzales but the Gunners tied the score at 1-1 at the intermission.

Mike Brocki's goal gave the Kickers a 2-1 lead early in the second half but the Gunners scored three goals to take the victory.

YMCA sets cage tryouts

The Diamond Bar-Walnut YMCA will hold tryouts for both the girls and boys basketball leagues on Saturday at the Walnut High gymnasium.

The tryouts will start with the fourth and fifth grade boys at noon, sixth grade boys at 1 p.m., seventh grade boys at 2 p.m., eighth grade boys at 3 p.m. and fourth-ninth grade girls at 4 p.m.

Late sign-ups will be taken from 10 a.m. to noon or by contacting the YMCA or Ken Misumi at (714) 595-4488.

Morgan wins scoring race

Walnut High's Kevin Morgan outdistanced his nearest competitor by 40 points and his Mustangs finished atop the offensive team statistics in the final Progress Bulletin Prep Scoring Derby.

Morgan scored an amazing 20 touchdowns — seven more than runnerup Bob Pleasant — and a pair of two-point conversions for a total of 124 points in nine games.

San Dimas' Pleasant followed with 11 TDs for 84 points and Damien's Leo Burke and Bonita's Sanford Coggins tied for fourth and fifth places with 11 touchdowns and 68 points. Burke's total was amassed in just eight games, since Damien's incomplete game with Garey was not counted (nor was Burke's TD in that game).

Ganesha's Floyd Eddings was fifth with 10 touchdowns and 64 points.

Walnut finished the regular season with 236 points to Chaffey's 235 and San Dimas' 232. San Dimas won the defensive battle, however, allowing 52 points to runnerup Garey's 64 (in only eight games).

San Dimas also had the largest average winning margin among valley teams: the Saints scored 25.8 points per game while surrendering 5.8 for a 20-point differential.

Three teams — San Dimas, Chaffey and Alta Loma — finished among the top five in both offense and defense while four more — Walnut, Garey, Bonita and Ganesha — finished in the top 10 in both categories.

Decision nears on JRB

LOS ANGELES — One more weekend of play remains before the Junior Rose Bowl selection committee gets together to decide which out-of-state team will be invited to oppose a California eleven in the December 11 renewal of the mythical community college championship contest.

The selection committee, consisting of Glenn Davis of the sponsoring L.A. Times, Dr. Lloyd Messersmith, executive director of the California Community College Assoc. and Dr. Robert Lombardi, Saddleback College, will make the decision on Monday, Nov. 22.

Three teams which have ranked in the top ten on the national polls most of the year appear to have the edge. Mt. Hood, Oregon, riding a 21-game winning streak, Ellsworth, Iowa, unbeaten in nine games, and Wesley, Delaware, 9-0-0 in the Coastal Conference, are the leading contenders.

The high-flying Mt. Hood Saints (who have outscored opponents 383-86) are coached by Marv Heibert. They must get by Spokane Falls in Friday night's Northwest Conference title match. Mt. Hood slipped past the Spartans 20-6 during the season but must play the Washington team on its home turf this time. Spokane sports a 6-3 season mark.

Ellsworth concluded their campaign two weeks ago by trouncing Marshalltown 61-13. Vern Thomsen's Panthers outscored the opposition, 392-84, with the only close call a 27-20 decision at Iowa Central in the second game of the season.

Wesley has one game remaining, a Friday night encounter against Hartford (7-1) at Bel Air, Maryland.

Meanwhile, the California JC grid picture is anything but clear. Conference champions surviving post-season battles will be considered by the selection committee.

Citrus' Strycula to reach milestone

Citrus College football coach John Strycula was asked if it seemed to him that he'd been the Owls' head coach for 100 games, which will be the case Saturday night when Citrus plays at Riverside City College.

"I'll tell you the truth," the outspoken Owl mentor said. "After that game last Saturday, it seems more like 3,000 games!"

Strycula, one of the most successful junior college coaches currently on the job in the state, has a 72-21-6 overall record in his tenure at the Azusa campus. Thus Saturday's game with be his 100th as head coach of the Owls, and it will be a very timely present if Citrus can defeat Riverside in the final regular-season game of the season.

A victory by Citrus, currently 5-0-1 in the Mission Conference and 7-1-1 overall, over Riverside will give the Owls the conference championship and the right to host the Western States Conference champ the following Saturday in the Mission Bowl.

The Owls, who faced their stiffest challenge of the league schedule last week in their narrow 7-3 victory over Saddleback, will be looking for their third straight Mission title.

"Riverside is definitely a threat for us," Strycula said. "Early in the year they had some key people out with injuries, but some of them are back now. The pressure is all on us because we've got to win or tie this game to win the conference. Riverside has nothing to lose."

The Tigers, whom the Owls beat last year, 33-3, lost their first three games this fall but have since won three of the last five, including 18-13 win over Southwestern, a team which tied Citrus 14-14.

First-year Riverside coach Jim Kross' secondary has been impressive in the last few outings. Prior to last week's 35-21 loss to San Diego CC, the Tigers had held San Bernardino Valley and Palomar to a combined 50 yards passing.

Strycula has good reason to be weary after the narrow victory over a rugged Saddleback team last Saturday. Citrus needed a victory to virtually cinch the title in the game although they must secure it for sure in Saturday's finale at RCC.

"Saturday it was just a question as to who was going to crack — them or us," explained Strycula. "We cracked a little bit early in the game but stayed with it, and it was nip-and-tuck until they gave us the break. For both teams it was a great defensive effort." The break the Owls received came on the first play of the final quarter, when Saddleback quarterback Billy Yancy tryed to get past defensive back John Adams at the Gaucho 30.

Adams forced a fumble, which fellow defensive back Thumper White recovered on the Saddleback 26.

Alternating between fullback Raymond Butler and tailback Obie Graves, the Owls took four plays to score the lone touchdown of the game on a seven-yard run by Graves. It was the 72nd point of the year for Graves, just eight short of the Citrus school record of 80.

Aside from a 27-yard field goal by Saddleback's Jim Lachmund in the second period and a couple narrow misses by Owl kicker Bill Darrell on long field goal attempts, that took care of most of the offensive work.

Graves, now the number five all-time single-season rusher in Citrus history with 942 yards on 185 carries, managed to gain 81 yards against the Gauchos, which came into the game averaging only 71 yards a game rushing against their defense.

The victory was even more impressive, considering the loss to the Owls of starting defensive lineman Henry Camarena. Camarena was injured in an auto accident the night before the game. He suffered a concussion and a scalp wound, and it won't be known until late this week if he'll be able to play Saturday vs. RCC.

Mounties try for state C-C crown

The Mt. San Antonio College cross country team will go gunning for the state junior college title Saturday at College of the Canyons in Valencia.

The Mountie harriers are fresh off an impressive second place finish (behind Grossmont) in the Southern Cal finals, and Mountie coach John Norton is hoping his team can unseat Grossmont and American River, the Northern Cal champs, in action Saturday.

"I feel that this is our best overall team ever," Norton claims. "We are real proud of our guys.

"If we can put it all together this week we will be able to say without a doubt that this is the finest team in MSAC history. I feel we can beat Grossmont and American River if eveyone on our squad does his best."

Joe Ebiner led the Mounties' to the second place finish last week with a 20:19 clocking, which was a MSAC record for the Canyons course. Ebiner has recorded a 19:58 time this year.

Also shining in the Southern Cal finals were freshmen Dave Tillery (20:50), Barry Boettcher (20:53) and Billy Jones (20:59).

Co-captains for this year's team are Cip Gomez and Kevin Kellogg. The remainer of the MSAC squad consists of Gary Smith, Neal Ward, Jesse Garcia and Mike Green.

"If every man does what he is capable of doing, we are capable of being number one," Norton points out.

Cal Poly wins polo crown

Head coach Stan Jackson celebrated his third consecutive California Collegiate Athletic Association (CCAA) water polo championship at the helm of Cal Poly Pomona.

The Broncos took two out of three games in the CCAA Championships at Cal State Northridge last Friday and Saturday to win the crown again.

Poly finished the season with a league record of 5-1, while CS Northridge was 4-2, Cal Poly San Luis Obispo 3-3, and Cal State Los Angeles, 0-6.

The Broncos (13-10) defeated Cal State L.A. 16-9, in Friday's action and then beat CPSLO, 11-8, on Saturday morning. The host Matadors squeezed out an 11-10 victory over Cal Poly Pomona in the final game to make the league standings close.

"We're very happy about the championship," exclaimed coach Jackson. "Our main concern is to get exposure in the nationals, but our first objective was to win the conference."

Steve Peavler and Claremont's Craig Hildebrand were outstanding, not only in the championships but the whole season.

"Peavler and Hildebrand did an outstanding job for us," said Jackson. "Steve was averaging about three goals per game while Craig played tough on defense and maintained a one or two goals per game average."

Akron gets playoff bid

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — The University of Akron's third-ranked football team was one of three teams invited Tuesday to play in the quarter-finals of the NCAA Division II football playoffs.

The Zips, 8-2 and losers only to Division I opponents Temple and Marshall, will take on an as yet undetermined opponent Saturday, Nov. 27, here in the 35,000-seat Akron Rubber Bowl.

Defending Division II champion Northern Michigan and top-ranked Montana State were the other teams named Tuesday. Five other teams will be invited after Saturday's action and pairings will be announced early next week.
